State-Long Pike Dead --Collins

Herald Bureau

TALLAHASSEE — Gov. LeRoy Collins said Thursday that proposed federal interstate system of limited access highways has killed plans for extension of Florida's turnpike north of Orlando.

Collins said the proposal to extend the existing toll road from Fort Pierce to Orlando would "not conflict but will complement the interstate system. I think any extension beyond that point should now be regarded as hopeless."

He said he felt the two-year-old turnpike had proven a great asset to the state but any extension north of Orlando to the Georgia line probably would not be feasible if it had to compete with a free limited access interstate system.

Only the portion between Miami and Fort Pierce has been built and some investment sources have cast doubt even on feasibility of running it to Orlando.

But Collins said there will be no interstate route to compete with a tollway from Fort Pierce to Orlando and he sees no reason why it should not be built someday.

Guatemala, Mexico Span Destroyed

MEXICO CITY—(AP)—Reports from Tapachula Thursday night said the international bridge linking Guatemala and Mexico at Ciudad Hidalgo and Ayutla was destroyed during an anti-Mexican demonstration.

Tapachula also reported that a squadron of Guatemalan air force planes flew over that southern city several times.

The destruction of the bridge is the first violence of the month-long disagreement between Mexico and Guatemala, climaxed last week when Mexico broke diplomatic relations.

Reports reaching here said a spontaneous demonstration on the Guatemalan side got out of control and the bridge was destroyed.

Mexican Consul Hector Rangel Obregon was stranded in Guatemala, unable to return home.

The disagreement between the two countries stems from the Dec. 31 strafing of Mexican fishing boats by Guatemalan air force planes. Three men were killed, 14 injured.

Boy Pinned Hours Under 2-Ton Pipe

LOS ANGELES — (AP) — A 12-year-old boy who chose a sandy construction site for a playground was rescued Thursday after seven hours of being pinned by a two-ton concrete storm drain pipe.

Authorities say Perry A. Luth III apparently was digging a tunnel under the pipe Wednesday when it slipped down on his back, crushing him flat.

At dinner time his parents missed him and a search began. About four and a half hours after the pipe slipped, Perry's father spotted his son's bicycle by the work project near their Westchester home, then found the boy.

"I'm cold. I can't move my feet," were the boy's first words.

Then, in concerned tones, he asked:

"Did I make you miss the movie?"

"That's all right, son," the elder Luth replied. "We'll have you out right away."

Police extricated him by slipping a huge beam into the pipe, and jacking up its extended end.

Perry was taken to a hospital suffering from shock and possible internal injuries.

King Is Convicted On Lesser Charge

BARTOW — (UPI) — A six man jury Thursday found former State Sen. Harry King guilty of conspiracy to commit perjury but acquitted him on the more serious charge of subornation of perjury.

The jury deliberated for five hours and 25 minutes before reaching a verdict. Judge Roy H. Amidon gave the defendant 15 days in which to file for a new trial.

King was convicted on two counts of conspiracy to commit perjury. He could receive up to one year in prison and a fine of $500 on each count.

He was acquitted of two counts of subornation of perjury for which he could have received up to 20 years on each count.

King's wife was in the courtroom as the verdict was announced. Both she and her husband remained calm as the jury read its decision.

The charges against King grew out of the Polk County political payoff scandal of 1956.

King was convicted in May, 1956, on all four counts. He was sentenced to five years in prison then, but the State Supreme Court granted him a new trial on the basis of technical errors.

King's attorneys gave notice Thursday night they would ask for a new trial. Amidon held King could not be sentenced until after a ruling on that motion.

King and his co-defendant, former sheriff Pat Gordon, allegedly procured deputy sheriffs Rollie Arnold and James Busbee to lie before the grand jury investigating the charge that King gave $10,000 to former state Rep. Boone Tillett Jr., Lake Wales attorney, not to oppose King for re-election.

Report Heard in Caracas

Slaying by Trujillo Of His V-P Is Denied

CIUDAD TRUJILLO, Dominican Republic — (AP) — Reports that Vice President Joaquin Balaguer had been slain were denied Thursday in government circles. Balaguer was reported working in his offices as usual Thursday afternoon.

Earlier, Dominican exiles in Caracas, Venezuela, said they had been advised Gen. Rafael Leonidas Trujillo, strongman of the Dominican Republic, had shot and killed Vice President Balaguer. Their story was splashed under banner headlines in the Caracas evening newspapers El Mundo and Pregon.

Nicolas Silfa and Angel Miolan, directors of the Dominican Revolutionary Party in exile, said in Caracas a clandestine radio reported the incident occurred last Tuesday in Ciudad Trujillo.

The exiles said the broadcast reported that Trujillo fired five shots at the vice president during an argument. The report added that Trujillo had accused Balaguer of not dealing harshly enough with an "insurrection."

Silfa and Miolan charged that the Dominican army has been disarmed and ordered to barracks. They charged that a "wave of repression" in the Dominican Republic was so great that hospitals had been converted into jails. It said the San Juan Hospital in Ciudad Trujillo was one.

Norfolk Will 'Mix' 6 Schools

17 Negroes Start Classes on Monday

NORFOLK, Va. —(AP)— The Norfolk School Board announced Thursday that the city's six closed schools will open Monday on an integrated basis.

Three high and three junior high schools have been closed since September to avoid integration. However, the state laws under which their doors were locked have been nullified by state and federal court decisions.

The reopening will bring the first Negro children in Virginia history—17 in all—into white public school classrooms.

The school board's announcement came immediately after the City Council assured it of operating funds. An earlier council resolution to cut off school monies, fell before Federal Court orders.

The schools affected are Maury, Granby, and Norview High School and Norview, Blair and Northside Junior Highs. A total of 10,000 white children are affected. However, only about 75 per cent of that number are expected to return to school Monday since many are attending school elsewhere or have dropped it altogether.

Meanwhile a Federal Circuit Court judge in Baltimore postponed "mandatory integration at two Charlottesville, Va., public schools. A spokesman for the school board said the schools probably would open next week on a segregated basis.

Affected are 1,700 students at Venable Elementary and Lane High Schools. Their schools were closed by the state after a Federal Court judge ordered the admission of 12 Negro students last September.

The decision by Chief Judge Simon E. Sobeloff of the Fourth U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals was disclosed by John S. Battle Jr. counsel for the Charlottesville School Board.

Nikita's Arteries Hardening? New York Doctors Think So

NEW YORK — (UPI) — The New York World Telegram and Sun said Thursday that in the opinion of several prominent New York doctors "there is a distinct possibility" that Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev may be suffering from hardening of the arteries of the brain.

These doctors compared photographs of the Russian leader, taken early last year with those taken recently.

"The arteries in his temple look more prominent in the latest photo," the newspaper quoted one doctor as saying. "They look prominent and tortuous. It looks like a distinct possibility of cerebral hardening of the arteries."

The newspaper said that another doctor said that "in cases like this there is always the hazard of cerebral vascular accidents, or, in other words, the danger of a stroke."

The World Telegram and Sun quoted another physician as saying that "it's perhaps speculative to base judgment on photos, but the latest photo seems to show his face typically haggard and lined."

"Such an arterial ailment is quite common in overweight people more than 50 years of age," one of the doctors pointed out, the newspaper said.

Khrushchev will be 65 on April 17, the newspaper pointed out, and he was quoted by Sen. Hubert Humphrey, who met him recently, as saying that he had kidney trouble.

The New York doctors, according to The World Telegram and Sun, said that the photos also showed that the Soviet premier had lost weight since last July. They speculated that his doctors had advised this since, though not a cure, it is a help in fighting the inroads of cardiovascular disease.

'You're Taken Away My Living'

Hialeah Security Boss Shot By Disgruntled Track Tout

By JAMES BUCHANAN

Herald Staff Writer

As hundreds of Hialeah Race Track fans looked on in horror, an arthritic 75-year-old tout Thursday fired two bullets into John Madala, track security chief and ex-FBI agent who helped gun down John Dillinger.

Shortly before the bugle called the first race, the elderly tipster, identified as Maxim Gay, shuffled toward Madala, who was talking with his brother behind the grandstand, and muttered in a stuttering voice:

"You've taken away my living."

He then took out a revolver and fired two shots, sending Madala sprawling to the ground.

Stepping closer, he fired three more shots and dropped the weapon just as track guards grabbed him.

Bill Horan, a track employe who witnessed the shooting, said:

"I turned around when I heard the first shot but I didn't get excited. I thought it was a movie act involving Madala.

"Then I saw someone shoot at him when he was down. Lucky somebody else didn't get shot, too."

Madala was rushed to Doctors' Hospital where surgeons took one slug out of his right side and one out of his abdomen. His condition was serious. Three of the shots missed.

Police identified the gunman as Gay, an oldtime professional tout who is well known around the country's race tracks as a tip-sheet salesman.

They said that Gay, of 126 SW Seventh Ave., told them he tried to kill Madala because the security chief ordered him ejected from the track Wednesday.

State Attorney Richard Gerstein said Gay will be charged with assault with intent to commit first degree murder.

Gay, a gray-haired man who walks haltingly with a stoop, was taken to the Hialeah police station for questioning and later booked at the county jail.

Officers described him as "calm, cooperative and unremorseful."

Under questioning, he told investigators he bought the revolver — a .38 caliber Smith and Wesson — Wednesday from a Hialeah gun dealer with the avowed purpose of avenging his dismissal from the track.

Thor Being Stockpiled

U.S. Mass-Producing 1,500-Mile Missile

SANTA MONICA, Calif.—(AP) — America is mass-producing one of its most reliable missiles in a form so simple that crews can fire them in volleys on 15-minutes notice—even from mobile bases.

The missile is the 1,500-mile Thor, a combat-ready weapon that also is a workhorse in space research.

It can carry a nuclear warhead known as the "county-buster" and it is stockpiled at bases in this country and abroad.

But because of its limited range, the future of the Thor is uncertain.

This picture emerged Thursday after the first press tour of Thor production and testing facilities here and in Sacramento, Calif. Donald W. Douglas, president of Douglas Aircraft Co., led the tour.

Newsmen saw parts of more than a dozen Thors on an assembly line at the Douglas Aircraft plant here and 17 finished missiles in a storage area.

At Sacramento they saw a demonstration that a hangared Thor can be made ready to launch 15 minutes after the order to fire.

A Thor squadron has 15 missiles, all ready to be fired at once, at the same target or at 15 different targets.

In the field, each missile requires only four men to fuel and fire it.

Fifteen successes and 12 partial successes out of 31 firings attest the Thor's reliability.

McElroy: Reds Will Take Lead

Senate Probers Hear Defense Officials

WASHINGTON — (UPI) — The Air Force's ballistic missile chief told Senate investigators Thursday the U.S. should be building more intercontinental missiles to meet the "very great danger" posed by Russian strength.

Maj. Gen. Bernard A. Schriever made the statement after Defense Secretary Neil H. McElroy acknowledged that Russia would have more intercontinental ballistic missiles than the U.S. in a year or two. But McElroy said this country was not trying to match Russia missile for missile.

Testifying before the combined Senate space-preparedness subcommittee, McElroy said this country was relying on a variety of weapons to deter war. They include not only ICBM's — a squadron will be ready to fire in July — but also manned bombers and missile firing submarines.

Following McElroy to the stand, Schriever said the U.S. had the capacity to increase its ICBM power considerably. He said Soviet missile strength endangered not only the nation's security but its actual survival.

"In view of the very great danger," he said, "we should be building larger ICBM forces. We have the capacity to build more."

Schriever, commander of the Air Force Ballistic Missile Division, urged that the question of a speed-up "be given serious consideration over the next several months."

McElroy denied there was any current gap in ICBM's. He said neither Russia nor the U.S had an "operational" missilee now and this country would have one on the firing line first. But he said Russia would catch up later and forge ahead because the U.S. had other plans.

McElroy said this country's first ICBM squadron would be on the firing line at Vandenberg Air Force Base, near Los Angeles, by July. It will have 10 launchers for hurling Atlas missiles with hydrogen warheads to targets 5,500 miles away. That would include Moscow.

The Senate committee, headed by Senate Democratic leader Lyndon B. Johnson, called McElroy, Gen. Nathan F. Twining, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, and the chiefs of the individual services for an "honest count" on this nation's missile-space strength.

Health Spot Calls Mamie

WASHINGTON — (UPI) — Mrs. Mamie Eisenhower plans to return to Beauty Queen Elizabeth Arden's Maine Chance health resort in Phoenix, Ariz., next month.

A White House spokesman said Thursday the First Lady plans to go to the plush resort by train with her sister, Mrs. G. Gordon Moore.

It was not announced how long Mrs. Eisenhower plans to stay or just when she will go to the exclusive beauty-health resort that charges $600 a week and up.

Mrs. Eisenhower's last trip to "Maine Chance" created a stir in some quarters because President Eisenhower took her there in the Presidential plane Columbine III from Thomasville, Ga. last February.

'Massive Assistance' Bill Opens Civil Rights Battle

15 Liberals Combine In Senate

WASHINGTON — (UPI) — Fifteen liberal senators opened the 1959 congressional civil rights battle Thursday by introducing a bill that would throw the full weight of the government behind the Supreme Court's school integration order.

The bipartisan group, headed by Sen. Paul H. Douglas (D., Ill.), said the legislation would give local communities wishing to integrate the government's "massive assistance" to counter the "massive resistance" thrown up by Southern states.

Douglas and others said the bill was not aimed at punishing the South and did not demand immediate compliance. However, it is far more sweeping than either the "moderate" proposal by Senate Democratic Leader Lyndon B. Johnson or the administration's forthcoming bill.

Douglas, acknowledging the rocky path ahead of the bill, said he expected Southerners to raise a filibuster threat against it. In a caustic reference to Johnson's middle-of-the-road measure, he added:

"Then some ostrich-like proposal, burying its head in the sand so that it cannot see the school problem, offending — and helping—almost no one, will probably be served up as a 'reasonable compromise' . . I hope the Senate will not be misled by these maneuvers."

The liberal version was sponsored by 11 Democrats and four Republicans.

One of them, Sen. Jacob K. Javits (R., N.Y.), said "this opens the civil rights battle in Congress for this session."

The bill would authorize the Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare to offer legal, financial and technical aid in school integration cases. The technical help could amount to as much as $2,500,000 a year for five years.

The secretary also could make grants for school buildings, teachers and community aid where states threaten to close schools to prevent integration. This aid would total 40 million dollars annually for five years.

Javits virtually conceded that the liberal bill had no chance of winning approval from the Senate Judiciary Committee, headed by Sen. James O. Eastland (D., Miss).

Besides Douglas and Javits, other sponsors were Sens. Hubert H. Humphrey (D., Minn.), Thomas C. Hennings Jr. (D., Mo.), Clifford P. Case (R., N.J.), Wayne Morse (D., Ore.), Joseph S. Clark (D., Pa.), Richard L. Neuberger (D., Ore.), Pat McNamara (D., Mich.), William Proxmire (D., Wis.), J. Glenn Beall (R., Md.), Philip A. Hart (D., Mich.), Eugene J. Shift to Miami Denied

Channel 10 Trial Stays in Capital

By DAVID KRASLOW
Of Our Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — Federal Judge Burnita S. Matthews ruled Thursday that the Channel 10 trial of Richard A. Mack and Thurman A. Whiteside can't be moved to Miami.

The trial has been set for Feb. 16, but Mack, former Federal Communications Commission member, and Whiteside, a Miami attorney, are expected to ask for a delay.

Mack and Whiteside had requested that the trial be shifted from here to Miami.

They were indicted by a federal grand jury in Washington last September on charges of conspiring to have Mack sell his vote in the award of the Channel 10 Miami television license.

Mack and Whiteside had claimed that because of the congressional hearings a year ago, and subsequent proceedings in Washington, a prejudicial atmosphere exists in Washington and they cannot obtain a fair trial.

Judge Matthews ruled that a showing of such prejudice "has not been made."

Mack also had asked for a transfer on the grounds that he is destitute and that the expense of a trial in Washington would work a hardship on him. It also was pointed out that virtually all of the potential witnesses reside in Miami.

But Judge Matthews ruled that the Federal Court in Washington had exclusive jurisdiction with respect to one of the three counts in the indictment and that the "interest of justice" would not be served by a partial transfer of the case.

Channel 6 Now Open For Bidding

After almost two years of legal hassles, Miami's television Channel 6 is open to all applicants who wish to bid to operate it.

The U.S. Court of Appeals Friday sustained the Federal Communications Commission, which assigned Channel 6 to the Miami area April 25, 1957.

Gerico Investment Co., which operates WITV on Channel ~~17 in Fort Lauder~~dale, an ultra high frequency station, contested the assignment on the grounds that a fifth VHF channel in Miami modified its license.

Gerico also contended it should have been allowed to operate on Channel 6, instead of being forced to compete for the honor with other applicants.

A similar and earlier appeal by Gerico in connection with Channel 7 in Miami also was denied.

'Max Kept Pulling the Trigger'

(Joe Shapiro, old-time Miami news vendor, saw a flurry of gunplay at Hialeah Race Track Thursday. Here, in his own words, is what happened.)

By JOE SHAPIRO

I was standing about 150 feet away, right near Hialeah's grandstand entrance, when Max Gay started shooting at John Madala.

The first shot made a loud "crack!" I wheeled around to see what it was. The first thing I saw was Max . . . I've known him for years. He was standing up real straight, holding a nickel-plated pistol straight out and pulling the trigger.

It looked just like Max was taking target practice, he was so calm.

Then I saw Mr. Madala. He was spinning around, like he was trying to twist away from the shots.

Mrs. Madala hollered three times — "Don't! Don't! Don't!"

Then he fell down.

Max kept pulling the trigger.

I started running as fast as I could toward Max. I was going to try to take the gun away from him. But Joe Madala — John's brother — got there first.

When I got up close to Max, he had his arms down by his sides. He looked frozen, just like a statue.

Then they came and took Max and Mr. Madala away.

Cuba Orders Peso Curbs

HAVANA, Cuba — (AP) — Cuba's new government Thursday put a $50 limit on the amount of Cuban pesos that individuals can bring into or take out of the country.

Any pesos held by travelers over that limit will be taken away from them by customs officials under the order.

The move was announced by Treasury Minister Rufo Lopez Fresquet. Aides said it was aimed at stopping black market sales of pesos abroad by members of the fallen Batista regime who fled with large sums of money.

Castro To Allot Land

He'll Initiate Cuban Reform

HAVANA, Cuba—(UPI)—Fidel Castro will launch the government's agrarian reform program Monday by personally delivering the first parcels of land to peasants in Oriente Province, cradle of the Cuban revolution, it was announced.

The announcement was made by Carlos Franqui, editor of "Revolucion," official organ of Castro's July 26 revolutionary movement.

Franqui said Castro will appear Monday afternoon at Guayabal de Nagua, near the town of Estrada Palma in Oriente, to address a mass meeting of farm workers and make personal delivery of the first land grants.

The scene will be near Castro's former headquarters in the Sierra Maestra mountains, from which he directed the two year triumphant revolution against former Dictator Fulgencio Batista.

Qualified military sources meanwhile confirmed that revolutionary trials of former Batista officials will be resumed today when Lt. Col. Ricardo Luis Grao will go on trial before a court martial at the hall of justice in the Superior War Tribunal building.

Miamian's Mate Shot Out West

A man identified as Edward Jerome Oestreich of North Miami Beach was hospitalized Thursday in Oklahoma City for what police described as a self-inflicted pistol shot wound.

Officers said he was found wounded in an apartment rented by Miss Frances Keller, an employe of a jewelry store.

Miss Keller told officers the man called her at work and told her to "Listen carefully, I'm tired." She said she then heard a loud noise and a thud.

After telephoning the man's hotel room and getting no answer, Miss Keller said she rushed to her apartment and found Oestreich lying on the floor. Police said Oestreich had been registered at a hotel since Dec. 28 and had been locked out of his room Wednesday night for non-payment of bills.

Miss Keller told officers she and Oestreich were going to be married. She said that he had given her a $1,200 ring but she returned it to him. She could give no reason for the shooting.

Mrs. Oestreich said in Miami she hoped to go west and learn how her husband—missing since Dec. 19—happened to turn up with a gunshot wound in Oklahoma City.

Tip to Teenagers

Abiding Curiosity Mark of Scientist

By PHIL MEYER
Herald Education Writer

Do you find that you're never satisfied with things as they are?

If you are a bright teenager, that's good news, according to William E. Laesch, head of the Florida Test Field of General Motors. You may have the makings of a scientist.

"A scientist is someone who is always looking for ways to make things better," said Laesch, one of three judges in the science division of The Miami Herald's Silver Knight Awards.

The other two judges are Dr. Walter O. Walker, head of research at the University of Miami, and J. Wylly Keck, power plant superintendent for Florida Power and Light Co.

A 1935 graduate of Ponce de Leon High School in Coral Gables, Laesch himself is busy trying to make things better—specifically the materials that go into automobiles.

"What makes material fail!" he asked. "That's my problem. It's something in the atmosphere, and our scientists have been working for 20 to 30 years trying to understand it."

And that brings up the qualities he'll look for in picking the Silver Knight award winner — patience and a practical touch.

"Some college graduates think that just because they have degrees they can sit down and work out the answers on paper," he said. "But it's the laboratory that tells the story —not the office."

To be tops in science, a teenager should start early acquiring as much basic knowledge as possible, Laesch said.

"Then he should work in the practical applications of it. Education provides the tools, but using them is something else.

"Also, he should know what's going on in the world.

William E. Laesch
. . . Silver Knight judge

You see, you can't just sit in a hole and be a scientist. The world is constantly changing and the fellow who just sits in a hole and watches a test tube is going to be left behind.

"He might get to know a lot about what's in that tube, but it won't do him much good if he doesn't even know what's going on in the next room."

A teenager with scientific talent should try to develop an "open and inquiring mind," Laesch said.

"And he should learn not to stop with failure. Too many people get discouraged and give up without realizing that the price of progress is always struggle."

Laesch, who got his degree in chemistry from the University of Miami, sees nothing but expanding opportunity ahead as each scientific discovery opens up new mysteries to be explored.

"We haven't even scratched the surface in scientific development. We're just beginning to open up the atom, the possibilities of solar energy, and outer space.

"The more we find out, the more we learn that we haven't learned."

Top 10 Seniors Sought

Who are Dade County's top teenagers?

With the help of local high schools and a panel of 30 judges, The Miami Herald has launched a search for the 10 outstanding high school seniors.

The winning senior in each of 10 fields from scholarship to sportsmanship will receive a Silver Knight Award, consisting of a trophy and $200 at public ceremonies April 30.

In this and succeeding articles, The Herald is asking a judge in each field about his own teenage days and what he thinks it takes to make a teenager tops.

Robertson Gets Offer For Killarney Estate

DUBLIN, Ireland — (AP) — An Irish-Canadian has offered to buy Killarney from the American who bought it two years ago, it was announced Thursday.

The Irish-Canadian, L. Kelly of Charlettetown, Prince Edward Island, Canada, wrote to the Killarney council asking it to pass on his offer.

Kelly told the council he was prepared to buy the 8,500-acre estate for $200,000. The council decided to pass Kelly's offer on to Florida real estate broker J. Stuart Robertson of Boca Raton who bought the estate in 1956 for a reported $224,000.

In Killarney it was thought unlikely that Robertson would sell. He bought the estate from Mrs. Beatrice Grosvenor, niece of the last Earl of Kenmare.

On a visit to Killarney in September 1956, just after he bought the estate, Robertson said he was prepared to sell it to the people of Killarney if they really wanted it.

But he said that he had already turned down offers from all over the world that would have given him a profit of more than $150,000.

He won a German Lloyd in the nightly contest at the sports car exhibition at Dinner Key. There were 11,090 spectators, bringing the five-day attendance total to 66,744.

The show ends Monday.

National Summary

A weather front stretching from Minnesota into the Texas Panhandle marked the advance edge of colder air overspreading the plains with snow from Montana into parts of Minnesota southward into Kansas.

Colder air will advance through the midwest and Gulf states to western foothills of the Appalachians Friday preceded by occasional rain and warmer temperatures. Snow should taper off to flurries or end in the mid and upper Mississippi Valley but a change from rain to snow or flurries is indicated as cold air lowers mercury levels through Indiana, Ohio and into Kentucky.

Strong winds should cause drifting of heavy snowfall in upper Michigan and thunderstorms may mark the eastern edge of the outbreak from the central Appalachians into Alabama.

Very cold weather will produce sub zero temperatures as far south as Nebraska and readings in the 20s are forecast for Kansas and parts of Oklahoma Friday afternoon as Arctic winds push southward over Texas.

Rains, expected to reach central California, will diminish to showers in the Pacific northwest Friday while occasional snow spreads across the northern and central plateau reaching the Rockies.

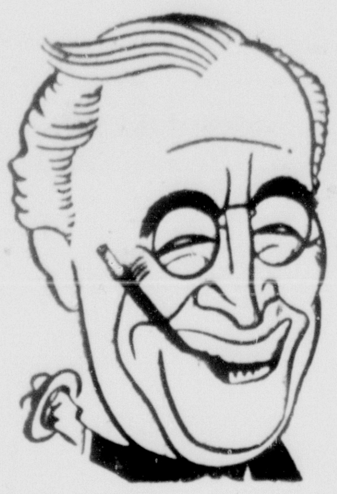
Today's Cele-Birthday

By JOY and JERRY SHAW
Of The Herald Staff



FRANKLIN DELANO ROOSEVELT, ex-President of U.S.; born: Jan. 30, 1882, in Hyde Park, N.Y.; died: April 12, 1945.

* * *

Only president ever to be elected to four terms. Roosevelt led a sheltered, tutored childhood in a wealthy family. He was stricken with polio in 1920. At Warm Springs, Ga., Al Smith persuaded FDR to run for New York's governorship. His chief hobby was sailing and yachting, collecting marine prints and ship models. Roosevelt was president of the Boy Scouts Foundation of New York for 10 years. A weeping nation termed his death "end of an epoch."

Actor Has Pneumonia

SANTA MONICA, Calif. — (AP) — Actor Herbert Marshall, suffering from pneumonia and pleurisy, was reported in fair condition in St. John's Hospital.

His doctor said Marshall was forced to cancel a trip to Ireland because of the illness.

Ike Strips Veil From Foreign Aid Allotments

WASHINGTON —(AP)— President Eisenhower has stripped the secrecy label off the economic aid allotments to individual countries, disclosing that South Korea topped the list with 221 million dollars in the year ended June 30.

Communist-threatened Viet Nam ranked as the second biggest recipient with 184 million dollars. India was awarded $81,400,000, the third biggest amount, but also got an additional 225 million in loans and surplus farm products from other government agencies.

Eisenhower disclosed the country-by-country breakdown in a foreign aid report to Congress. Authorities said it marked the first time since the government launched foreign aid programs in 1948 that individual economic aid allocations were disclosed. Eisenhower gave no reason for ending the secrecy.

The cost of providing guns and military equipment to friendly nations exceeded economic aid during the 12-month period. Military allocations amounted to $1,900,000,000 compared to $1,400,000,000 in economic assistance. There was no breakdown of the amounts of military aid.

The fourth ranking recipient of economic aid was Turkey, a firm anti-Communist ally which is battling critical economic problems.

Turkey was allocated 74½ millions, followed by Pakistan with $65,300,00 and Formosa with 60 millions; others in the top 10 were Spain, $54,600,000; Jordan, $32,600,000; Laos, 31½ millions; and Cambodia 28 millions.

West Berlin was one of the five European areas which continued to receive special American aid, including funds for student housing, medical education and research. Other European recipients were Poland 25 million; Yugoslavia $11,700,000 and Iceland five million.

Middle East areas helped were Greece $15,700,000, Iran, 11½ millions; Israel, $8,900,000; Iraq, $2,700,000; Lebanon $2,600,000 and Afghanistan eight millions. A total of 73 million dollars was allocated to African nations.

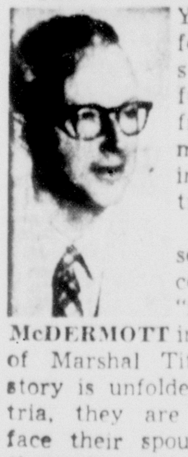
Refugees Present Continuing Problems

Can't Quit Their Wives by Flight To Austria, Yugoslavs Finding Out

Here is the story of Yugoslavs fleeing Marshal Tito's brand of Communism. It was written in Vienna by a Herald reporter who is now back in Miami.

By JOHN B. McDERMOTT
Herald Foreign Affairs Writer

Running from your wife is not a valid reason for being granted political asylum.



McDERMOTT

That is what more than 700 Yugoslavs have found out after successfully crossing from the Communist world into free Austria.

They represent four per cent of the "refugees" fleeing the regime of Marshal Tito. Once their story is unfolded here in Austria, they are sent back to face their spouses or to lose themselves in the mountains of their native land.

Aside from this somewhat comic aspect, the case of the Yugoslav refugees is a continuing problem for the U.N. and the Western allies.

In 1957, there were 15,000 who clandestinely crossed the border into Austria. In 1958, the totals ran about 5,000.

Most of the new arrivals are young men, 45 per cent being between the ages of 20 and 30. Australia has been grabbing these youths off almost as fast as they arrive. Canada also has gotten a few.

The Slavs are considered good workers and are easily integrated to a foreign economy.

The majority of the refugees —79 per cent in fact— give economic reasons in one form or another for their flight.

Until recently, only 13 per cent claimed "political" dissatisfaction as their prime motivation for fleeing the Tito dictatorship.

However, word has gotten back to Yugoslavia that "economic" discontent alone is not acceptable as a valid reason for asylum. Now, most of the new arrivals over the border are claiming political malcontent.

What happens to the hundreds who are sent back after being rejected by the Austrian government and the U.N.?

Many get short jail sentences. Some get by with no punishment.

Tito's police seem to care little whether these people flee the country, and the marshal himself has displayed little interest in them.

HUNTSVILLE, Ala. —(AP)— The first successful test firing of a solid propellant engine in the Army's Pershing missile was announced by Thiokol Chemical Corp.

The Pershing is a ground-to ground missile designed for use as a close support field weapon.

Thiokol is developing the solid propellant propulsion system at the Army's Redstone Ordnance Missile Command here.

Prime contractor on the Pershing system is the Martin Co. of Orlando, Fla.

Refrain At City Hall

Duplicate 'Em, Tax 'Em

INSTEAD of saving money by yielding to Metro, Miami's City Hall appears bent on raising municipal taxes next year.

The excuse is a court order for a lump-sum payment of $1½ million into the police and firemen's pension fund. The City commissioners' idea of the way to get this money is to hike tax bills for property owners inside the city limits by nearly $2 per $1,000 of value next year.

Why not cut city spending by $1½ million? Herald Staff Writer John Morton reported that the commissioners "held out only a slim hope that deep budget slashes elsewhere could offset the boost."

That hope would be far from slim if City Hall were taking advantage of savings possible through Metropolitan Government.

On the contrary, City Hall insists on duplicating services offered by Metro, thus flaunting the will of the people who have voted four times for efficiency and economy through Metro.

TAKE the municipal court, for example. It is costing more than $200,000 a year. Taxpayers inside Miami could save this sum if City Hall would simply turn over enforcement of all its penal ordinances to the new Metropolitan Court. But no—City Hall persists in keeping, even enlarging, its municipal court.

Then there's traffic engineering, an item of nearly $250,000 a year. Metro now has exclusive countywide jurisdiction over traffic under a State Supreme Court ruling. Metro has a traffic engineering staff which came into being when City Traffic Engineer George Kunde and his three assistants left City Hall and moved over to Metro en masse.

Did City Hall go out of the traffic engineering business? It did not. It hired new men, thus creating a duplicative bureaucracy.

Planning costs Miami taxpayers more than $95,000 a year. Yet the Home Rule Charter charges Metro with the duty of planning countywide. Metro's planning director is on the job, and an 11-man Metro planning advisory board has been appointed.

Is City Hall getting out of the planning business? Not on your tintype. City Hall has just hired a new planning director.

●

ADD UP just these three items and you'll get $545,000 a year which could be saved by letting Metro work as the people intended when they voted for it.

And this saving is just the beginning.

Metro is the means decreed by the voters to get rid of waste and overlapping in local government. The City of Miami could not only save money for its taxpayers but also set a good example for the other 25 municipalities here by getting out of the duplicating business.

That Starting (And Only) Team

WHAT WILL be the shape of things if the cold war should suddenly turn torrid?

In two World Wars this country was able to tell its allies, "Hold 'em until we get there." We gained time to train men and to shift from peacetime to wartime production of munitions, ships, tanks and planes. We got there in due course and helped settle things in due course.

That era now belongs to the history books.

Any doubt must have been dispelled by the congressional testimony of Gen. Curtis E. LeMay, Air Force vice chief of staff.

". . . If we get into a general war we will win it or lose it with the people in uniform at the time," he told the House Armed Services Committee.

Gen. LeMay speaks from his long background as chief of the Strategic Air Command and a knowledge of the devastating power of the atom and the breath-taking development of the missile.

Many persons have expressed sobering thoughts about the destruction and the duration of the next and probably last war. None has put it better than the cocky, cigar-smoking general in Air Force blue.

Even if that war never comes — as we all hope — it means we will have to go on being ready for a long, long time.

Man of Today—And Tomorrow

MIAMI welcomes today a man of courage, President Arturo Frondizi of Argentina.

The distinguished visitor, first chief of his nation ever to journey to this country while in office, is in Miami for a rite in which his country has an interest. He will help dedicate Dade County's fine new terminal at Miami International Airport.

Our visitor is in this country to get help for his embattled nation—not government handouts but solid investments by American private capital.

Argentina needs that badly. When Senor Frondizi took office he found that rich land, which some consider more like the United States than any other Latin neighbor, all but bankrupt. The slap-happy reign of Dictator Peron had left the fiscal cupboard bare, industry and means of production disorganized and the people restive.

That dread disease of nations, inflation, had passed into the virulent stage. Spiraling prices had pushed the cost of living up 45 per cent in the past year. Wages, trailing behind like an anemic shadow, had gone up 25 per cent and there were demands from the suffering people for another round of raises that would accelerate the decline of the peso.

WITH determination President Frondizi moved to the attack. In return for $329 million of United States credit—both government and private—he put his country on a regimen of austerity that pinched both purses and stomachs—a step necessary to get the country back on the road to financial health.

Peronistas and Communists rioted. Frondizi's government promptly declared a state of seige and jailed the troublemakers. "We do not like it," said the President forthrightly, "but logically we are forced to take the necessary measures to maintain our democracy."

Not only is our visitor courageous; he is frank. He has spoken out against the lack of understanding of South Americans by North Americans, of his belief that those whose duty it is to inform have fallen down on the job.

"Usually the public of this country (United Stataes) receives information on the negative aspects of our countries," he said. "Newspapers often emphasize great catastrophes, political crises, street riots and sensational news. Preferential coverage is given to the doings of dictators, to strikes, to revolutions."

PRESIDENT Frondizi's indictment is harsh, but there is some truth in what he said. "Good" news, constructive news, seldom makes the big headlines and our visitor's viewpoint may help explain what is currently being recognized as a deterioration in our Latin American relations.

But we like his outspokenness. We are glad he is here to share a proud moment with us. We believe he is the kind of a man to lead his people, with dedication, to the future which one of his countrymen recently described in these words:

"Tomorrow is a day to which the Argentine people can look forward with the optimism of a young and vigorous country."

Footnote

Two-Way Street

SEN. George A. Smathers has come up with another sound suggestion in his tireless campaign to improve relations and increase understanding throughout the Pan American community.

He proposes a parliamentary association of 21 nations to ease trade and travel barriers which will operate in an area where people meet and get to know each other better. It would be made up of members of legislative bodies in the member nations.

Senator Smathers told his colleagues of "strained relations existing today — created solely by unfounded distrust." It is a sad commentary on our Latin American policies that this should be true and that nothing should have been done about it. Encouraging the two-way flow of tourists and goods is one of the best corrective measures. You can't distrust those you do business with, face to face, on a basis of friendship.

Virginia At The Last Ditch

VIRGINIA has reached that last ditch of resistance to court-ordered school desegregation which no law can wholly defend.

Convoking the Legislature of the commonwealth in special session Wednesday, Gov. J. Lindsay Almond conceded as much. For unless court orders are suspended or a legal miracle is contrived over the weekend, some desegregation will go in effect Monday in Norfolk, Arlington and Charlottesville.

Schools presently are closed in two of these areas and thousands of children have gone for months without public instruction.

Every legal effort by Virginia to preserve segregation in the three localities and even — as a last resort — to keep the schools closed has met with frustration. Indeed, the state courts of jurisdiction are now as emphatic as the federal courts.

So the line Virginia held so long is broken.

WHATEVER the Legislature does, apparently it cannot prevent some desegregation in Virginia.

However, this does not mean wholesale desegregation or any immediate change in areas such as the Southside where the racial ratio is heavily Negro. It cannot be pointed out too often that the U.S. Supreme Court itself put the burden of school entry on the Negro plaintiffs; that desegregation is not automatic through a whole state school system unless it is done voluntarily. The only school entry case in southern and heavily-Negro areas of Virginia is the Prince Edward County case, which the plaintiffs wisely have not pressed.

Undoubtedly some further defenses will be thrown up by the Legislature in an effort to "protect" all these areas. Some may survive court tests. Others will merely buy time and permit a slow evolution. In fact, the U.S. Supreme Court in its Alabama pupil placement decision seemed to grant such time while holding to first principles.

The significant thing is that Virginia's legal struggle has not been waged outside the law. Nor has it been carried to the ridiculous lengths practiced or pending elsewhere in a beleaguered South.

Behind The Front Page

Ready For Gubernatorial Sweepstakes!

By JOHN PENNEKAMP

WHEN FLORIDA'S Legislature meets in April it will be confronted with a lot of problems which many members wish would go away and which others will embrace.

Segregation, for instance.

A higher sales tax.

An increase in the gasoline tax.

The intangible tax.

Reapportionment.

Constitutional revision.

The list lengthens each day, and overriding all is an ambition that rests strongly with many a member of the House and Senate.

That is that somewhere he will strike a spark that will light the way to the governorship in next year's election.

That ambition may influence his conduct — politics being what it is — on any one or several of the vexing questions.

★ ★ ★

NO MAN in the Legislature will be free of a searching observation of his every move, once he emerges as likely to run.

For, outside the chambers there are others all holding the same ambition.

Some of these are active and impatient; others hopeful and still others ready if there is the faintest knocking of old OP on their door.

It would be no difficult trick to add up 36 gubernatorial prospects, unwilling, willing, and panting.

Yet the list, except for one or two is "unannounced," generally awaiting "what happens at the session."

★ ★ ★

PROBABLY the surest starter as of now is C. Farris Bryant, Ocala, attorney and former Speaker of the House. At the same time he wears a shopworn candidate's look.

He long has wanted to be governor, but his footwork in that direction has left him with an inconsistent complexion.

As Speaker of the House in 1953 he appointed men unfriendly to the turnpike as chairmen of two key committees. Later, when observers detected strong favorable public opinion for the toll road, Bryant became its champion.

Pennekamp

However, the fact that it is bob-tailed instead of going all the way to Georgia can be blamed on the maneuvering.

A strong supporter of Gov. LeRoy Collins' program in 1956, Bryant broke with the governor on the last day of the session to "sound off" as an opponent for the nomination in the approaching election.

During the campaign he got "half way out of the race" by withdrawing for lack of funds only to return a few days later as the "poor man's candidate."

He got 110,469 of the 840,083 votes cast while Collins won in the primary with 434,274, a majority.

★ ★ ★

SOME SEE two gubernatorial potentials on the Supreme Court: Stephen C. O'Connell, highly regarded, a Collins' appointee from Fort Lauderdale, and B. K. Roberts, who came to the bench as a Fuller Warren appointee from Tallahassee.

Neither man has committed himself.

O'Connell's name has been so frequently mentioned, however, that there is speculation that he make an announcement "to clear the air."

Roberts, who is wealthy and personable, has an inherent love for politics, and is a natural for mention when any race of this character evolves.

★ ★ ★

WHEN YOU TRAVEL around the state you find a wholesome respect for South Florida's voting strength.

"What candidate down there can unite the vote?" you are asked. One who can, you are told, will be "a shoo in."

Discussed are Alan Boyd, Dade County attorney named by Collins to the Railroad and Public Utilities Commission, of which he is chairman.

Also, Sen. Joe Eaton, who will be closely watched during this session, although I am inclined to think that his interest leans toward the judiciary. He is a former Circuit judge.

And Rep. W. C. Herrell, handsome, articulate and respected member of Dade County's House delegation.

Others from these parts are John McCarty of Fort Pierce, now a Circuit judge and brother of the late Gov. Dan McCarty; Sen. Fred Dickinson of Palm Beach, and Ted David of Hollywood, former Speaker of the House.

★ ★ ★

BRAILEY ODHAM, recently resigned as chairman of the Milk Commission, is not to be discounted.

Like Bryant "he has been there before," but leaves the impression of being much less an opportunist.

In an electrifying campaign which included first use here of the talkathon, he finished second to McCarty, 361,427 to 232,565 in the primary of 1952, losing in the election 384,200 to 336,716.

Now wealthy (an oil distributor in Sanford and [illegible] housing builder throughout Central Florida) he has said "to say that I am considering running would be an honest statement of my feeling in the matter."

Tom Beasley, who, too, has long held an ambition to be governor could use this session, when he will be Speaker a second time (first in 1947) as a springboard.

He's a dairyman from DeFuniak Springs and would have to overcome, in populous areas, his identification with the small-county bloc.

★ ★ ★

SOME DECISIONS may depend, too, on which of the "eligible" cousins, Sen. Verle Pope of St. Augustine and Sen. Doyle Carlton Jr. of Hardee County, if either, decides to go.

It is generally agreed that they will not run in the same race.

Carlton, son of a former governor, is in the unusual position of not being from a so-called big county, yet having considerable acceptance in them.

Like Pope, prosperous insurance man and land owner, who was in Miami this week, Carlton is a leader of the Senate's "White Knights."

★ ★ ★

ALSO HAVING a high priority in the pre-session speculation is Millard Caldwell, Florida's post-war governor, who might like to be the second governor in history to serve two full terms.

Florida governors cannot succeed themselves and only one, William D. Bloxham (1881-85 and 1897-1901), ever won in a return effort.

Collins is Florida's only six-year governor, having served two years of McCarty's unexpired term and being elected to a full term in 1954.

Incidentally, Collins' performance in this session, (the honeymoon being over), may have an effect on candidate decisions.

Caldwell has indicated his conduct may rest on who gets into the race. An acceptable candidate — such as Clarence Gay, Orlando banker who was state comptroller when Caldwell was governor, would fit that bill.

★ ★ ★

TYPICAL of a whole new area of potential candidates is Haydon Burns, mayor of Jacksonville.

These are the men who have not been in public life at the state level but who feel that their local performance has given them vaulting strength. Burns is a highly controversial figure in his home city and might have trouble aligning divergent political factions in the state.

However, he's astute and will be an interesting subject for observation until the session ends, which, as of now, amounts to the "They're off" shout at the horse race track.

From Burns' home town comes Fred Kent, attorney, theater owner, civic leader and former chairman of the Board of Control, which supervises the state's institutions of higher learning.

Kent likes the idea of running, but has misgivings. As attorney for the duPont Florida interests he'd be termed a "big business" candidate.

Yet Collins, whose Tallahassee law firm represented "big business," effectively pointed out in his campaign that big business employs competent men so why shouldn't the voters?

Kent would have the endorsement of segregationists not ready to go as far as Tampa's Sumter L. Lowry.

Always in the background of gubernatorial possibilities since he went to Tallahassee as attorney general is Richard W. Ervin. He hasn't said anything, and probably won't until and unless he decides to run.

Best guess now is that he likes the comfort of his present office and the respect in which he is held in it.

★ ★ ★

THERE'S A LOT of talk about "trades" throughout the state, but most of these are pipe dreams, the things that evolve after a comfortable session of drinking at a camp, a poker game, a fishing trip — the things which are Florida's political equivalents to a smoke-filled room.

Thus, one says that Caldwell would like to be a member of the Supreme Court (which is possible) and that his support might be won in a trade with such a terminal.

The trade possibility puts that one out the window for anybody who knows Caldwell.

Further, it implies a political relationship between Caldwell and Collins, who would do the appointing. I've never detected too much friendship, politically, between the two men.

In addition to which the likelihood of Collins holding still for that kind of trading is equally far-fetched.

★ ★ ★

MAYBE, from the standpoint of importance, this piece should have begun with the mention of money.

Cecil Webb of Tampa, former State Road Department member and one of Florida's wealthiest men (Dixie Lily products), estimates it will take $1.5 million for a winning gubernatorial campaign.

He may be right. The state is big, distances are great and it takes a lot of doing and spending to get around and to be seen and heard.

So, maybe, when the lists are closed, it will be significant to determine which candidate, or candidates, can come up with a winning purse.

Nor does that necessarily sound a suspicious note.

General Lowry, for instance, whose wealth matches Webb's, could conceivably tap that kind of financial support should segregation (of which he probably is the South's most intense proponent) remain a state issue.

He stands next to Bryant, as of now, in the parade to the post. Chances are, though, that his oneness of purpose will stand in his way.

ANOTHER financial opportunity might await the genius who solves the intangible tax situation.

The tax (two mills on the dollar), which raised $18,788,072 last year is "more trouble than it's worth" it is argued. It has kept some wealthy men from establishing residence in the state because they "don't want their assets to be publicly displayed."

"Why penalize them," ask the tax's opponents, "when we are sure that much of their money will be invested in the state? The tax is a short-sighted, self-defeating policy."

Against which stand the pressures:

From fee officers who receive a percentage for assessing and collecting on the intangibles.

From beneficiaries of state and county employes' retirement funds which have matching requirements charged to the intangible tax.

From such patronage as rests with supplying of forms, books and records which also are paid for before the balance reaches the general fund.

"The best way to knock it out," says one lobbyist, "is to find another source to produce the same revenue."

Which isn't easy.

Why Not Leave Hump Alone?

Editor The Herald: As one who worked hard over the years for Metropolitan government I sincerely urge more tolerance on the part of the commissioners for the county manager and his staff who, I am convinced, are trying to do a superhuman job professionally and carefully and with genuine regard for the community.

The constant petty bickering and unbecoming struggle for political power within the commission is gravely disappointing and not to the best interests of the community.

Eighteen months is a very short time in the projected life of our new Metropolitan government and no solid foundation can be laid with haste.

There is certainly no one on the local scene who even approaches County Manager Campbell in qualifications and it would be to the eternal shame of the present county commission should they not allow him to function in an orderly manner.

Not Judged On Hospitality

Editor The Herald: Fred Sparks' highly commendable column surely demonstrates that everyone did not succumb to the "Let's be kind to Mikoyan" campaign now in effect.

From miscellaneous sources came loud comments on how we must uphold the reputation of good old American hospitality even when it comes to entertaining a member of the Bolshevik camp.

As individuals, families, groups and nations, we are judged not chiefly by the caliber of our hospitality, but by those to whom we are hospitable. It simply boils down to this: Do honest-to-goodness Americans really approve of the social and political principles for which Mikoyan stands? I think not, and the degree of hospitality shown Mikoyan should have been in inverse proportion to the Americanism of those offering it.

Strictly Personal

Institution More Than Men

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

"AN INSTITUTION," wrote Emerson, "is the lengthened shadow of man." Like much of Emerson, this is a brilliant half-truth that obscures the other half.

Harris

An institution is also greater that the sum of the men who make it up. Add together, Smith, Jones and Robinson, and you get the SJR Company — but you also get a sum larger than the individuals.

Failing to recognize this fact has puzzled many workers in successful institutions. They look around them and wonder how the company does so well — Smith drinks, Jones is not precisely truthful, and Robinson spends half the day at the club.

Nobody seems to be very wise, or very knowing, or terribly efficient; and yet the firm prospers, the doors open every morning, the books balance, the dividends are paid, and the stockholders rejoice.

There is in chemistry a thing called synergism. This rule states that the combined action of several elements, taken together, is greater than the sum of all of them taken separately.

★ ★ ★

IF, FOR instance, you swallow the ingredients of a cough mixture at half-hour intervals, you lose the potency that is present in the mixture itself. Two and two add up to much more than four.

This rule also holds true in the chemistry of human interactions. The combination of Smith, Jones and Robinson produces a result that could not be predicted if you simply analyzed each of these men as an individual.

Young people, for instance, are often critical of the workings of the institutions employing them. The president seems a dolt, the vice-president a popinjay, the office manager a dreary robot. It appears nothing less than a miracle that the company staggers along from day to day.

★ ★ ★

YET, EVEN when these harsh judgments are true (and young impatient minds tend to exaggerate the stupidities of their elders), the dolt and the popinjay and the robot work synergistically together, and the daily product is a magical piece of human alchemy, transforming lead into gold.

Latin Leader to Visit Miami

Argentina's Frondizi Strikes Boldly to Help His Country

Argentina's president, Dr. Arturo Frondizi, arrives here tonight for a number of events including the Sunday dedication of Miami's new airport terminal building. This article gives an insight to his background and his objectives for his country.

By PETER LISAGOR
Miami Herald-Chicago News Wire

WASHINGTON—Dr. Arturo Frondizi, the Argentine president who is visiting the U.S., epitomizes a growing new school of Latin American leader.

LISAGOR

A lean, austere, scholarly man, he lacks the passion and the flair of the Perons, Batistas, Somozas, members of a vanishing breed of army spawned dictators.

The 50-year-old Frondizi is a "man of the mind," cut from the same cloth as Colombia's Alberto Lieras and Venezuela's Romulo Betancourt.

But this doesn't mean that he's a stranger to the rough and tumble of Argentine politics. He earned his credentials as a violent foe of the Peron dictatorship and did time in jail for it.

The "doctor" he uses represents a doctorate of law in economics he obtained at the University of Buenos Aires, from which he graduated at the top of his class in 1929.

* * *

FRONDIZI CAME FROM an Argentine-Italian family of 14 children. He was the eighth of nine sons. His father was a public works contractor who helped open Argentina's northeast territories.

As a lawyer and economist, he moved from a precinct worker for the radical party to a key position as researcher, speech writer and theorist.

During the Peron era, he courted trouble as a champion of civil liberties.

Though a quiet, ascetic-looking man, Frondizi was aggressive enough to announce his presidential ambitions in 1956, a year before any other political leader dared to put himself out in front.

Although Peron had departed, this took some moxie. The Peronistas were still active and thirsting for political victims.

* * *

FRONDIZI SHOWED unexpected skill in winning the nomination of the Intransigent radicals after the radical party began to come apart in factional disputes.

He campaigned strenuously at the grassroots. He was not the glad-handing or tub-thumping type, but he won support of leftist and rightist groups. In the end, Peronistas supported him.

Arturo Frondizi

Boldly, Frondizi has reversed traditional Argentine policies which prevented contracts with foreign companies to help develop the country's oil resources. Many see this as the start of a revolutionary trend in other Latin American countries.

He has vigorously installed an austerity program in his country in an effort to check a ruinous inflation, with wage-price controls, reduction in government employes, an end to farm export subsidies.

It is a program which has caused a pinch among workers, but Frondizi is making it stick so far.

For his pains, he has succeeded in obtaining 325 million dollars in credits from U.S. public and private banking institutions—a fact not likely to be lost on other countries south of the border suffering from similar economic ills.

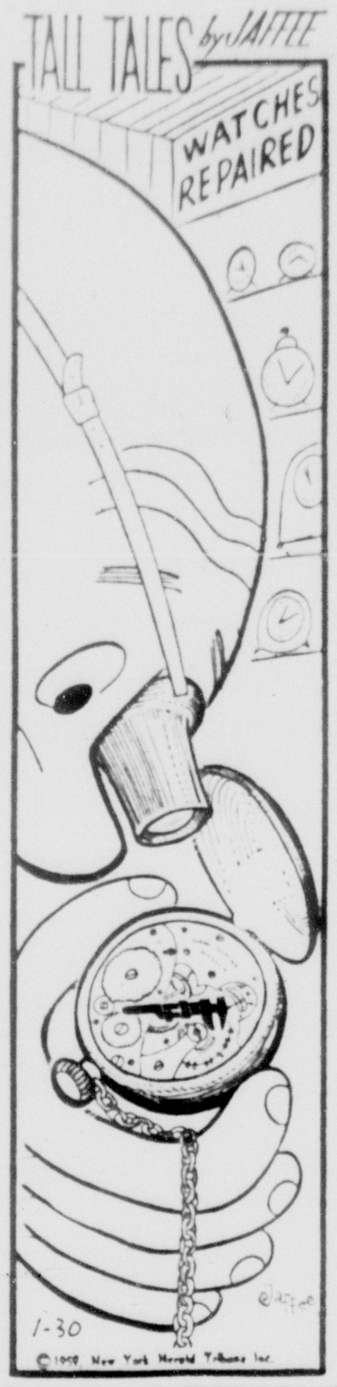
* * *

FRONDIZI IS DESCRIBED here as a devoted family man, being especially attached to his only daughter, "Elenita," who is studying law and philosophy at the University in Buenos Aires.

The fact that he did not bring his daughter to the United States with him is attributed to his desire to practice austerity within the family.

Frondizi received full State treatment here, including living in President Eisenhower's guest house, addressing Congress, dining at the White House.

His visit is the first ever made to this country by an Argentine president, although he has been here before as a private citizen.



Dogs Forget Barriers That Men Can't Forget

By JIM BISHOP

ROCKY HAS A NEW PLAYMATE. His name is Duke. Rocky would have liked it if the new mutt's name had been Duchess, but he is going to have to reconcile himself to the fact that this is a house of bachelors—worse luck.

If it's good enough for me, it's good enough for him.

BISHOP

Besides, at his age I was more interested in a playpen than a playmate.

Rocky has a fawn-colored neck and breast and the disposition of a British butler under sedation. He is cool and correct at all times and, if he barks when a stranger crosses the threshold, he does it once, with no feeling, and then wags his tail in apology.

On the rare occasions when he has done something wrong, Rocky died of shame before anyone accused him.

When playtime comes, he goes out in the backyard, stands looking at the river for a moment, says to himself: "This is the time for my exercise," jumps straight up and down three times, and comes back into the house.

* * *

THAT'S WHY WE GOT Duke. This dog is one year old and is a German Shepherd who could pass as Rocky's brother. Same pointed black ears; same fawn on the neck and legs, same phony intelligent expression.

He is taller and thinner than Rocky and he has the disposition of a hysterical ballerina who has just heard the elastic band on her panties snap.

Duke arrived straining on a leash. Rocky was in the living room, got to his feet, and walked toward Duke with tail wagging. Duke froze, like a bad guy who feels the marshal's gun in his back.

Rocky threw his head up happily, sniffed fore and aft at the new dog, and stamped his snowshoe feet in ecstasy.

Duke looked around and shrugged. "This is his house," he said. "If he doesn't tear me to ribbons, he's nuts. And if he's crazy, then I might as well show him who's boss right now."

So, with no permission from the copyright owner, Duke made a tour of the premises and found Rocky's dish. It had some dog food in it, so Duke went to work.

Rocky stood by, still wagging the tail, a little more slowly. To make the welcome complete, Rocky decided to eat out of the same dish.

He got within one step of it when Duke lifted his head full of food, bared his fangs, and growled in a low A-flat.

I never saw Rocky move backward so fast. He almost climbed a wall tail first. It required two weeks, some friendly conversation, and a few raps on the hind quarters to show Duke that good manners are preferable to bad ones.

* * *

NOW THEY PLAY WELL together; they eat out of the same dish; they sleep together (I think of bookends when they do this), and they romp all over the back yard together.

For a time, Duke made a few kissing gestures toward Rocky, but a couple of smart raps in the rumble seat showed him that he had flunked in biology.

At play, they act like killers. They snarl, dive for each other's throats, and roll over and over on the flagstones in a tangle of black fur.

Each now trusts the other implicitly. Duke follows Rocky's lead.

Both are cowards. One harsh word and they are quivering wrecks. However, no one knows this but Gayle and me.

We tell our friends that the dogs are as ferocious as tigers, and that they snap the leg bones of tradesmen just for after-dinner kicks.

You should see them with my twin granddaughters. When all four study the others, it is difficult to tell who is mixed up . . .

QUESTION: What do we mean by MEALY-MOUTHED?—T. B. B.

ANSWER: The expression may mean just what it seems to mean—that is, speaking so softly that the mouth seems filled with powdered wheat meal. (One has to emphasize WHEAT meal, because, to an American, MEAL alone is more likely to mean corn meal. But corn meal was unknown when the phrase came into the language. And corn meal is coarse and gritty, wholly unsuited to the metaphor.)

Many students of language support a more interesting explanation of the expression. They say that it was originally MEAL-MOUTHED and that the MEAL- was the Latin MEL (French MIEL), honey. So that a mealy-mouthed person was a honey-mouthed person. And so, of course, he usually is to the person spoken to. It's only the resentful bystander who scorns him as MEALY-MOUTHED because he won't voice the bystander's own resentments.

President Eisenhower Said

Moderate Government Is Goal

In view of the importance of issues discussed by President Eisenhower at his Wednesday press conference, The Herald again prints some of the questions and answers heard there.

Q. (Marvin L. Arrowsmith, Associated Press) Mr. President, how do you feel about the call at Des Moines and substance last week by the Republican campaign chairman in Congress for you, yourself, to take a more decisive and a more active role in restoring that hibernating elephant you mentioned?

THE PRESIDENT: I believe that I have stayed right persistent in my support for what I believe to be moderate government in this country.

I believe that most Republicans understand this, know exactly what I mean, and support it.

Q. (Merriman Smith, United Press International) Mr. President, wide circulation, sir, is being given today to a report that Chief Justice Warren has communicated to friends his feeling that your stand on school desegregation is too indecisive. The Chief Justice is represented this morning as being pained by what was described as your failure to take forceful action.

THE PRESIDENT: Well, so far as I am concerned here is some irresponsible reporting.

I have told you people a dozen times or certainly frequently, exactly what I feel about a President commenting publicly upon decisions of the Supreme Court.

Q. (Peter Lisagor, Miami Herald-Chicago Daily News) Mr. President, when Mr. Mikoyan was here, he made the point that he seemed to feel that there were divisions between the American people, or those he talked to, and Government policies in the cold war.

He also made this point when he got back to Moscow.

I wonder if you could tell us whether you have had any personal reflections from friends in private life who may have talked with Mr. Mikoyan, that the United States Government might make agreements with Russia if it had a less rigid position.

THE PRESIDENT: No, no, I never did. What I did, and I think I reported this to you once before; possibly not; I had reports from friends around the country that called me up, one of them in California, I recall, saying it was obvious there was an attempt on the part of Mr. Mikoyan to make this interpretation, that the people in the Government were particularly divided on certain points, and might be Berlin or some other question.

Now, because of these reports, they had, in certain instances, these friends made a special point of meetings—a meeting with Mr. Mikoyan during the course of the evening, and asserting their belief that the United States, in its firmness in refusing to retreat a single inch from its rights and from its obligations and responsibility, that all of us were one; it didn't make any difference whether it was in Government or civil life.

Now, I certainly tried to make that clear myself.

Q. (Frank van der Linden, Nashville Banner) Sir, the Alaska Statehood Bill gives the new State of Alaska perpetual control over its local school system.

A constitutional amendment was introduced yesterday to give that same kind of local control over the schools to every state. Now, would you be in favor of Congress submitting such a constitutional amendment to the states?

THE PRESIDENT: Well, you are opening a question, a matter that I have not even heard about. I didn't know that there was any difference in the responsibility and authority of the new State of Alaska as compared to other states.

And, I certainly would not make a comment on such a serious thing as substituting or as approving, or let us say favoring, because I wouldn't have any authority to approve, favoring a public constitutional amendment until I had studied and looked at it.

Q. (Robert G. Spivack, New York Post) I would like to ask you a question about your tactics in the fight against inflation. Last—well, on February 7, 1957, the New York Times reported as follows:

"President Eisenhower warned that the Government would have to impose price and wage controls unless business and labor used restraint to reinforce the Government's efforts to curb inflation."

Now, what I would like to know is why, or do you have any reason to feel that your repetition of this warning last week would be more effective now than it was then?

THE PRESIDENT: I say only this: I, and this, of course, we don't have the whole context of the statement—certainly my meaning has been made clear time and time again. If we do not fight inflation effectively, eventually the people of this country are going to demand action that would be, in my opinion, antithetical to the whole concept of a true, free competitive enterprise. And when that happens, I think we have really gone quite a step backward, and I hope that it never will happen.

It Was Nothing, Ike, Beside F.D.R. Barbs

By EDWIN A. LAHEY
Of Our Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON—Memo to President Eisenhower:

Pal, you certainly let yourself get suckered into blowing your lid at Wednesday's press conference.

You shouldn't have made a federal case about the "irresponsible reporting" of the Chief Justice Warren business.

Suppose Warren did say between courses at dinner some night that you were a little slow on the uptake in the school integration crisis?

Brother, this is nothing.

You should hear the way the Georgetown, straight-stem-pipe set cuts you up at every cocktail party or dinner.

You would think that the chief justice, even if he did criticize the President who put him on the payroll, was pretty mild.

They may love you out in the country, Mr. President, but in Washington it's the fashion to make jokes ridiculing you. It's always been that way.

Give thanks at least that they don't hate you, the way they used to hate F.D.R.

Your Obedient Servant,
E.A.L.

Joe Martin Keeps His Staff

Miami Herald-Chicago News Wire

WASHINGTON—Here is the real reason why Rep. Joe Martin of Massachusetts was voted $26,000 by Congress to pay for extra office help after he was deposed as the Republican leader of the House:

Rep. Halleck of Indiana, who succeeded Martin as leader in an insurgent revolt, wanted to put together his own staff instead of inheriting one loyal to the man he had just licked.

But at the same time he did not want to be the cause of Martin's old staff getting the gate.

So the solution was devised of having Congress vote the necessary funds for Martin to have a staff as before—and he was able to keep his old team, even though he no longer had the same job to keep them busy.

Berlin Reds Earning Less

BONN, GERMANY—Personal incomes in the Communist-controlled portion of Germany rose 49 per cent between 1950 and 1957, according to a new study by a research group in Berlin.

In the similar period in West Germany the increase was more than 70 per cent.

The same study says that nominal incomes in the Communist area are 89 per cent of those in West Germany. This doesn't take into account the higher purchasing power of the West German currency.

It's Far Cry From 'I Like Ike' Days

By PETER LISAGOR
Miami Herald-Chicago News Wire

WASHINGTON — There must be days when President Eisenhower wonders if anybody likes him anymore.

For a man who has feasted on acclaim — whose campaign music was a warm "I Like Ike" serenade — the President must feel like a prisoner of anything but love in the isolation of the White House today.

He was confronted at his latest news conference with a medley of complaint and disaffection so different from the siren songs of a few years back.

He dismissed the story of a coolness between him and Chief Justice Earl Warren as "irresponsible reporting."

* * *

IT WAS HARDER for him to discount questions about criticism from fellow Republicans at a GOP national committee meeting at Des Moines, Iowa, last week.

At one point, he grew downright pensive.

"You know," he said, "it's an odd thing — but — these criticisms and how they get publicized and widespread."

The sentence didn't scan, but the President's demeanor bespoke volumes of puzzlement and regret that anyone would doubt his leadership or seriously believe that he is not accessible to GOP politicians.

* * *

THE PRESIDENT never has liked the give-and-take of politics. And during the Sherman Adams regime as presidential assistant, a common complaint of Midwest Republicans, to cite one example, was that they were walled away from contact with Ike.

But the President sounded as though the White House doors always have been flung wide open for any good party man who wanted to take advantage of it.

One of the accepted traits of the President in this capital is that he wants to be liked, he thrives on the esteem of others.

Those who have watched him during a campaign have been struck by his almost childlike response of joy to approbation and admiration.

* * *

ODDLY enough, the President is taking his lumps from conservative Republicans.

They talk as politicians who want the President to get out and slug a little in behalf of the party. Ike's not the type.

It's a far cry from the "I Like Ike" days — and for a man who wants to get along, it must be a little tough to take. But the President has got nearly two more years in which to get used to it.

IT PAYS TO BE HONEST ABOUT PARKING TICKETS
STEWART

When Jim Golike found a one-dollar parking ticket under his windshield wiper, he took it off, stuffed it in his coat pocket and forgot about it.

For Golike, 28, of 150 Ocean Dr., Miami Beach, it was a bad mistake.

He was driving a car with a California license plate: LA C543.

The Miami Beach Traffic Violations Bueau didn't know who LA C543 was. Then four more dollar tickets showed up for the same license number.

So off went a routine inquiry to California to find out who the car belonged to.

Back came the reply from South Gate, Calif.: "Hold car owner. Wanted here for October 1957 charge of embezzlement of car."

"It's all a mistake," said Golike Wednesday from his jail cell. "It's just a mix-up. I guess maybe I should have paid those parking tickets."

Wartime Deserter Given Six Months

SAN FRANCISCO — (AP) — "I'm thrilled — just thrilled," exclaimed the lanky Texan convicted of wartime desertion from the Navy. The court-martial had just sentenced him—leniently—to six months of hard labor.

He could have been sentenced to life imprisonment.

Calton Vance Mings, 38, formerly of Swenson, Tex., was arrested at a Yuba City, Calif., farm labor camp after being a fugitive for 13½ years. He had acquired a wife and three children under the name of Carl Watson.

—Associated Press Wirephoto

Happy Couple

. . . Mr. and Mrs. C.V. Mings

Because of extenuating circumstances, the Navy ruled out the possibility of the death penalty — usually applicable in wartime desertion. And the five-member Navy Court apparently was impressed by the character testimony.

"I was really scared," Mings said after the verdict. "I thought this is what comes from being young, from drinking and from poor judgment. I don't know how I'm going to feel when I walk out free after the strain of so many years."

He testified he missed his ship in May, 1945 because he had been on a drinking spree.

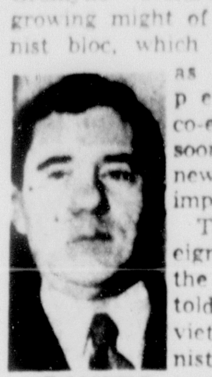
Red Might Will Soon Make War 'Impossible' – Gromyko



GROMYKO

MOSCOW — (AP) — Andrei Gromyko declared Thursday growing might of the Communist bloc, which he described as dedicated to peaceful co-existence, will soon make a new world war impossible.

The Soviet foreign minister at the same time told the 21st Soviet Communist Party Congress that arming of West Germany with atomic weapons was a roadway to war.

"The distance to the most remote part of West Germany is much closer to us than the moon," Gromyko warned the West in an obvious reference to Soviet rocket power.

U. S. Secretary of State John Foster Dulles and Chancellor Konrad Adenauer of the Bonn republic were singled out for attack on the German question.

"Dulles found nothing better to do at his news conference of two days ago than again to threaten war," Gromyko said. "But he cannot threaten the Soviet Union because there can be only one outcome to war—the defeat of the aggressor, a defeat which will be unparalleled in history."

Gromyko said the most important question today is conclusion of a peace treaty with Germany and liquidation of the American, British and French occupation of West Berlin, which Premier Khrushchev proposes to turn into a neutralized free city.

"Now this is how the question stands today: Either arming of the (West German) Bundeswehr with atomic weapons, which means the road to unleashing a new war, or solution of the German question through conclusion of a treaty of peace," he said.

11-Year-Old Boy Admits Starting Fire

1,600 Students Flee Blaze In Newark School Building

NEWARK, N. J. —(AP)— An auditorium fire forced 1,600 pupils to evacuate the Bergen Street School Thursday. An 11-year-old boy, expelled last week, admitted setting the blaze.

Arson squad detectives said the youngster, whose name was withheld, sneaked into the building and ignited curtains on the stage. They quoted him as saying he "wanted to get even with the teachers."

No formal charges were made against the lad immediately.

Police said the boy was expelled last Thursday for trying to set fire to the hair of a girl in his fifth grade class.

The same girl saw him set the fire Thursday morning and told police, who picked him up at his home an hour after the flames were extinguished.

The boy at first denied setting the fire. In his pocket police found a note addressed to Mrs. Louise K. Hess, a vice principal. It said in part:

"I am going to burn the school down. You will be shot down unless you put up $20."

The note was signed "Yours very very truly," with the boy's name. Police said the youngster had been in trouble before for starting a fire in his own home.

No one was injured in the blaze at the school, which was put out in 30 minutes.

Smoother Ride

CLIFTON FORGE, Va. —(AP)— The Chesapeake and Ohio Railway is trying a new method of rail welding developed in France which it expects will lower maintenance and provide a smoother ride on "ribbons of steel." It is called alumino-thermique rail welding and engineers say it can be applied to old track in place.

Legislators to Probe Evasion of 3-Bid Law

By JOHN L. BOYLES
Capitol Bureau Chief

TALLAHASSEE — A legislative investigation will attempt to find out if some state agencies and printers are giving only token recognition to a law requiring that at least three bids be invited for printing jobs.

One purchasing official for a large state agency, who declined to be quoted by name, said he was approached by an agent for an unidentified company about doing the agency's printing.

He said he told the salesman he would call for bids on some envelopes and was admonished, "Don'y worry about that. I'll bring three bids with me when I bring the envelopes.

State Rep. John E. Mathews Jr. of Jacksonville said he will look into the complaint of one printer who reported, "We had an awfully hard time getting on some of the invitation-to-bid lists. People just give us the fishy eye and that is the last we hear."

Mathews has asked state agencies to supply him with full information on all printing costs, and how bids are received. He believes state printing should be handled like other services — under the state's central purchasing system.

A big variance in printing costs is pointed up in contrasting the purchase of letter heads by the Railroad and Public Utilities Commission and the State Beverage Department.

The Railroad Commission paid $16 a thousand for letterheads in a 20,000 order. The three bids were: Rose Printing Co., Tallahassee, low at $16; Record-Press of St. Augustine, second low at $16.85, and Buckley-Newman of Tallahassee, third at $17.50

Beverage Department bids were opened to wide competitive bidding. The Suwannee Democrat of Live Oak submitted the low bid of $8.15 a thousand for an order of 25,000.

Charles Rosenberg, president of Rose and whose other interests comprise the state's largest printing organization, was one of the chief foes of Mathews' attempt to put printing under central purchasing two years ago.

The Railroad Commission letterhead job was sought by both Rose Printing Co. and Record Press, Inc. of St. Augustine.

Rosenberg, is not shown among officers of the Record-Press but Charles Ausley, his lawyer and who is listed in the Secretary of State's office as vice president of Rose, is shown as chairman of the board of the St. Augustine firm.

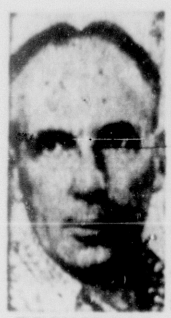
Opinions Firmly Fixed in Canal Feud

(Last of two articles)

By STEVE TRUMBULL
Herald Staff Writer

FORT PIERCE — Can any compromise come in the hot feud now on between this county of St. Lucie and adjoining Martin County over water control plans for their respective back countries?



TRUMBULL

Is there a "Right" side and a wrong" side, or is it truly a two-sided question.

Interviewing everyone who has a firmly fixed opinion would have meant practically the combined populations of both counties. That being a slightly awkward procedure with newspaper space limitations, we decided to spend our time with two leaders from each camp.

These four are men we have known and respected over a period of years, and whose personal integrity we never have questioned.

For the Fort Pierce viewpoint, and the viewpoint of the Central and Southern Florida Flood Control District, we went to David Click of Clewiston, chairman of the district, and Brian McCarty of this city, vice chairman and brother of the late Gov. Dan McCarty.

* * *

FOR THE VIEWS of the opposing Martin County camp we went to Ernie Lyons, longtime and respected editor of the Stuart News, and Capt. Bruce Leighton, USN (ret), now a large scale farmer in Martin County. He is chairman of the Martin County Water Conservation committee.

Click and McCarty hedged not at all in admitting that — in time of a peak flood — two of the three canals to be widened each could dump as much as 5,000 cubic feet per second of water into the North fork of the St. Lucie river behind Stuart. That's the nub of the Stuart objection.

"But," said Click, "objectors in Martin County insist on ignoring the fact that a wide and deep canal, with the proper control structures that these canals will have, can be far less injurious in the matter of silt than a narrow and clogged canal.

* * *

"THEY SAY WE should take a greater share of the Belcher canal out through Fort Pierce. Our engineers tell us this is impossible with the contours of the affected area. We can't run it uphill.

"This plan was part of the original, overall plan for the 17-county project. It has long been known. It has been aired in public hearings long ago. U. S. Army Engineers have approved it. Congress has approved it, and the money has been appropriated. We can do nothing but go ahead, or bog down the entire plan."

Captain Leighton, in our session at his farm west of Stuart, produced copies of elevation maps to argue the point that the Belcher canal could not take more of the controversial water.

"They (the flood control engineers) had a hell of a good plan in its inception," he said, "but now they have come up with one where we get 25 per cent of the benefits and 75 per cent of the ill effects of the fresh water and silt dumping.

* * *

"THE ORIGINAL C&SF plan called for outlets from the St. Johns marsh around Sebastian-Melbourne at Titusville. But public sentiment there stopped those outlets. The people didn't want their fresh water supply drained away.

"Now they're getting ready to lead the drainage from the upper St. Johns marsh down into this three-canal project, and we'll get that water, too. They say they are not, but in dry weather there will be no other way to keep the proposed St. Lucie County impounding area filled."

Both McCarty and Click denied there is any such intention.

"The flow of the St. Johns is from south to north," said McCarty. "I don't know how we could run that water uphill.

* * *

"THERE HAS BEEN more distortion of fact in this matter than anything I've ever heard about," McCarty claimed. "Some 40,000 people now live in St. Lucie County. Our future fresh water supply is as important as flood control. We don't want to run off a bit more of that water than is absolutely necessary.

"Some of our critics even profess to believe we are not putting in the locks and control structures shown on the plan.

"That's ridiculous. Those control structures are approved by federal (Army) engineers. We are getting 85 per cent of the construction money from the federal government. Do you think those engineers would let us build without those controls?

"I don't believe anyone seriously believes this argument. This overall flood control work has saved Florida an estimated $44,500,000 damage in the last five years. Let's get on with it without wrangles between two counties. It's too important to the South Florida economy for that."

Said Lyons:

"We now take 8,800 cubic feet of water per second when all the gates are opened in the St. Lucie canal to lower Lake Okeechobee. That's just about ruined us. It's silted up our bays by an estimated 6 million cubic yards and ruined the fishing in an area where that is an economic mainstay.

* * *

"WE ESTIMATE that damage to the area is $200,000 the first month the St. Lucie locks are opened. What will it be when we get an added flow of another 10,000 cubic feet of water per second.

"We have seen water over State Road 60 (back of Vero Beach). That's the headwaters of the St. Johns, and no one can tell us we're not going to get that, too. This is land reclamation, not flood control. Land reclamation with federal money is illegal."

As this is written, dredges are preparing to start the contracted job of clearing out the St. Lucie river downstream from the mouth of the existing, shallow and clogged Rim ditch. Inasmuch as Army engineers had been quoted as saying this would not be done until the deepening, widening and control structures were assured for this canal, it looks like the name calling may have all been futile.

Who is right and who is wrong in this scrap?

It looks to this reporter like the answer to that one depends entirely on where you sit.

City Leads Dade in Braking Traffic Accidents

By JOY REESE SHAW
Herald Staff Writer

Dade's 1958 countdown on death and danger became official Thursday.

With it came high hopes that the county's zooming insurance rates have been stalemated.

Figures released by the Dade County Citizens Safety Council showed the county drag down its accidents by 1,367 over 1957's total.

This was accomplished in face of a trend which was spiraling the accident total here by 2,500 yearly.

H. Y, Kinard, council president, termed the record "extremely encouraging."

Dade counted 30,158 accidents in 1957. With an additional 40,000 cars on the roads, drivers had only 28,791 accidents in 1958.

This means that each day of 1958, three accidents were avoided—and possible death averted.

Each day of 1957, an average of 82 accidents happened—one each 17½ minutes. In 1958, 79 accidents occurred—one each 18½ minutes.

Actually, it means more accidents each day were avoided.

On July 1, The Herald challenged Miamians to live out the year. The total reduction in accidents came the final six months of the year, the council president pointed out, praising response of drivers to the appeal for safety.

The trend in injuries, jumping 1,500 annually, also was reversed in the final months with the total squeezed down by 69 to 9,016.

Kinard said the slash in accidents and injuries definitely should be reflected in the county's auto insurance rates, which have been soaring.

While accidents skidded, a somber note crept into the official fatility score. Three deaths of injured persons brought the total dead to 151. An earlier recorded total of 148 had tied the 1957 figures.

Kinard explained that fatality figures remain "provisional" for a year. Delayed deaths are added into the final figures.

The big accident reduction came within municipal limits. Miami led the way with a reduction of 1,175 accidents. Miami Beach came second with a nose-dive of 556, Hialeah placed with 211 fewer accidents. Others on the improvement list included Coral Gables, Opa-locka, Homestead, Florida City and South Miami.

Accidents in North Miami Beach and North Miami shot upward, however. The record was marred in the unincorporated county, area, with 611 more accidents.

Key causes of death? The four big killers were (1) jaywalking (2) speeding (3) reckless driving and (4) failure to observe stop lights or to yield right of way.

Ike 'Pretty Slow' Replying, Says Boy Who Wrote Him

CINCINNATI—(AP)—His parents didn't know anything about it but seven-year-old Stanley Burroughs scrawled a note to President Eisenhower two weeks ago. He told the President his father's birthday would be Jan. 30 and he praised his dad's ability as a truck driver.

This week the father, Edward Burroughs, received a letter from Frederick Fox, special assistant at the White House. He wrote:

"Through your son Stanley, the President learned of your approaching birthday and the President asked me to send you his cordial greetings.

"Stanley talked about your splendid record as a truck driver. He wants to follow your example, not only as a 'driver but as a good father. He is very proud of you. I hope he gets his wish."

Stanley learned about the reply when he sauntered in from school.

And what was his reaction?

"It's about time," he said nonchalantly. "I expected to hear from them last week."

'Space' Stocks Woo the Public

NEW YORK — (UPI) — Space-age securities have replaced in the public imagination the romantic aspects of uranium issues, according to New York State Attorney General Louis J. Lefkowitz.

Noting there has been heavy speculation in space age stocks — shares of jet, electronics, exotic fuel and related companies — the attorney general warned investors to deal only with known securities firms, to beware of get-rich-quick promises and not to buy on tips and rumors.

Boy Resents Spanking, Kills Parents, Brother and Sister

MORAVIA, N. Y. — (AP) — A series of family arguments and the spanking of a 16-year-old boy led the boy to shoot four members of his family, state police said Thursday.

Troopers said husky John Jayne killed his father, Willis, 66, his mother, Amber, 55, a brother, Willard, 19, and a sister, Elizabeth Ann, 13, with a shotgun.

Jayne, five-feet-nine and 155 pounds, was charged with first degree murder. He entered a mandatory innocent plea before Peace Justice Richard Pearce in Cayuga County court at Auburn, in central New York, Thursday.

Inspector William Driscoll of the state police said Jayne, a pupil at Moravia High School, told him he shot his family because of "an accumulation of family arguments."

Troopers said Jayne related that his parents had spanked him, and that he felt he is too big to be spanked.

IT HAPPENED IN THE UNITED STATES

Woman Is Ill; Auto Runs Wild

MILWAUKEE — (UPI) — Two persons were injured and hundreds endangered when an auto driven by a woman suffering a diabetic attack ran wild for 20 blocks on Milwaukee's West Side.

Driver of the car was Mrs. Jeanette Zebrowski, 45, wife of Albert Zebrowski, president of Express Freight Lines, Inc., who was en route to a doctor when stricken.

Police said Mrs. Zebrowski's east-bound auto struck a parked vehicle and narrowly missed collisions with oncoming autos, sped through a red light, and finally jumped a center strip and collided head-on with another auto.

Russell Long, 30, driver of the other car, suffered chest injuries while Mrs. Zebrowski was cut and bruised.

Police said the diabetic attack placed Mrs. Zebrowski on the verge of a coma during her wild run. She was taken to a hospital and treated for her injuries as well as the diabetic attack.

You're Too Old, Senator Told

PROVIDENCE, R. I. — (AP) — The Providence Journal Thursday called on 91-year-old Sen. Theodore Francis Green (D., R.I.) to quit as chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee because of his age.

The Journal, an independent newspaper, said in an editorial that "a delicate question is raised by the criticism" being directed at Green's continuance as chairman, but adds:

"The fundamental fault in putting a nonoctogenarian in such a position of personal power and responsibility, where the need for physical and mental vigor should be obvious, belongs to the seniority system in Congress."

The editorial said "the time has come to say frankly that Sen. Green can perform a final and unique service by stepping down as chairman of the Senate Committee on Foreign Relations."

Plane Pilots Expanding

COLUMBUS, Ohio — (AP) — Measurements around the seat of pilots' pants are proof that human problems are never completely solved, a professor of rural sociology at Ohio State University told the 40th annual Ohio Pastors Convention here.

"In 1952," said Dr. Everett M. Rogers, "Air Force pilots began to complain in increasing numbers about plane seats. They were uncomfortable — too hard and too narrow. I was called in to investigate.

"Ten years before, we had measured the width of about 10,000 Air Force rear ends. They averaged 22 inches wide and we designed plane seats accordingly.

"But during the 10 years, pilots' measurements changed. Whether from better nutrition, older age or just less work, our pilots' bottoms had increased in width from 22 to 24 inches.

Blind Mother Raising Family

BOSTON —(UPI)— Though totally blind, Mrs. Aldo Marchisio is raising her five children unassisted.

Her husband, who is 90 per cent blind, works for the State Division of the Blind, tuning and repairing pianos, and often is out of town for a week at a time.

Mrs. Marchisio does all her own housework — and has enough energy left at night to read a bedtime story in Braille to her children, Alison, 11, Peter, eight, Paul, six, Caroline, nine, and Rosemarie, three.

Why Men Don't Talk to Their Wives

● Is the American male losing the art of talking to his wife? In February Reader's Digest, Marjorie Holmes says "yes" and thinks she's figured out just why men are so close-mouthed. Cecelia Missed 'Target Date'

Let's Face the Facts! Zoo Stork's Slowpoke

By LAWRENCE THOMPSON
Herald Staff Writer

We have tried to look the other way and pretend that the calendar wasn't there. We have tried to close our eyes and not see the date on the newspapers.

CECELIA

But there's no use trying to kid ourselves.

Cecelia isn't delivering on time.

The date set by the Crandon Park Zoo veterinarian and the zoo director for the arrival of her second child was Jan. 25.

That was on Sunday.

All that happened at the zoo on Sunday was rain.

As old-time camel lovers, we tried to overlook Cecelia's lack of performance. After all, a rainy day upsets all kinds of plans and schedules.

But the next day was Jan. 26.

That was Monday.

Nothing happened at the zoo on Monday except some stray showers.

They had nothing at the zoo on Tuesday, Wednesday or Thursday except weather. They had all kinds of Weather, from rain to sunshine. But no new camels.

Robert Mattlin, zoo director, was discouraged but he was not admitting defeat.

"It has to be soon, that's all there is to it," he insisted. "It will be any minute now, or any day."

And today is Friday, another day.

U.S. Plane Is Restricted

WASHINGTON —(AP)— The Tactical Air Command has imposed restrictions on the use of KB50 tanker planes until certain parts in the fuel system can be replaced.

The action was disclosed by the Air Force in response to an inquiry. It comes a week after the crash of a KB50 in Louisiana.

Difficulty with another type of plane was made known in Columbus, Ind. Thirty C119 Flying Boxcars were grounded at Bakalar Air Force Base there in what a spokesman called a nationwide check on oil system clogging. The order came after several of the twin-engine planes had made one-engine landings.

The KB50s are not grounded, the Air Force spokesman said, because most of them will be ready for quick use while the alterations are being carried out.

He's an 'Eagle'

DENVER —(AP)— Despite an 80 per cent loss of hearing since birth because of an impaired nerve, Tom Griffiths, 15, won his Eagle Scout badge. It takes 30 merit badges in Boy Scout work to get the Eagle award and Tom has 32.

It's Embarrassing—And A Disappointment, Too

James Johnson Jr.

WASHINGTON —(AP)— "The whole thing is quite embarrassing," said the congressman.

"I'm confused," said the Negro boy.

"The whole thing is just unfortunate," said the boy's aunt.

That's how the leading principals sum up the imbroglio that came to a climax when James A. Johnson Jr., a 14-year-old Chicago Negro, arrived in Washington to become a page in the House of Representatives.

He was told the job was filled.

The youth said he had been assured of the job by Rep. Barratt O'Hara (D., Ill.). But Rep. Francis E. Walter (D., Pa.), chairman of the House Patronage Committee which handles such matters, said the appointment had gone to another Chicago boy recommended by Rep. Thomas J. O'Brien (D., Ill.).

Veteran Capitol employes do not recall any Negro ever having served as a House page, but Walter said no racial factor was involved.

Returning here Thursday, O'Hara told reporters:

"The whole situation is quite embarrassing."

For his part, James held out hope of still becoming a page, "maybe at the Supreme Court or in the Senate, if the House job really is filled."

"The main reason I wanted to be a page is to get into the Capitol page school," he said. "It would be a wonderful chance for an education." He wants to be a doctor.

Rainier Takes Council Powers

RAINIER

MONTE CARLO — (AP) — Prince Rainier III told Monaco's 18-man Parliament to jump in the Mediterranean and transferred its powers temporarily to his cabinet.

The prince broadcast the news personally to residents of his park-sized principality on the Riviera.

Rainier said he was stripping the National Council of its powers because it hadn't recommended a budget. The council had been trying to squeeze him with the purse strings to get more power, something they've been seeking for nearly a year.

The political dustup was expected to cause little concern in Monaco, which has no income tax, no military service and no unemployment. As long as that happy state prevails, the popularity of the prince, Princess Grace (Kelly) and their two children seems assured.

"He likes to know what's happening," said the spokesman.

Rockefeller, only son of the noted multimillionaire oil magnate, has made few public appearances in recent years and did not attend the recent inauguration of one of his five sons, Nelson, as governor of New York.

Leaving Prison A Sad Affair

"It's sad to leave your best friend in prison," said Johnny Bragg. "Every man wants to go free but it isn't so easy when you know you're leaving somebody behind."

Bragg, a 32-year-old Negro, was paroled from the State Penitentiary after serving 13 years of a 99-year sentence for assaulting six Negro women.

Unusual Show Planned By Frances Langford

By JACK GAVER

NEW YORK —(UPI)— Whatever else it may prove to be when displayed, "Frances Langford Presents" must be just about the most oddly planned and executed TV special ever.

This one-hour color all-star variety show headed by the singing star whose name it bears will be aired by NBC at 10 p.m. March 15—almost two years after work began on it. The show was a full year in production.

"In fact," said the grayish-blonde star, "there was a time or two in there when we didn't know whether we were going to wind up with a show or a wasted year.

As though the time involved in putting the show together were not unusual enough, observe these other aspects:

1. Here is a prime entertainment item, now fully sold to a big TV spender, that is headed by a performer who not only never was a major TV factor but who has been out of the public entertainment picture entirely for the past four years.

2. Financing independently what admittedly was a gamble was never a worrisome thing. Even TV networks worry about money.

Frances Langford
. . . off scene four years

* * *

BOTH OF THESE points are tied in with the fact that Miss Langford was married four years ago to Ralph Evinrude, who has been called the king of the outboard motor industry. She decided to concentrate on family life instead of a career.

"But after a while my husband felt that I shouldn't abandon my career forever," Miss Langford explained, "and we came up with the idea of putting together a TV variety hour just to see how it would turn out.

"So we simply formed a company with Charles Wick, our producer, and went to work. We felt that if it came off, we would have a salable product, and if it didn't—well, we would have had the experience."

Wick has been in television for several years as producer and creator of programs, so the venture was backed by experience.

"Edith Head, movie studio designer who has won six academy awards, did my gowns and some of the other costumes. I don't know what we're going to do about her. She refused to take money; just did it for kicks, she said."

* * *

PERFORMERS TO BE SEEN on the special are Bob Hope, Hugh (Wyatt Earp) O'Brian, Julie London, Edgar Bergen (and Charlie McCarthy), George Sanders, Jerry Colonna, Bobby Troup, Tony Romano, the Four Freshmen, Murray McEarchern, the Jon Gregory Dancers, the Earl Barton Dancers and David Rose and his orchestra.

"The range of talent will give you some idea as to why this took a year to make," Miss Langford said. "We had to work with those people as and when they were available to us, since we were not preparing a show for a specific air date."

Persons and Programs

There's a strong possibility that Frank Sinatra will return to ABC-TV next season in a series of one hour specials for a cigaret firm . . . "Your Hit Parade" will close its season on CBS-TV on April 24.

Playhouse 90 will return to CBS-TV next season, but the series may be sliced from 39 to 26 shows.

Sid Caesar, Art Carney and Audrey Meadows will tape a special one hour variety show on Feb. 14 which will be seen on NBC-TV May 3.

It replaces "Our Hearts Were Young and Gay," originally scheduled for NBC-TV on that date.

Leo Durocher has bowed out of the emcee job on NBC-TV's Jackpot Bowling. He's been replaced by Mel Allen.

Bing Crosby Enterprises is preparing a series about a lawyer for ABC-TV. It stars James Whitmore and is called "Lincoln Jones."

James Oppenheimer will be executive producer of NBC-TV's Emmy Award show in May.

S. J. Perelman may write another play for NBC-TV's Omnibus before it closes out its season on May 10.

CBS-TV's Twentieth Century is preparing a two-part series on college kids, "Generation Without A Cause," for March 1 and 8.

Erase Anxiety

By CARROLL RIGHTER
Friday, January 30, 1959

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Private anxiety is really getting you down. Be out and about with those persons who take things in their stride and have the "know-how" at all times. This lifts your spirits, you regain poise and can make this a profitable day.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to March 20) A good day to be by yourself for a while and concentrate on how to become more popular with others so that you can make real strides careerwise.

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) Steer clear of any meetings with executives or Bigwigs today. The day is better suited to social pleasures and comfortable hours with true friends and staunch supporters.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) Don't endeavor to jump into new ventures with new friends until or unless you feel you understand all situation thoroughly. Study and be well-informed and prepared.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Be careful not to get entangled in some important affair that could last for a long time to come — on the advice of some authority who does not have real picture of your financial standing.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Avoid that associate who, although intelligent, is a bit too curious about your personal affairs. Then the day is fine for looking into bills that must be paid, monies to be collected.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Any carelessness on your part where your work is concerned will be very detrimental today. Give your undivided attention to your job. VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Don't give in to that temptation to leave important work behind so you can trip off with some fascinating individual. The aspects are fine for accomplishing much both at home or in business.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Matters at your residence do not appear to your liking throughut day and evening. Step out with close ties and business contacts to some charming spot for confabs.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Now you have a day when you can have an uptrend in your affairs as well as help your close ties with theirs. Be careful of any snide remarks, however.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Today you can analyze your true financial position and look at condition of property so that you know where to invest or adjust for increased profits and abundance.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Realize that you cannot rely entirely on own judgment in important affairs and seek the advice of higher ups or personal advisors now. Show affection.

7—TARGET — A ruthless bandit (Cesar Romero) risks his freedom and his life to keep a date with a tantalizing woman (Lynn Cartwright).

4—RAWHIDE—Trail boss Gil Favor (Eric Fleming) sees his crew of cattle drovers seeking release from the tensions of trail life by tearing up a frontier town. Before Gil can restore discipline, his ramrod, Rowdy Yates (Clint Eastwood), has gotten involved with a dance hall girl (Sally Forrest) and the gun-happy town marshal.

7—ELLERY QUEEN — It's a big night for the wind machine on tonight's story, which involves murder in the teeth of a hurricane. This, of course, isolates Queen and all the suspects and it makes a fairly logical story. There are some late developments which no armchair detective could know and so you're forgiven if you don't guess the culprit.

10—WALT DISNEY—Walt has deserted Frontierland, Fantasyland, Adventureland and Tomorrowland for something that might be called Cultureland. He's presenting "The Peter Tchaikovsky Story," a program full of lovely music all wrapped around the life story of the Russian melody master. There are about five minutes from a Russian film, featuring ballerina Ulanova and the Bolshoi Ballet, which Disney changed from color to black-and-white. There are about 17 minutes from the new Disney feature, "Sleeping Beauty," with Mary Costa singing the title role. And there's a dramatization of the composer's life, briefly taking him from boyhood to his triumphs.

Opening lead: King of clubs.

A minus score was registered by most of the North-South pairs who held today's hand taken from a recent tournament.

The final contract was usually a small slam in hearts reached on the bidding sequence shown in the diagram. The king of clubs was opened and taken with the ace, whereupon most declarers crossed to the ace of hearts in dummy and when East showed out the jig was up, since West could not be prevented from winning two trump tricks. These declarers attempted to justify their play of the trump suit on the ground that by playing the ace of hearts first they retained the option of finessing for the queen on the next round should they decide so to do.

Their argument does not appeal to this contributor. Since it was proper to play the king on the second round if both followed the first time, the correct play to the first lead of trumps was the king out of the South hand. If West shows out, declarer plays to the ace and back toward the jack. If on the first lead of the suit East shows out (as in this case), a small heart is led toward the ace and West is obliged to insert the ten, holding himself to one trump trick.

At one table South elected to bid seven hearts, hoping that the heart suit would contain no losers. West indiscreetly doubled and South shrewdly escaped to seven no trump, which in turn was doubled. The king of clubs was opened. Declarer won the trick, cashed the 10 of diamonds, the ace and king of spades and ran all the diamonds, reducing his own hand to the king-jack of hearts, jack of clubs and the queen of spades. At this point West held three hearts and the queen of clubs. Declarer returned to his hand with a heart and cashed the queen of spades forcing West to make a discard. He was compelled to shed the queen of clubs with the vague hope that his partner held the jack but declarer produced it for the 13th trick.

Faith in Christ Is Real Issue

QUESTION: Some time ago I was baptized by a certain minister. Now I discover that he has been unfaithful in his ministry and has betrayed his calling. Should I be baptized again by a good minister?

My Answer

ANSWER: I don't think that would be necessary. Baptism does not convey some magic power through the hand of the minister. It is well that we do not depend on the one who administers the rite, for then no one would be sure of the validity or effectiveness of the act.

GRAHAM

Baptism is a beautiful symbol of something that has already transpired. Therefore the act of baptism does not validate or negate our previous experience of salvation through faith.

When Paul explains the spiritual significance of baptism, he relates it to spiritual death and resurrection, death to sin and resurrection to a new life in Christ. "We are buried therefore by baptism into his death, that like as Christ was raised from the dead to the glory of God the Father, even so we also should walk in newness of life." (Romans 6:4)

Fear not, but thank God that our relationship to God depends upon our faith in Christ, and not the merit of the minister who baptized us.

Snow Plasters Rockies, Plains

CHICAGO —(UPI)— A new storm hit the Rockies with up to 18 inches of snow Thursday and swept across the Central Plains in front of a sub-zero cold wave.

The storm, the first to hit the prairies since winter's most vicious blast passed through last week, clogged highways through Utah, Colorado and North Dakota.

Faith in Christ Is Real Issue

QUESTION: Some time ago I was baptized by a certain minister. Now I discover that he has been unfaithful in his ministry and has betrayed his calling. Should I be baptized again by a good minister?

My Answer

ANSWER: I don't think that would be necessary. Baptism does not convey some magic power through the hand of the minister. It is well that we do not depend on the one who administers the rite, for then no one would be sure of the validity or effectiveness of the act.

GRAHAM

Baptism is a beautiful symbol of something that has already transpired. Therefore the act of baptism does not validate or negate our previous experience of salvation through faith.

When Paul explains the spiritual significance of baptism, he relates it to spiritual death and resurrection, death to sin and resurrection to a new life in Christ. "We are buried therefore by baptism into his death, that like as Christ was raised from the dead to the glory of God the Father, even so we also should walk in newness of life." (Romans 6:4)

Fear not, but thank God that our relationship to God depends upon our faith in Christ, and not the merit of the minister who baptized us.

Pressman Cites Union 'Discrimination'

The National Labor Relations Board Thursday began investigating a newspaper pressman's complaint that Local 46 of the pressmen's union kept him from getting a job on The Miami Herald.

Harold J. Fowler of 2041 SW 50th Ave., Fort Lauderdale, filed the complaint against the Miami local of the International Printing Pressmen and Assistants Union (AFL-CIO).

Fowler charged that the union "caused The Miami Herald to discriminate against me . . . by unilaterally administering the seniority roster . . . and by operating an exclusive job-referral system. . ."

He said this violated the National Labor Relations Act.

He said membership in the union and compliance with its rules "is the condition precedent to being referred to" a pressman's job with The Herald.

Fowler would not elaborate on his charge Wednesday.

Henry Gibson, secretary of Local 46, said the union "in no way rejected him. He never actually asked for a job on The Herald."

"The foreman has the authority to do the hiring and firing," Gibson said.

Bob Varble, press room foreman for The Herald, said Fowler worked in the press room for a short time.

But he left after it was discovered he "hadn't completed his apprenticeship," Varble said.

Fowler is now working in the press room at The Fort Lauderdale Daily News.

Arthur Gucker, business manager of The Herald, said he is "not conversant with the dispute between the union and one of its members."

"But I do know that Fowler worked three nights in July and was paid journeyman's wages including overtime," Gucker said.

The Town Crier

Duke Ellington, the old maestro whose artistry is known from hither to thither to yon and return, now is doing a 30-minute part in "Jump For Joy" at Copa City. When I saw the show opening night some space-brain director had Duke sweeping the stage and carrying scenery. Duke's now putting his orchestra into the show. He's playing "Mood Indigo," "Sophistocated Lady" and other of his world famous hits. They had Duke billed as the star. Now he really is.

Opening night the directors had three good Negro actors doing a supposedly satirical takeoff of a Noel Coward theme. It was the worst thing I've seen in a theater since two comedians tried "Waiting for Godot." If you can imagine a colored man wearing an English cap, duster and handle-bar mustaches! And the dialogue—but I'll spare you that. Then there was a bedroom scene that insulted the dignity of the human race; and lots more. Now, all that ghastliness is gone and Duke heads a good show, with Barbara McNair the neatest thing in town.

Lou Walters has a really smart show, as usual. Trust the old maestro to give us something well dressed, in good taste and tinged with the sensational. I've not seen Betty Grable but she's selling out Latin Quarter every night. They come away lovin' her. She's something new in night club circles and folks like new faces. See how Red Skelton packs 'em in, with nary a chorus gal in sight.

I've not seen "Newcomers of 1958" at Deauville, but it's fast, smooth and they can't miss with kids like Buster Keaton, Rudy Vallee, Harry Richman, Fifi Dorsay. As for Whiteman, he's Old Man River.

He Went Wrong

The boy was riding a bicycle east on NE First St., which is one-way west. Police nabbed him—and women started calling to say officers "roughed up" the lad, held him by the collar, tossed him and his bike into the paddy wagon and off to jail. Two women went into First Federal and said in effect, "if you don't do something we'll stop dealing with you."

Well, the lad was James Paul Bryan, 17, who lives at 270 NW 63rd Ave. Police said he had been warned about riding the wrong way on that street, and took no heed. So they booked him. Now it's up to Hizzoner.

Talent Sprouts

Two weeks ago I was grabbing talent for the Telethon, and it seemed all the good acts were here then. But hardly was it over when a new crop came to town. Miami never has had so many really great stars as this winter. And do you know who was tops — so far — at Deauville's Cavalcade of Stars (thst one-night-for - free - by - Lansburg) thing: Mischa Elman.

Most of the great stars in town will be on Thursday night's Show of Shows, for two very good reasons: Bob Hope and Variety Children's Hospital. This show has been an annual must ever since the hospital opened, and naturally show people will support Variety Club (show business), and anything that helps children.

I think they're keeping it down to 'bout 3 hours this time, which is better. If you can't get your money's worth watching Hope — Grable — DeWitt — Sherwood — Benny — Mackenzie — Ellington — Whiteman — Richman — Vallee — D'Orsay — Keaton — Gilbert — Jessel see a psychiatrist.

Don Miller of Jordan Marsh gave me a Japanese Happi Coat. It's a working man's coat (that's for me). "The decoration is supposed to indicate the wearer's trade," Don said. "But we don't have a Happi Coat insignia for a reporter."

Don, don't you know there's no such thing as a happy reporter.

'Tough Course,' Says Head Physics Teacher

Storm Rages on UM Flunks

By PHIL MEYER
Herald Staff Writer

The University of Miami's head physics teacher had a short, snappy answer Thursday for some 200 rebelling students who flunked beginning physics.

"It's a tough course," said Harry Robertson, chairman of the department. "Our failure rate has always averaged around 50 per cent."

Students were howling in anguish Thursday after 62 per cent of the 319 who saw Physics 105 through to its bitter end flunked the course.

And they didn't let Robertson's assertion that not a single failure would be removed from the archives stop them.

"We will fight to the end," said rebel spokesman Oscar New as he plotted a skirmish with the UM administration.

"We have a definite cause, a cause of justice," he added stoutly.

First shot in the revolt was fired by an unidentified student who broke two panes in a physics room window where the grades were posted.

"Probably went berserk when he saw his grade," New said.

Angry students then complained to Miami newspapers, appeared on a Thursday night program, and said they would seek relief from the UM administration with the "weight of public opinion."

Meanwhile, the physics teachers sat out the barrage in their frame main campus building unwavering and unafraid.

Outside, the silence was occasionally broken by shouts.

"Another student," said one of the instructors.

Robertson said that a reorganization of the courses accounted for the slightly higher flunk rate because students came with less preparation.

"We used to take the engineers as sophomores instead of freshmen, and the mathematics department had already eliminated a lot of the poorer ones," he said.

Later, a student who got an A in the course told The Herald that he thought "the course was fair."

"I have a strong math background, and that proved to be the important thing," said Frank Butler. "I do think the placement tests here are too easy and many students skip math courses they should take."

But a student who passed with a C, William L. Davis, Jr., disagreed. "The problems on the final were completely beyond the scope of anything we've studied," he said.

13-Year-Old Billy Zame Takes UM Math Test
. . . he'd have done better with slide rule

Outscores UM Students

High School Boy Passes the Test

A 13-year-old high school sophomore knows more mathematics than some of the University of Miami students who flunked Physics 105, a test showed Thursday.

Billy Zame, Coral Gables sophomore, took the Physics Department's "Basic Skills Test" which is given to students at the start of the course. Those who score below 10 are advised to get out.

Billy volunteered to be a guinea pig in determining the difficulty of the math test.

Billy's score was 21½. "I would have done better, but I didn't bring my slide rule," he said.

Student rebel leaders Oscar New and Robert Garnett made scores of 5 and 4 respectively.

UM Physics chairman Harry Robertson said Thursday that his department has no way to enforce this test standard. "If they want to take the course, we can't keep them out," he said.

However, the School of Engineering, which supplies 60 per cent of the students for Physics 105, will start next semester to require its students to make at least 10 on the math test, before taking the course.

Last semester, students who did poorly on the math exam were warned they would probably fail the physics course, but many stayed anyway, he said.

"They figured we couldn't flunk 'em all."

Troup Is Low Bidder On Expressway Link

By JOHN MORTON
Herald Staff Writer

The State Road Department opened bids Thursday on a major link in the Palmetto Expressway and a Miami firm submitted the apparent low proposal.

The project covers construction of the four-lane superhighway from NW 12th St. to SW 16th St. along W. 77th Ave. Included in the job are traffic interchanges at W. Flagler St. and Tamiami Trail, and 11 other bridges.

Troup Brothers, Inc., submitted a bid of $2,183,173 on the job.

If the state accepts Troup's proposal, the Expressway — a bypass around western Miami from the Golden Glades Interchange to U.S. 1 in Kendall — will be under construction from Okeechobee Rd. (U.S. 27) to SW 16th St. The road is in use north of Okeechobee.

Winston Carlton, SRD district engineer, said latest strip of the highway should be completed in about 16 months.

The project will eliminate one of western Miami's worst traffic bottlenecks, the intersection of W. Flagler St. and the Milam Dairy Rd., Carlton said.

He also considered the Tamiami Trail interchange another big step toward speeding up vehicle flow in the west Trail area.

Four Gone?

Seen Any Idle Idols Lately?

Four 30-pound idols to be used for atmosphere in a new lounge of a downtown hotel have been stolen, the manager said Thursday.

The thief just walked right up and hauled away the four — out of a collection of 14 — said the manager of the Everglades Hotel.

They are about 24 inches tall, said Manager Bob Othling, in a report to press, radio, TV, but not to the police.

3 Fliers Land In Pasture

Three Miami pilots on a practice flight dumped their twin-engine plane in a pasture in West Hollywood Thursday — only a short distance from a housing development.

One engine conked out while they were practicing one-engine landings at North Perry airport, they explained.

The three men escaped with minor cuts and bruises.

They were James Kay, 25, of 3729 NW 22nd Ct.; Robert Knapp, Miami pilot instructor; and Donald Campbell, 28, of 2954 NW 14th St.

Army OKs Channel Job

A $478,000 channel project for Baker's Haulover Inlet — between Bal Harbor and Haulover Beach — was recommended Thursday by the Army Corps of Engineers.

The project calls for reconstruction of existing jetties and construction of a channel through the inlet to the nearby Intracoastal Waterway.

If the chief of Army engineers approves the project, Congress will be asked to authorize the work and to appropriate money to pay for it. The federal government will pay half the cost.

Metro's Stuck With Show Tab

By LEO ADDE
Herald Staff Writer

Metro reluctantly picked up the $5,200 hazard insurance tab Thursday for the weekend air show at Masters Field, Opa-locka, to head off cancellation of the event and "embarrassment" to the county.

Then commissioners waited uneasily to see what other bills will roll in from the show they believed they had wished off on a private promoter.

County Attorney Darrey A. Davis advised Metro Commission Chairman Walter Weiss that the county should pay for the insurance the federal government demands before it will let Air Force and Navy jet acrobats perform.

Maurey Ashmann, the promoter with whom County Publicist Dick Troxel made a verbal deal to run the show, said he wouldn't pay the insurance. For awhile Wednesday, it looked like the jets would never get off the ground for Aviation Week. Harried commissioners tossed the issued to their attorney.

"Like it or not, the county is in the air show business," Davis said. "The commission signed a blank check for this show when it gave Troxel authority to make all arrangements in the name of the county."

Davis proposed, and Ashmann agreed, that the county take over all financial dealings for the show. It's admission-free, but "profits" will come from food concessions and parking.

Weiss called in Metro Auditor Robert Morgan to keep tabs on the air show's income and expenses.

He Left His Calling Cards

Saga of a Bumbling Bandit

By BOB HARDIN
Herald Staff Writer

Calvin A. Cook, 24, was tracked down Thursday by police, who allowed it was like trailing a bleeding elephant after a snowstorm.

Metro detectives said Cook rates No. 1 on the "easy to capture" list.

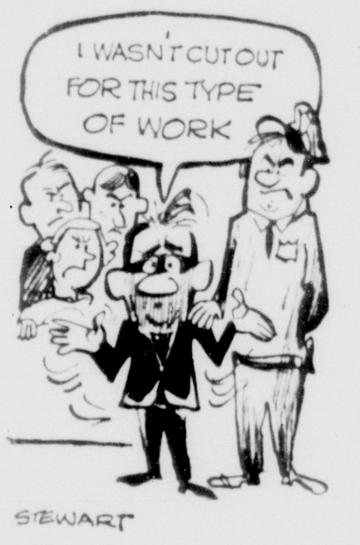
Also, the unluckiest.

"Cook's one day of crime left witnesses lined up to identify him," a detective said.

His story, they said, started Wednesday morning when:

1 — Cook tried to pass a forged check at the Little River Bank. The teller knew the check was bogus, detectives said, and Cook fled. Police now had his name on one bad check.

2—He tried to pass another forged check at Stevens Market, giving his driver's license as identification. A clerk became suspicious and called police as Cook fled.



I WASN'T CUT OUT FOR THIS TYPE OF WORK
STEWART

3—He heard police sirens coming toward Stevens and ducked into nearby Shirley's restaurant. "You look just like a friend of mine," commented waitress Beatrice Rice. He asked her to call a cab.

4 — Cook got in the cab, and in the deep Southwest section he stuck a gun in driver Raleigh Cheuvrant's back and forced him out.

"Say," said Cook, "aren't you the driver that took me to Hialeah yesterday?"

Cabbie Cheuvrant looked around, saw Cook for the first time and stamped him in his memory.

(Police now had two bad checks, the driver's license and positive identification by the waitress and cabbie.)

5 — Cook ditched the cab and picked up a car at the Redland Country Club.

Meanwhile, one set of Metro detectives put out a pickup for Cook on forged check charges; a second set put out a pickup order for the stolen car.

A North Miami policeman, cruising past one of Cook's hangouts, spotted both the car and Cook.

Crestfallen, Cook of 7936 NW Fifth Ave., was led off to jail on forged check, armed robbery and stolen car charges.

There, police said, he confessed.

2 Prisoners Convicted in Jail Slaying

A Criminal Court jury Thursday convicted two men of beating and stomping a third prisoner to death in Miami city jail.

Carthel James Rushing, 36, was found guilty of second degree murder and Carl Hampton Wills, 32, of manslaughter.

They were in the city jail "tank" with 20 other Saturday night drunks when they killed Oscar Lack, 53 of 1326 NE First Ave., last Sept. 28.

Jones said Frank Hall, 32, who lived with them at 8 NE 14th St., will be tried on charge of aiding and abetting the killing.

Sisters, 94 and 88, Battle Each Other

By TONY PATRUS
Herald Staff Writer

Two recluse sisters, one 94 and the other 88, fought viciously with fingernails, a mop and a flower pot Thursday until neighbors battered down a locked door and separated them.

The two, Miss Becky Wilkinson and Mrs. A. C. (Nellie) Carter, of 1776 SW Fifth St., were taken to Jackson Memorial Hospital for treatment of their battle wounds.

Miss Wilkinson, the elder sister, was in serious condition, hospital officials said, suffering from a beating with a mop and a flower pot and scratches from her sister's fingernails.

Mrs. Carter, ordered held for a mental examination, was treated for bruises and shock.

Although the sisters refused to tell police the cause of their violent argument, Miss Wilkinson said her younger sister started it all by hitting her with the flower pot.

When two neighbors heard the sisters shrieking, they battered down the front door.

They said they found Miss Wilkinson slumped semi-conscious against a hallway wall, with Mrs. Carter standing over her, striking her with a broken mop handle.

A Mother Sobs, 'I Told Him Not to Cross That Highway'

Johnny Minded Good, But This Time--

"Johnny, he minded good. I don't know what happened this time. I told him over and over not to cross that highway hisself."

The woman put her hand to her forehead. She sobbed quietly.

Beside her on the pavement of South Dixie Highway beneath a blanket lay the lifeless body of her six-year-old son.

At 3:45 p.m. Thursday Johnny Conealious, 105 South Dixie Highway, was killed.

The death marked Dade County's 16th traffic fatality this year, equal to 1958's toll at the same time.

He was running barefoot to his daddy with a sack of cookies when he stepped in front of a parked car at 3839 South Dixie Highway.

The car that hit him was driven by a school teacher on his way home from Gladeview Elementary School, Donald R. Pierce, 8025 SW 63rd Pl.

"I didn't see him until he was about five feet in front of the car. There wasn't time to do anything," Pierce said.

The impact, Policeman E. E. Berquist said, knocked the boy 74 feet. Pierce was driving well under the 45 mile an hour speed limit, he said.

The sobbing mother, Mrs. John Conealious, looked at the broken cookies in the street.

"The kids wants to go back and forth to the store all the time. Johnny usually go with the big kids. He minded good. I don't know what happened this time."

Teamsters To Assault PAA First

By DOM BONAFEDE
Herald Staff Writer

Using Miami as a battleground, Jimmy Hoffa's Teamsters Union Thursday aimed its first assault on the airlines industry by trying to bring Pan American World Airways stock clerks under its wings.

The invasion of the Teamsters into the industry has long been feared by airline executives.

The Herald learned that the 800 clerks throughout the PAA system will vote next week on whether they want to be represented by the Teamsters or the International Association of Machinists.

Warren Lane, National Mediation Board official, confirmed the report and added that Hoffa already has signed up more than 51 per cent of the clerks.

Some 300 clerks based in Miami will cast their ballots next Tuesday and Wednesday, Lane said.

Other elections will be held in Cape Canaveral, New York City and on the Pacific Coast.

If Hoffa gets a foothold in the airline industry it will give him virtual control over the nation's transportation industry.

It was also learned that Hoffa was making eyes at the stewards and stewardesses of Mohawk Airlines, a small carrier operating in New York State.

Hoffa earlier disclosed he was making a stab at moving in on the airline industry when he gave a $200,000 loan to the Flight Engineers International Association during its 38-day strike.

He also ordered a study by subordinates to determine which airline and airport workers he could organize to be in a position to close down operations in case of a strike.

The stubby boss of the scandal-scarred union further threatened to stop gasoline deliveries to any airline which provoked his displeasure in labor-management battles.

Hoffa's wooing of PAA's clerks apparently is the opening shot of a concerted drive by the Teamsters to infiltrate the airline industry.

The clerks formerly were members of the machinists union but later switched to the Transport Workers Union. The changeover was nullified, however, by the AFL-CIO, leaving the way open for the Teamsters to step in.

Boat Overboard! With No 'Hitch'

When Mrs. Margaret Stein begins "The oddest thing happened to me today" — she won't be kidding.

She was backing her car out of a driveway at 2675 S. Bayshore Dr., Thursday when — "plomp" — a sailing boat landed on the vehicle's roof.

It fell from a trailer which had cut loose from a small foreign model car driven by Allan Ray Lupka, 27, of 2401 Coral Way.

Police charged him with driving a trailer with a defective hitch.

Mrs. Stein, 46, is visiting from Highland Park, N.J.

Widow Gave Him $102,000

SANTA MONICA, Calif. — (UP)— Actor John Carroll testified Wednesday that a wealthy widow gave him $102,000 to further his career, and with no strings attached.

Carroll

The 54-year-old actor testified in Superior Court in defending himself against a suit for recovery of $228,800 brought by the 63-year-old widow, Mrs. Maude M. Marron.

Carroll said Mrs. Marron gave him $55,000 on May 1, 1953. He quoted her as saying: "This money is for you to do with as you see fit if it will further your career."

The actor said he received $7,000 from the widow after he had been instrumental in recovering a portion of $25,000 which he said she had given to another man.

He said once Mrs. Marron saw a picture of an expensive automobile and told him: "I'm going to get you one." He said she gave him $10,700 to buy the car.

The actor said no one else was present at the time when he received gifts from Mrs. Marron.

'Tarawa' Tells New War Story

IN BRIEF — Love and war make interesting blend along new plot lines.

By GEORGE BOURKE
Herald Amusement Editor

Movie Review

"Tarawa Beachhead," at the Lincoln and Town Theaters, is a well-made war action film, covering no fresh territory as a war picture but meriting interest for the new tangent of its story. Julie Adams, Kerwin Mathews, Ray Danton and Karen Sharpe are featured.

Mathews is a Marine who sees his commanding officer murder a comrade under combat conditions. He fears informing because of a doubt that his word would be taken over that of the officer, Danton.

Emotional complications ensue when Mathews meets and marries the widow of the slain man and Danton weds the widow's sister.

Matthews carries his problem until the climax of the film—the attack on Tarawa beach in the Pacific. He has prepared charges which he intends to file after the engagement.

The picture is low-budget but director Paul Wendkos has given it imaginative handling and producer Charles Schneer and editor Jerome Thoms have made skillful use of stock Army battle scenes.

"Tarawa Beachhead" is coupled with "Murder by Contract" at the Town Theater.

Morally Obligated to Make Voyage—Hayden

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS

HOLLYWOOD, Calif. — Before Sterling Hayden sailed for the South Seas with his four children and 20-odd people in the crew, he had agreed to play a top role in "A Summer Place," the Sloan Wilson story.

He left a message for director Delmer Daves saying that the was sorry to run out on him this way, but he felt morally obligated to the men and women who had given up other jobs and changed their plans to sail with him to make pictures.

Delmer said that he thought the boat was in good shape and that Sterling kept it in tip-top condition. Sterling told Delmer that he didn't think he was doing anything wrong.

The whole story is reminiscent of adventure tales of men who flee to the South Seas.

TWO of the nicest young people in our town are John Gavin and his attractive wife, Cecily. They were both very depressed over the loss of their baby a few weeks ago.

Now things look brighter for John who has been given the role of the young Julius Caesar in "Spartacus," by his studio, Universal-International.

A LETTER from Maureen O'Sullivan Farrow tells me they have moved into a house in London where Oscar Wilde once lived. They plan to come back to Hollywood after Johnny directs one picture.

ANTHONY QUINN has put his name on a contract to make a picture in Yugoslavia before the end of 1959. Robert Aldrich who will produce and direct has joined forces with the Avala film company of Yugoslavia.

The plan is to film "Taras-Bulba, the Cossack," based on the novel by the Russian novelist Nikolai Gogol.

The story tells of the Cossacks' fight for freedom from the czar's tyranny in the eighth century.

I ASKED Sol Siegel if he was frightened when he received the letter from the studio pantryman demanding $100,000, or threatening to blow up the Siegel family.

"Any man who wouldn't be frightened would be out of his mind," said Sol. "I told my wife and my son about it so they wouldn't be upset when the FBI men were watching our home."

Sol said he had letters and telegrams from all over the country. The wire that amused him the most was from Nat Perrin who said: "I tell you the agents are ruining the business. Imagine a pantryman asking for $100,000!"

In case Jimmy Stewart and Lana Turner never heard of Ishpeming, Mich., they'd better get used to it, because that's where Otto Preminger is going to shoot "Anatomy of a Murder."

Barbara Stanwyck's brother, Byron Stevens, has had another heart attack in the hospital, his fourth. His condition is serious.

In to hear Lionel Hampton at the Crescendo were Bobby Troup and Julie London acting like two turtledoves.

What a heartache for Gene Tierney's mother and friends and her little daughter that she is ill again and back in Menninger's.

It's Dual for Yul

HOLLYWOOD, Calif. — (UPI)— Yul Brynner will direct as well as star in "The Magnificent Seven" to be filmed later this year.

One for Children, Other Is NOT

'Wolf Larson,' Tender 'Snowfire' Poor Coupling

Movie Review

Somebody at Allied Artists goofed in coupling "Wolf Larson" and "Snowfire" for a double bill package. The pictures are on tap at the Florida theater.

The latter is a highly acceptable - for - children filmization in color of a story about a beautiful range horse and the little girl who insists the horse can talk to her.

The former is a reversion to the cycle of silent sea beast film fare which brings to mind such names as Hobart Bosworth, Milton Sills and Noah Beery, Sr. It's a Jack London tale and, since London's literary beat was the frontiers of the seas and ice country where passions were not subtle, it is hardly the fare which parents would like to feed to their children.

Barry Sullivan is the brutish skipper in "Wolf Larson" and no punches have been pulled in his characterization of the sadistic master of a sealing ship back in the days when the seal was milady's fashion favorite.

No need to detail the plot.

One of the plus factors in these sordid happenings is that they contrast the naivete of "Snowfire," which is strictly for the younger set.

It is in color, presents some beautiful scenery and natural, but not very dramatic, performances from Molly and Melody McGowan who play the leads, and Don McGowan as their father.

Claire Kelly provides the mild romantic inerest. "Snowfire," the horse, that is, steals the show.

Advice to a Young Shrimp

If you want to get on in the world you need a lot of ambition. So prepare to go places . . . be introduced into polite society, and you may even end up with a title . . . such as a LUAU Shrimp Special. When next you hear the Shrimp boats coming, remember, you're practically on your way to fame! . . . So think big . . . you're really quite a dish at LUAU.

This Waste in Spending on Batteries Will Fail to Give Taxpayers a Charge

By DAVID KRASLOW
Of Our Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — American taxpayers won't get a charge out of $1,500,000 worth of unneeded dry batteries found on hand or on order at an Army supply center in Yokohama, Japan.

The excess dry batteries showed up in a check of the Signal Corps depot made in January, 1958, by the General Accounting Office.

"Needs were being greatly overstated," GAO said in a report just delivered to Congress.

Orders for eight million dollars worth of materials—representing over half of the amount on order at the time of the audit—were canceled as a result of the findings, GAO reported.

GAO found that items were being stocked for special projects which had been "canceled, completed, or otherwise rendered inactive."

It is said the center was using equipment authorization lists which were at least a year out of date.

"No consideration was given to the use of excesses to fill general requirements," the report said.

Action has been taken to prevent a recurrence of the foulup, GAO said.

Ike's Estimate Low

The Best Years Of Our Lives Are Beckoning

By SYLVIA PORTER
Financial Analyst

Since President Eisenhower submitted his new budget—precariously balanced at $77 billion outgo, $77.1 billion income—I've queried some of the most responsible, respected business and financial leaders in the country on how realistic his projections are.

In one profoundly important way the answers have been shockers.

Not the least bit startling has been the fact that I've found not one authoritative source who believes spending in the year beginning this July will be as low as the $77 billion the President proposes.

SYLVIA PORTER

Rather, the shocker has been that I've found plenty who think income in these months will rise impressively above $77 billion—which in plain words means these experts anticipate a business upswing far stronger than the President forecasts.

And from these same men also comes the private prediction that business may be so excellent that the taxes pouring into the Treasury as a result actually could bring the budget into near balance even at much higher spending totals!

Do not underestimate the potential importance of this story to you—for if the forecasts I'm reporting here for the first time are close to accurate, just about every businessman and millions of American families will feel the happy impact. Specifically, a prediction that even the President's optimistic projections on the tax take in 1959-60 will be topped implies:

* * *

(1) A YEAR OF STRONG and sustained business advance to spectacular new peaks, with the critical auto industry chalking up much higher sales than in 1958 and with the basic housing industry also enjoying fine sales;

(2) A YEAR IN WHICH America's corporations will show dazzling, record-smashing gains in profits on which they'll pay record-smashing taxes;

(3) A YEAR IN WHICH personal incomes will climb persistently too, so individuals will pay fatter taxes on their larger paychecks, larger dividends and larger interest receipts;

(4) A YEAR IN WHICH the bigger-than-estimated rise in Federal spending will be matched by a bigger-than-estimated rise in Federal income so the Treasury gradually will be able to pull itself out of its sea of red ink and be able to stop putting out new I.O.U.'s to cover the deficit;

(5) A YEAR, THEREFORE, in which a significant inflation force—a huge Government deficit—will lose much of its power;

(6) AND FINALLY, A YEAR in which high joblessness in major industrial centers will continue to be a deeply disturbing problem, for the simple reason that the increasing efficiency of many corporations will permit them to turn out and sell more goods without hiring many more workers.

* * *

The key to the accuracy of the forecast on the Government's income in 1959-60 lies in the judgment of how big corporation profits will be.

The President's projection is based on an estimate that corporations in the 12 months beginning July 1959 will ring up $47-$48 billion of profits, an immense rise over their profits of about $36-$37 billion in 1958.

But, here are three exact quotes from men whose opinions, I repeat, are held in highest respect the nation over:

"We figure that by this fall-winter, profits will be running at a $50 billion annual rate. What people are overlooking is the extent to which corporations were able to reduce their costs and increase their efficiency in the recession. With sales climbing and efficiency so much greater, corporation profits will jump a lot faster than most people expect."

"The President's estimates project a much too modest expansion, the most sluggish advance at this stage of a business revival in 40 years. This is not a logical view. We expect a much faster rise."

"Business will start increasing its spending soon, and when this happens the whole picture will brighten. The income estimate is conservative."

Since the new budget is for a year that won't be over until 17 months from now, about the only certainty is that the figures in the headlines in July, 1960, won't be the same as the figures in the headlines in January, 1959.

Let's hope that the corrections are along the lines indicated above—for, boiled down, what this would mean is that the vast majority of Americans are on the threshold of the best financial period of their lives.

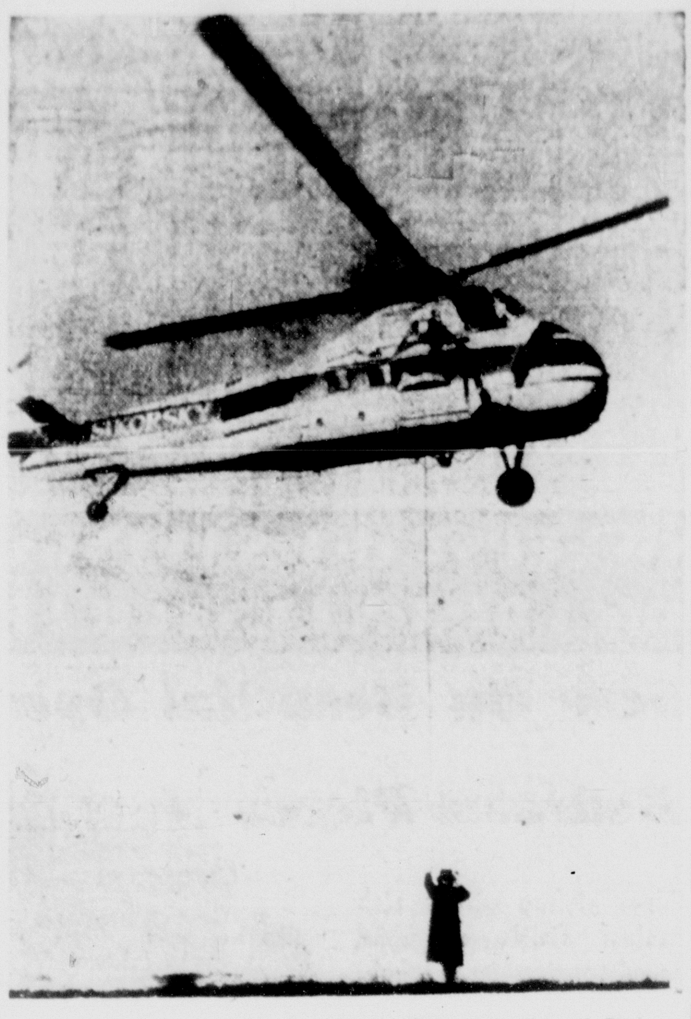
A Bird in Hand



—United Press International Photo

Like a kid flying a kite, the girl at the bottom of the picture is leading a helicopter around by an electronic device during a demonstration in Copenhagen, Denmark.

The five-ton copter is completely under the control of airline hostess Pernille Bligaard. The pilot is letting her do the work.

The electronic device is called a tether. It can be used to pull the copter in any direction . . . or bring it down to a landing, according to its producers, Sikorsky Aircraft of Stratford, Conn.

$15 Billion in U.S. Notes Is Offered

WASHINGTON — (AP) — The government Thursday announced plans to refinance nearly 15 billion dollars of the national debt through an offering of one-year certificates and three-year notes.

The certificates will bear an interest rate of 3¾ per cent while the notes will yield four per cent. Both issues will be dated Feb. 15.

Holders of $14,872,000,000 of maturing government securities will be offered the new issues in exchange. They will have the choice of demanding payment in cash or accepting either the certificate or the note.

More than nine billion dollars of the maturing securities are in the hands of commercial banks and other public investors. About 5¾ billions are held by the Federal Reserve System and government trust funds.

Because 9¾ billion dollars of the outstanding debt matures on Feb. 14, holders of this segment of the debt will be offered the new issues at a discount of seven cents per $1,000.

This will give them the equivalent of one day's interest on their old securities, covering the gap between Feb. 14 and the issue date of the new securities — Feb. 15.

Subscription books on the new issues will be open from Monday through Wednesday next week.

Japan's Textile Mills Lauded

SYDNEY — (AP) — An Australian textile executive, R. J. Webster, says the efficiency of the Japanese textile industry is "terrifying."

He meant it is terrifying to competitors in other countries.

Webster, managing director of Bradford Cotton Mills Sydney, recently returned from a visit to Japan. He said the Japanese had better management techniques than any other country in the world.

House Committee Approves 5¼ Per Cent GI Mortgages

Dow Jones, AP, UPI

The House Veterans Affairs Committee voted Thursday to permit the administration to raise the interest rates to 5¼ per cent on new GI housing mortgages.

The present maximum rate is 4¾ per cent. The committee action was a surprise victory for President Eisenhower, who had urged in his budget message that the interest rate be raised.

Sales of housing under the GI program have slowed to a virtual standstill in recent months because lenders have refused to make loans under the present rate.

The committee also gave final approval to a bill authorizing an extra 300 million dollars in direct VA loans to veterans in rural areas and towns where private loans are not readily available.

COMPLETE N.Y. STOCKS: Late Selling Trims Gains

But Day's Trend Is Upwards

NEW YORK —(AP)— The stock market weathered a brief gust of selling and emerged irregularly higher Thursday.

The market was nicely ahead on average until the final hour when the selling drive got under way suddenly, putting the ticker tape behind for a 17-minute spell.

Prices met support and were improving when the final gong ended the day's transactions.

The performance answered the question as to whether Wednesday's sharp market break would be continued today.

Brokers said some concern about whether the Federal Reserve Board would take further credit-tightening measures was no factor in the late weakness. Others ascribed the selling to professionals who believed the market was due for another decline and quickly reversed their positions when they saw prices were going no lower.

Coppers paced the early advance, helped by news of a price rise by a big Belgian producer.

Of 1,236 issues traded, 595 rose and 416 fell. There were 56 new highs for 1958-'57 and three new lows.

The most active stock was Hupp Corp., up ¼ at 6 on 71,200 shares. Second was Welbilt, up ⅛ at 6 3-8 on 50,300 shares. Third was Penn-Texas, up ½ at 5-8 on 48,900 shares.

American Stock Exchange prices were mixed on volume of 2,080,000 shares compared with 2,160,000 yesterday. Borne Chemical resisted further selling and rose 2¼ to 43¼, leaving it 36¾ points below the high it touched Monday.

Your Income Tax: 5

You May Cut Taxes By Listing Deductions

By FRANK CORMIER
Associated Press Staff Writer

The deductions which Uncle Sam allows you to claim on your income tax return may prove a real boon if you're a homeowner, debtor of philanthropist.

And even if you don't fall into one of these categories you may be able to reduce your tax substanially by itemizing your deductions.

To find out what's best for you, begin by writing down your total income on a piece of scrap paper. Then subtract any sick pay or job-connected expenses which you can claim on page 1 of form 1040, as discussed in the fourth article of this series.

What you have left is your adjusted gross income—the key figure in making out your tax return.

If you don't itemize deductions, Uncle Sam will allow you a standard deduction amounting to 10 per cent of your adjusted gross income, but with certain dollar limits. If you're single or file a joint return, the standard deduction can't exceed $1,000. If husband and wife file separate returns, they can't claim more than $500 each under the standard deduction.

Working from your adjusted gross income, figure out what your standard deduction would be. Then make a list of your actual deductions — on which there is no dollar limit — and see if they add up to a bigger sum.

Whichever method produces the bigger deduction is the one to use on your tax return.

Remember that if husband and wife file separate returns, both must either itemize or take the standard deduction.

The deductions you can itemize are detailed on pages 8, 9, 10 and 11 of the IRS instruction booklet. The major categories are:

CONTRIBUTIONS — This includes gifts to religious, charitable, educational, scientific or literary groups. However, you can't deduct gifts to political or propaganda organizations, social clubs, labor unions or chambers of commerce.

Contributions generally may not exceed 20 per cent of your adjusted gross income. However, 30 per cent is allowed if one-third of your contributions were to churches and tax-exempt hospitals and educational institutions.

INTEREST — This includes interest paid on your home mortgage, bank loan or personal debt. The carrying charge on many installment purchases isn't strictly interest but you can deduct part of it. Just figure out the average unpaid monthly balance and deduct 6 per cent of that figure as interest.

MEDICAL AND DENTAL EXPENSES — First, find 1 per cent of your adjusted gross income. You can include in medical expenses the cost of drugs and medicines that exceeds that amount. Next, find 3 per cent of your adjusted gross income. You can deduct medical expenses that exceed that amount.

The 3 per cent rule doesn't apply to the medical costs of persons 65 or older. The 1 per cent limit on drugs and medicines does apply, however.

There are dollar limits on deductible medical expenses for persons of all ages. The limitations start at $2,500. Limits for persons 65 and older and disabled were raised by Congress last year. Refer to page 10 of the instruction booklet for the rules.

?!

TAXES — Most non-federal taxes are deductible, including retail sales taxes, personal property and real estate taxes, state gasoline and poll taxes and auto license fees. Water taxes, hunting and dog licenses, federal social security payments and auto inspection fees are not deductible.

CASUALTY LOSSES AND THEFTS — You can deduct any loss not covered by insurance if your property was damaged in an auto accident or by fire, storm, hurricane, flood or other natural force. Losses from theft can be deducted in the year of discovery, but not losses from misplacing articles of value. Losses due to your willful act or negligence are not deductible.

CARE OF CHILDREN AND DISABLED DEPENDENTS — Up to $600 can be deducted by employed women and men who are widowed, legally separated or divorced, for the care of dependents who are under 12 or are physically or mentally unable to care for themselves. The care must be necessary to allow the taxpayer to work or seek work.

A married woman can claim the deduction only if she files a joint return with her husband. And the deduction must be reduced by the amount that the combined adjusted gross income exceeds $4,500.

In any event, you can deduct no more than the amount spent and child care payments cannot be made to a person you claim as a dependent.

EDUCATION — A new rule permits you to deduct expenses for education incurred primarily for either of the following reasons:

1. To maintain or improve skills required in your present job, trade or business.
2. To meet the express requirements of your employer, or requirements of laws or regulations, for keeping your salary, status or employment.

You can't deduct education costs if your aim is to fit yourself for another job or a substantial advancement in your present position, or if they are for personal reasons.

If you are away from home at least overnight to obtain education, you can deduct the cost of travel, meals and lodging on page 1 of form 1040 (along with other job-connected expenses). You can do this even if you don't itemize your other deductions. Outside salesmen can deduct all education costs on page 1.

MISCELLANEOUS — Job-connected expenses not claimed on page 1 of form 1040 are lumped in this category. Included are the cost of small tools required in your work, safety equipment, special uniforms, etc. The cost of travel to and from work is never deductible.

Other miscellaneous deductions include dues to a union or professional society, fees to employment agencies, the cost of entertaining customers — if your firm didn't reimburse you — and alimony or separate maintenance payments.

Note that anyone itemizing deductions must file form 1040. You can't itemize on 1040A.

The sixth and concluding article in this series will be carried Sunday and will contain some tips for tax filers, plus a special word for those who hope to strike it rich in 1959.

First Federal Presents...

The Director of the Budget of the United States on V.I.P.*, Sunday, Feb. 1, 6:30-7:00 PM... WCKT TV 7

* VERY IMPORTANT PERSON

MAURICE H. STANS, Director of the Bureau of the Budget, is a citizen of distinction who is a first generation American. His parents were from Belgium. When President Eisenhower requested his help in 1955 Mr. Stans separated himself from a lucrative nation-wide accounting business so he might be free to serve the country which had provided his opportunity for success. He was President of the American Institute of Accountants when he entered the public service. In private life Maury Stans is internationally known as a big game hunter. Mr. and Mrs. Stans and their four children think of Chicago as being home.

"FIRST FEDERAL Presents . . ." (or V.I.P.) has been offered by FIRST FEDERAL since May, 1957. This television series supports two basic purposes. It seeks to broaden the public's knowledge about the world in which we live and to increase its understanding and respect for those who labor in positions of high public trust. We take pride in this effort.

W H Walker
W. H. WALKER
Founder and Chairman

Guests who have appeared on V.I.P. include:

Senators of the United States from Indiana, Wisconsin, Florida, Washington, New Mexico, Michigan, Kentucky, Montana, Oklahoma, Idaho, Utah, South Dakota and Alaska; U. S. Representatives from 12 States; the delegate from the Territory of Hawaii; the Treasurer of the United States; Eleanor Roosevelt; the President of the Export-Import Bank; the Secretary to the President's Cabinet; the American Ambassador to Mexico; the Small Business Administrator; the Director of the U.S. Information Agency; the Commissioner of the Bureau of Labor Statistics, and 55 other distinguished Americans.

HARRY P. CAIN, moderator of V.I.P. is a Vice President at FIRST FEDERAL. His illustrious business and public career includes trust and commercial banking; service as mayor of Tacoma, Washington; in the United States Senate; on the Subversive Activities Control Board; and extensive airborne infantry duty on foreign soil in World War II.

Where are we headed? In 1940 the Federal budget was just over $5 billion. In the 1960 budget of $77 billion, more than $8 billion, alone, is earmarked as interest on the National debt. In 20 years the dollar has lost half of its purchasing power. This is inflation. Can Mr. Stans tell us how to stop it?

Airport Opened --Without Snow

Alaskan Indian Princess Forgetful -- But Pretty

By JOHN D. McDERMOTT
Herald Staff Writer

The four-day program inaugurating Miami's new 26-million-dollar International Airport got off to a shaky — but successful — start Thursday.

Someone lost the Alaskan snow flown here for the occasion and an Indian princess forgot the words to "America" during her dedication solo.

But aside from these minor mishaps, the celebration signaling the opening of the world's largest air passenger terminal began on schedule.

The "lost" snow and the slip-up by pretty Alaskan Indian Princess Red Rock occurred during the dedication of the "Forty-Niner Skyway" — a 4,900-mile marked aerial route between Miami and Fairbanks, Alaska.

The Indian princess blushed prettily, then grinned at the crowd of dignitaries assembled in the airlines terminal and commented:

"After all, we Alaskans just came into the Union."

However, with a little prompting from the audience, the single-feathered soprano got back on course and did "America" to the acclaim of all.

As for the snow, Master of Ceremonies Alex Gibson said it "must have been buried too deep in somebody's deep freeze."

Northwest Orient Airlines flew the "lost" snow to Miami Wednesday from Mount McKinley — highest mountain in North America.

The snow was to have been converted into snowballs which Princes Red Rock was to present to a family of Seminole Indians in exchange for Florida oranges.

Highlights of today's ceremonies include the opening of the Miami International Air Show and Exposition, displaying military demonstrations and exhibits at Masters Air Field, NW 27th Ave.

Also on tap is the arrival — at 9:45 p.m. from Washington — of Argentine President Arturo Frondizi. The Argentine chief of state will cut the ribbon to formally complete Miami's International Airport dedications Sunday afternoon.

The three-day air show runs daily from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m.

Mrs. Blanche Noyes, chief of the air marking division of the Federal Aviation Agency, called the Miami-Alaska skyway "one of the most wonderful in the world."

She said "it stretches across 1,500 miles of Canada, as well as the length of the U.S., giving a marked aerial route for fliers."

It was announced that a group of Miami aviation enthusiasts will make an inaugural run over the "Forty-Niner" route this summer.

Mrs. Noyes presented a scroll to Walter Weiss, chairman of the Metro Commission and the Port Authority. She also presented the skyway plaque to George McSherry, Port Authority director.

The plaque is mounted in the main waiting room of the airport terminal.

Other activities on Friday's Aviation Week program include a luncheon sponsored by the city of Coral Gables at the Riviera Country Club and a reception at Hialeah race course for visiting ambassadors and dignitaries.

The first day's festivities concluded with a dinner of the OX-5 Club, composed of pioneer Miami airmail and early-bird fliers.

Harrison Shuns Lie Detector

JACKSONVILLE — (AP) — James E. Harrison refused to take a lie detector test Thursday about his three-month disappearance during which he was thought a murder victim. "I've been pushed around enough," the 32-year-old Indian River city businessman said.

He talked privately with police for five hours after coming here from Miami in answer to a subpoena. Investigators said the conference produced nothing new in the case.

State Atty. William A. Hallowes said Harrison's story is inconclusive and the case is not closed.

Harrison disappeared Oct. 7 and turned up last week in Phoenix, Ariz. He said he remembered nothing from the time a stranger slugged him in a Jacksonville parking lot until he identified himself to Phoenix police.

In the meantime a California convict, Roy V. Olson, 23, confessed he killed Harrison. After Harrison was found alive, Olson repudiated his confession.

Officers, however, said Olson knew too many details and there was too much blood on Harrison's car — found abandoned on a Jacksonville street Oct. 14 — for them to believe there wasn't some basis to Olson's story.

The investigation now centers around two bags of fertilizer.

J. C. Patrick, Duval County's chief criminal investigator, said efforts will be made to firmly establish the purchase of the fertilizer by Harrison at a service station Oct. 7. A woman at the station told officers of such a purchase after Harrison's disappearance.

Harrison maintains he has no recollection of the purchase.

Jack Bell Is Winner

Herald Columnist Jack Bell has been named winner of the Fifth Annual Sertoma Club "service to mankind award," to be given at the club's annual banquet at 7 p.m. Saturday at the Miami Springs Villas.

The award will be presented by Royal D. Marks, of Phoenix, Ariz., international president. It is given by the combined clubs of Miami, South Miami and North Miami.

Sertoma's purpose is the employment of youth, 14 to 19, through its Youth Employment Service.

Customs to Expand Airport Activities

Despite a lapse in gunrunning with the end of the Cuban revolution, U.S. Customs authorities will expand their activities at International Airport.

A customs agent will be assigned there on a fulltime basis because of increased use of the airport as a port of entry.

On the Level

The 10-acre location of the proposed 20 million dollar Miami Herald building has been leveled and readied for preliminary construction, as shown in this aerial photograph. Plans for the plant — which will front Biscayne Bay between the MacArthur and Venetian Causeways — are more than 80 per cent complete. The next step will be the construction of a sea wall, after which the foundation will be placed. The newspaper building scheduled to be ready for use in 1960-61, will contain 900,000 square feet of floor space. It will be planned to meet the growing circulation and industrial needs of The Herald through 1980.

Six Boys Killed In Cocoa Crash

By DAN BROWN
Cocoa Bureau Chief

COCOA BEACH — One of the seven 18-year-old boys said, "Let's go to Cocoa Beach and see if there's a missile shoot."

So they raced to Cocoa Beach from Orlando early Thursday and six of them died when an elevated pipe which crosses the beach sheared off the top of their car.

The one survivor was given "only one chance in a 100 of living." He hadn't regained consciousness Thursday afternoon.

T. C. Worley, the contractor who strung the elevated pipeline across the south beach at Cocoa Beach was grief-stricken.

The line was used to "jet in" piles for the Bon Aire Motel bulkhead project, he said, and it had a red lantern on it.

Among the victims was Nickie H. Morgan of Orlando, a boy "who was crazy about missile shoots," according to his father.

Also dead were Patrick Costello, Kenneth L. D. Gardiner, James E. Weaver, Richard Knobler and John E. Roquemore — all of Orlando.

Only Kenneth Gepper survived.

The accident scene, which is about half mile north of Patrick Air Force Base, is on a section of the beach where driving is not allowed.

Roquemore, son of a prominent Orlando auto parts merchant, and the owner of the 1959 Ford death car, was convicted of causing three 1958 accidents and two 1957 accidents, according to Orlando records.

His record also shows a speeding conviction and one for illegal possession of liquor.

An auto parts business in Miami, Roquemores of Miami, Inc., of 675 NW 29th St., is also owned by young Roquemore's father. The boy's car license was issued in Dade County.

There was no liquor in the death car and no evidence any of the boys had been drinking.

Costelo, a starting basketball forward for Orlando Junior College, was a "good, hard-working athlete and a good, hard-working student," according to Ronald Cox, his basketball coach.

Knobler was a mystery. Papers on his body identified him as a resident of the Orlando YMCA. But YMCA officials said the boy, who lived alone, hadn't been at the Y in more than a month.

All they knew about him was that "his parents live up north some place, and he has an aunt in Daytona Beach."

Gardiner was a freshman at the University of Florida and a "nice guy" according to a classmate.

Morgan, Weaver and Gepper all were Orlando Junior College students like Costello.

Como Likes That Song

A repeat performance of "Tomboy," a song written by two Miami firemen, will be on the Perry Como television show Saturday night.

Jim Conway and Joe Farrell, who wrote the song during their off-hours at Fire Station No. 2, sent the song to Como on an oversize piece of plywood, with the words and music painted on. Como sang it on his Jan. 10 show.

RonCom Publishing Co. notified the two songwriters Thursday that Como has recorded the number and that the records will be released to Miami disc jockeys Saturday.

Farrell and Conway worked out the song on a battered firehouse piano they had tuned with a crescent wrench.

Dr. Lucas, Pro-Apple Man, Dies

EAST LANSING, Mich. — (AP) — Dr. Eugene Lucas, known for his scientific testing of the adage that an apple a day keeps the doctor away, is dead of a heart attack. He was 62.

An apple-loving horticulturist at Michigan State University, Lucas was running a four-year experiment on the health effects of apple-eating. In the tests, which will be continued, 500 students eating apples daily were checked for health against non-apple-eating students.

The University Hospital is keeping score on which groups have more of such common illnesses as colds, throat infections, skin disorders and stomach upsets.

He had said: "Although science has ridiculed folk tales for years, we have found much scientific foundation for lore that pertains to plants and diseases."

Lucas was better known in the scientific world for his research on cancer and tumors.

A native of Vienna, he received degrees from the University of Vienna and the University of Leipzig in Germany. He helped develop a wheat strain that still is widely used in Europe.

'Americans Live in Vacuum'

We Spurn Education, Philip Wylie Insists

By GENE MILLER
Herald Staff Writer

Acid-tongued author Philip Wylie said Thursday that Americans live in an absolute vacuum of deadly ignorance.

Before a turn-away crowd of 320 persons at the Miami Public Library, Wylie spoke on "Most Americans Don't Want Good Education."

He picked the topic, he said, because he was tired of talking on things controversial.

Dangling his spectacles and shuffling his notes, he denounced television quiz kids who spout junk, college students, who believe college is the place to get a "well-rounded personality," newspaper editors, and the insane lack of understanding of the real value of education.

"Did you ever think it was more important to know how television works than just watch the stuff on the screen?" he asked.

"Did you ever think it was more important to understand Freud's id, ego and super ego than just have a nervous breakdown?

"Did you ever think it was more important to study Buddhism, Mohammedanism and Christianity than belong to a church?"

Pop, Mom's husband, knows a little something about brass rods in New England, bulk tin, reads the Sunday comics and knows how to bowl, he said.

"His kids grow up and ask a million questions, Wylie said, and Pop says, 'I don't know; what do you want to know for?'"

Scores of millions of men welch on their duty of being parents, he said. This nation is comprised of athletes, merchants and draftee soldiers.

"What kind of a culture is that?" he asked. "You spend more money for tobacco than textbooks. You pay plumbers better than teachers."

The notion that you get an education by reading newspapers is idiotic, he said.

"Most editors are ignorant. If you don't believe it, read John Shively Knight's Editor's Notebook. He must hold the world record on being wrong," Wylie said.

Wylie said big newspapers are in the business of making money; not giving facts or information.

In this time, he said, when there is so much to know, the business of being informed has been abandoned.

While a billion people are being trained to make us slaves to communism, he said, the U.S. is weak and appleheaded. "All the power we have left is to commit suicide."

Wylie also denounced believers in flying saucers.

"It is a mental illness of the masses," he said. "And people hope men from Venus will come and get them out of trouble. It won't come true, kids," said Wylie.

Collins Asks Some Integration

By JOHN BOYLES
Capital Bureau Chief

TALLAHASSEE — Gov. LeRoy Collins moved Thursday toward full integration of the graduate schools at Florida State and the University of Florida.

He told the State Budget Commission that the graduate program at Florida A&M University for Negroes here is proving too costly.

Collins also told a press conference that he will oppose any constitutional change which would alter the guarantee of a uniform system of free public schools.

Collins asked State Budget Director Harry G. Smith to prepare some figures on the cost of the A&M graduate program.

Attorney General Richard Ervin has said he will recommend the Legislature adopt a parent option-tuition plan for private schools to bolster Florida's fight against racial mixing in the schools.

Nearly every other southern state has integrated its graduate schools without trouble, Collins told the Budget Commission.

He said the graduate program at Florida A&M ought to be reappraised in the light of economy as well as racial considerations.

In 1958 a federal district court order opened the graduate schools at the University of Florida to Negroes. Only one Negro has been admitted. He is in the school of law.

Collins said that during the past seven years the state has spent about $60,000 on every student graduate from the Negro law school at A&M. It has been operating seven years and has graduated six lawyers at a total cost of $370,000 and now has an enrollment of 18.

Under the state's "separate but equal" facilities doctrine, graduate schools in law, agriculture, pharmacy and education have been established at A&M.

"I think we are going to have to reappraise the A&M graduate program in the light of the state's financial position as well as in the light of this racial situation," the governor declared.

He said, "The people in Virginia tell me that the matter of educating Negroes in graduate schools poses no problem, and they are having the same experience in North Carolina, Tennessee, Oklahoma, Arkansas and Louisiana."

Collins said he had not had an opportunity to study Attorney General Ervin's proposal for a parent-option-tuition plan.

It would require a constitutional change to continue providing for free public schools but would knock out the requirement for a uniform system.

"I will reiterate, however," the governor said, "that I am opposed to any program that is going to destroy our public schools as we have enjoyed and benefited from them in the past."

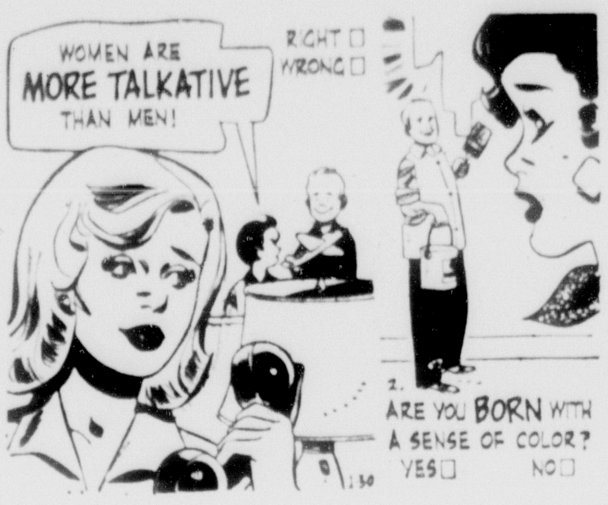
EXPLORE YOUR MIND

Men Talk, Too



WOMEN ARE MORE TALKATIVE THAN MEN!
RIGHT ☐
WRONG ☐
2. ARE YOU BORN WITH A SENSE OF COLOR?
YES☐ NO☐
1-30

By S. M. DUVALL and EVELAN M. DUVALL, Ph.Ds

WRONG. ALTHOUGH it may seem so. In general, men do quite as much talking as women do. There are, of course, great individual differences — strong, silent men and quiet women, as well as men and women who constantly chatter. There seems to be a real difference between men and women in what they talk about, but not in the amount of their talk. Because this is true, it becomes very important that your vocabulary be adequate.

2. No. You are born with the capacity for distinguishing colors. Your eyes are equipped at birth with the rods and cones that let you see things in living color. But you have to learn to tell one color from another, and to develop a sense of what colors go well with each other. Some persons get better at this than others, depending upon the special experience and training they have had.

LIFE WITH LARRY THOMPSON

Facial Analyzer Sad

I AM A GREAT expert at judging people by their faces. I can take one look at a person and read his character like a palmist reads a palm.

I like open-faced, smiling, happy faces. When I see somebody with a bright, cheerful face, I analyze him as a bright, cheerful person. If I see somebody who is smiling, I analyze him as a happy, likeable person.

I do not like grouchy people. When I see somebody with a sour puss and turned down mouth, I analyze him as a grouch, a person of ill will and one to be avoided.

It is a fine thing to have this talent for analyzing faces. One thing that bothers me, though, is that I can't use it on my own face.

There is no way I can deny that I have a sour puss. My mouth turns down at the corners. I frown all the time. I have a baleful look in my eyes. I almost never smile except at my own jokes.

I know that I am happy as a lark, that I am bubbling over with friendship and good will, that I am a likeable fellow, full of humor and chuckles. I can't help it that my face looks the way it does.

When I think of this, it makes me feel guilty sometimes when I see a character with a sour puss and turned down mouth and analyze him as a grouch who should be avoided.

You know, I may not be the only expert who urges my system of analyzing people. Maybe that's why I've been so avoided for so long.

GOODNESS, I'VE BEEN cultured without knowing it. I mentioned an old-time Edison record about the crow that the tailor tried to shoot, hitting his best cow instead, and now I find that it isn't doggeral but is high-toned.

Says James P. Barnes, 10811 SW 92nd Ave.: "That song was from the second act of the opera, 'Robin Hood,' by Regonald DeKoven and Harry B. Smith, popularized in the late 19th century. It was sung by baritone and chorus."

According to the verses sent in by Mr. Barnes, the tailor not only killed the cow but his favorite pig as well. The crow escaped without injury.

IT TOOK STUDY, time and effort, but Mr. and Mrs. James W. Dye, 750 NW 147th St., have solved one of the most irritating problems of civilization.

As you know, if you've ever changed a diaper, it is impossible to get the point of the average safety pin through the layers of diaper. When you do get it through, you draw blood.

"We found the answer," reports Mrs. Dye. "Run the point end of the pin through your hair—not the baby's hair—and the oil or the electricity does it. I feel many mothers would appreciate this helpful hint."

This is about the strangest solution I ever heard of, but if it works, I am sure that mothers will erect a statue of Mrs. Dye.

It would be life-sized, showing her with a diaper in one hand, a giant safety pin in the other. Naturally she would be running the pin through her hair.

If this works with father's hair, I wish I'd known about it a few years ago.

* * *

I UNDERSTAND THAT members of our Old Songs and Poems Musical and Literary Society have sent the words to the reader who asked about the song, "I'll Be All Smiles Tonight, Though My Heart May Break Tomorrow."

I figured this must be about some girl who was marrying a man she didn't like, but Ruby E. Haley, 424 NW 101st St., informs me that this girl's best boy friend married another girl, and she was going to the wedding.

What she was singing was that she would smile tonight during the wedding, but that she meant to go on a bawling binge the next day.

This is a very touching story. I don't know why this jilted girl thought she should go to the wedding, but since she did, I'm glad she didn't make a scene.

Hymn Fete Opens Today

A two-day hymn festival will be staged by the Miami Baptist Association today and Saturday.

Some 30 choirs of various ages, instrumental ensembles, piano solos, quartets, trios and student song leaders will be appearing at the sessions at 7:30 tonight and 9:30 a. m. Saturday.

Judges will be Mrs. Frances Deen, of the Dade public school music department; Mrs. Betty Newell, choral director at Shenandoah Junior High; and Mrs. Margaret deSola, choral director at Southwest High School.

Leslie L. Thompson, minister of music at Riverside Baptist Church, is director of the festival, which is open to the public.

Jack Kofoed Says

A Change in Courts Might Be Worthwhile

THE SUPREME Court is not omnipotent in its judgments. As a matter of fact, in most cases the learned justices do not see eye to eye, which results in one split decision after another. In recent years the court has steadily lost ground in the estimation of the American people.

Justices on the highest bench in the land are appointed for life. I wonder if better men, and a healthier condition, might be gained if they were given appointments for a specified period, and could be removed for physical or mental reasons, such as senility.

Through the years some justices have become dogmatic about personal philosophies . . . some have hung on into their 90s, when their reasoning became fogged by the years . . . some were strictly political appointees without legal background and experience essential to such a position.

When a president proves himself inept, he's retired to private life after his term ends. This is true, also, of senators, representatives, elective judges and others.

The Supreme Court is sacrosanct. Its members are beyond reach. This is bound to create a dusty approach to life and law. If they were appointed for 10 years, say, with possible reappointments, there might be a change for the better. It would have to be for the better.

A LADY, obviously in a high dudgeon, is leaving Florida because her husband, a physician of excellent reputation in another state, has been unable to get a license in this state.

Because of that, the woman goes off into a crimson tinged tirade against entertainers, who come here to work for staggering salaries.

She says they shouldn't be allowed to get that much money, or delve into other fields, like Pat Boone, Mary Astor and others who write books. There ought to be a law, she says, and if actors accumulate too much of the green stuff . . . take it away from them, or toss them into jail!

What this has to do with a doctor not getting a license in Florida has me baffled.

The bars are raised by members of his own profession, not comedians or singers or dancers. I am quite sure that if someone suggested that the incomes of physicians be sternly limited, this damsel would be first to scream "dictatorship."

LAST WEEK'S quick jet trip to New York was kind of a reunion with old friends, and old places . . . plus a brand new one. This was the Forum of the 12 Caesars, a restaurant which must be bracketed with the great ones of the world.

The funny thing was that the first fellow I met on entering was John Gerechter, with whom I played golf at the Hollywood Beach Hotel Country Club.

He's part of the Forum, and I didn't even know he had left Florida. This will let his many friends all over the state know where he is . . . and he couldn't be in a better spot.

YOU MUST have noticed John Crosby's syndicated column in The Herald the other day. It was all about television shows being originated here by Red Skelton, Arthur Godfrey, and Jan Murray, who are only a few of the many who'll do the same thing.

Credit should go where credit is due, and that is to Hank Meyer. The publicity value of these shows is incalculable, and couldn't be bought at any price.

What with the competition of Caribbean, and other resorts, we need all the ballyhoo we can get, too.

EUSEBIO Salsamendi is a tall, pencil thin, handsome Basque, who plays jai alai at the Dania fronton. He comes of a family, which has supplied top players to the canchas of the world for a hundred years.

Eusebio could stand as a model for professional athletes of any sport. A quiet spoken, literate gentleman, when he first came to play in Miami some years ago, he attended courses at the university.

For quite some time Salsamendi has been in the insurance business in the Hollywood-Fort Lauderdale area. Though still a fine player, he knows every athlete's productive life is never too long, so he is establishing a firm foundation for the future.

Snoopers' Surprise Party Plan Would Be a Real Dirty Trick

By ANN LANDERS

ANN

DEAR ANN: Some friends recently moved into a beautiful new home. The woman is a fastidious type, a perfectionist of the highest order. We're afraid it will be 10 years before she finds the perfect ash tray for every room and just the correct shade of tea towels. In other words if we wait until she considers her home "complete" for guest inspection, we'll be too old to make the steps.

Six of us gals are busting to see the house, and of course, we want to wish her well. Four of us are in favor of having a surprise party. We have 15 couples on the list, and we'd bring the food, beverages, and a lovely gift.

Two of the gals say it'd be a dirty trick, as she isn't the type of person who can be "walked in on." I say when she recovered from the inital shock she'd enter into the spirit of the thing and forgive all. Please advise. — THE GROUP

Dear Group: (Rhymes with Snoop): I'm with the two holdouts who think the surprise party would be a dirty trick. You four dames who want to barge in know very well that you're less interested in "wishing her well" than looking the house over. And so will she.

Since you know she's not the type who likes "surprises" I suggest you wait for an invitation and not bust in 30 strong, on an unsuspecting, ready-to-fall-in-a-hole hostess.

* * *

DEAR ANN: I'm 22 and going with a nice person but I don't love him.

Three months ago I got the shock of my life when a fellow I used to date exclusively told me he was infatuated with a girl who works in his office and he wanted to date her and find out if he loved her or me.

I told him I was not going to run in a contest for his love and asked him never to call me again. He argued I was being unreasonable — that he could have dated her behind my back, but I wouldn't listen.

I keep running into my true love at parties and meetings. He's begged me to see him and talk things over. I've refused. He's admitted he loves only me. I know I love him, but I'm still terribly crushed and hate to give him the satisfaction of knowing how much he hurt me. Please advise me.— DARK CIRCLES

Dear Dark Circles: So he loves you — and you love him, but you hate to give him the satisfaction? Who will you be hurting if you carry this secret to your grave?

Sufferin' catfish, Girl, get off your high-horse and take the guy back. He made a mistake, a bad one, but don't wreck your life by such a stiff-necked attitude. Now that he's eaten a liberal amount of crow, be big enough to admit your feelings, and go live happily ever after.

* * *

DEAR ANN: In a recent column, when a man wrote to ask whether or not his wife was wacky (she wrapped the garbage in newspaper and tied it with a string or ribbon, always being careful about the bow) you told him to relax with the knowledge that theirs was the most beautiful garbage in town.

You could be wrong, Ann. If that letter came from Dallas she has competition. My mother-in-law wraps her garbage in gift paper left over from Christmas and I've seen her frill the ribbon and do such a fancy job, you'd think the garbage came from Neiman-Marcus. Just thought you'd like to know. — DUKE

(P.S. Otherwise she's perfectly normal.)

* * *

CONFIDENTIAL To In Need: What you really need is a strategically placed boot, Brother. I suggest you leave this young girl alone before her father catches up with you.

* * *

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of The Miami Herald, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

JIMMY BURNS

Herald Sports Editor

Madala Thinks of Hialeah Patrons' Safety--Never His Own

IT WAS a shocking thing — the shooting of Hialeah's Protective Chief John Madala by an irate race track tipster. This was one of those incidents against which there is no protection.

All that Madala's friends (they number in the thousands) can do about it is pray for his recovery. Madala never gave a second thought to his own safety. He was too concerned with safeguarding Hialeah's thousands of patrons and the valuable thoroughbreds stabled at the track.

My friendship with Madala dates back to the days when he was an outstanding FBI agent. For years he was second in command of the Miami office. His profession calling for doing unpleasant things, but John was always pleasant about it if possible.

Madala was among the first to leave J. Edgar Hoover's fine organization to do race track policing. Protective service is the expression the track people like better.

* * *

Madala Retained Cheery Outlook

YOU NEVER think of Madala as a policeman. Both in the FBI and his race track work, he was brought face to face with the seamy side of life. This sours some people, but not Madala. He retained his cheery outlook on life and was polite, if firm, with those with whom he had to deal harshly.

One reason is that Madala likes people. He loves his work. I've never known a man to get more of a kick from horse racing than Madala. He doesn't bet at Hialeah, but John liked to wager a few bucks at Tropical and Gulfstream aud, as I wrote recently, he kept his good humor even when his choices ran out of the money.

Even at play, Madala thinks of his work. Once we were playing golf at Westview when he noticed a huge cloud of smoke in the general direction of Hialeah. Madala hurried to the clubhouse to call and be sure it wasn't his track on fire.

Maduro Is Fair with Rivals

MANY THINGS have happened since Roberto Maduro talked optimistically at a Havana breakfast table last November. Maduro figured the Cuban revolution would simmer down, setting the stage for his Havana club of the International League to do better in 1959.

MADURO

The revolution erupted into a Rebel victory and peace of sorts has been restored in Cuba. Off-hand you would think this would please the other International owners, who kept sending their teams to Havana last summer with no ill effects.

Instead Buffalo has raised the question of whether Havana should be continued in the league.

My guess is the vote will be seven-one to continue the baseball visits to Havana. The league needs a man like Maduro, who has been most co-operative with his associates. He even guarantees each team $800 per game, a stipend which helps cut the costs of traveling in a league extending from Montreal to Havana.

There have been some travel hardships for ball clubs going to Havana. Plane travel, even in the United States, is not as perfect as the advertisements lead you to believe. I recall heading for Montreal with the Marlins last year. We were due there at 4:30 p.m., but arrived early the next morning after spending anxious hours in New York wondering how we would continue.

Peace Worth Loss of 10 Days—Hecht

YOUR REPORTER made his annual visit to West Flagler Wednesday night and it was a pleasant one. This was due partially to excellent advice from Handicapper Joe Brown and in hearing President Isadore Hecht and Vice-president Jack Cooper wax optimistic.

Hecht

Hecht's plant will close next Monday night after running 80, instead of the customary 90 nights. Flagler and Biscayne gave up 10 nights each to help end bickering on allocation of dates to the South Florida tracks. Hollywood and Miami Beach got their full allocation.

"It was worth giving up the extra nights to make things more peaceful," said Hecht.

Cooper

There was a material side to Isadore's contentment, too. He said his tract will handle $18,100,000 for the shorter period compared with $19,000,000 last season.

When Flagler shutters, the track's greyhound fans will divide their business between Hollywood and the Beach until Biscayne opens the last of February.

Summer Dog Racing Seen as Aid

SUMMER DOG racing is a possibility here this year. Broward and Dade delegations are expected to sponsor a bill at the legislative session, starting in April, legalizing at least 50 nights of summer racing.

RING

"It will not increase South Florida's racing dates," Hecht explained. "We would like to rotate the summer dates and the track running then would take only half of its winter dates."

Chairman John Ring of the Florida State Racing commission said his body will not take an active role in the move.

"We will not be unfriendly to the new plan," said Ring. "If the legislature asks our advice, we will support that the plan is okay if it calls for no more than 50 nights to be run during July and August."

"It would be a shot in the arm for bringing tourists here, and the community certainly needs a boost," said Hecht. (Few will disagree with him).

Title Bout in Summer

Patterson Signs To Meet Johansson

By JACK HAND
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK—Floyd Patterson will defend his world heavyweight boxing title against Sweden's Ingemar Johansson next summer in the United States, probably in New York, Los Angeles or Colorado Springs.

Pattersen can risk his championship against some other opponent before the Johansson bout under the terms of his contract with Promoter Bill Rosensohn. Johansson must not take any other fight before the Patterson bout.

The world champ will get 40 per cent or a $300,000 guarantee. Johansson, the unbeaten European champion, will get 20 per cent or a $100,000 guarantee. The percentages will be based on the net gate, including television receipts.

Although Rosensohn, promoter of Patterson's most recent defense against Roy Harris in Los Angeles last August, formerly was vice president of a closed circuit TV company, he said there was no deal for TV rights.

"I will investigate all media, all offers," he said. "As I said earlier if it means getting a weekly television show there is a good chance it might be on home television."

The prolonged negotiations that have spanned two continents and required almost four months call for a rematch within 90 days if Johansson should upset Patterson. The promoter is to select the site. Each fighter would get 30 per cent of that gate.

Patterson, 24, has been inactive since he stopped Harris in the 12th round, Aug. 18. However, he has been training steadily and weighs about 190 pounds. He will fight at about 185 pounds. This will be the fourth defense for the man who was the sensation of the 1952 Olympic Games when he won the 165-pound crown.

On the contrary, Johansson was no sensation in the Olympics. He was disqualified for running and not fighting in the heavyweight final against the late Ed Sanders of the United States. But that was seven years ago and he is unbeaten in 21 professional bouts. The handsome 26-year-old Swede has scored 12 knockouts.

He vaulted into prominence as the No. 1 contender when he knocked out highly-rated Eddie Machen of Redding, Calif., in one round, Sept. 14.

Miami Strengthens Bid

Ray 'Okays' Moore Bout

Middleweight Champion Ray Robinson, who has been offered $450,000 to fight Light Heavyweight Champion Archie Moore, said Thursday night "I am looking forward to making the match."

Robinson made the statement by long distance telephone to Movie Actor George Raft, spearheading a group anxious to promote the match.

The conversation was carried by television station WPST (Channel 10) where Raft was appearing as a guest on Sportscaster Steve Ellis' 11 p.m. show.

Asked if "he would consider going in with Moore," Robinson said:

"Yes. I've been thinking about it and considering it since we've been talking back and forth by phone.

"I'm looking forward to making the match."

When Raft told Sugar Ray "I'll see you Tuesday in New York," Robinson replied:

"I'm anxious to sit down with you two."

His multiple reference was to Jack (Doc) Kearns, manager of Moore who also appeared on the Ellis show.

When asked if he thought he would have a chance with Moore, Robinson said:

"I've never made a bet . . . a prediction . . . about a fight. I know Archie is a great gladiator.

"But if I go into the ring

Record 35 Yachts Enter Lipton Race

A record-breaking fleet of 35 yachts has entered Saturday's 34th annual Lipton Cup Race, 28-mile opener of the 1959 Southern Ocean Racing Conference.

Included is last year's victor, Miamian Jack Price's 39-foot yawl, Comanche.

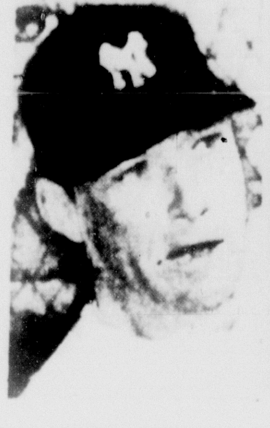
Chairman Edwin H. (Ned) Mairs said the fleet includes 12 boats in Class A; 14 in Class B, and nine in Class C.

Final instructions will be given during a skippers' meeting at 5 p.m. today at Biscayne Bay Yacht Club.

'I've Done Good Job'

Mantle: Casey Is Out Of Line

DALLAS—(AP)—Mickey Mantle says "I don't want to sound like I'm bragging, but I think I've done a good job for them and Casey Stengel is out of line."



MANTLE

STENGEL

Mantle thus defended himself against comments made earlier this week by Yankee Manager Stengel. The manager said, "two players on this club should be making from $75,000 to $125,000 a year, but they have kept themselves from earning it."

He didn't name the men he referred to, but Mantle and Pitcher Whitey Ford generally were believed the players Stengel meant.

Mantle is in the middle of a pay dispute with the Yankees. Neither side will pinpoint the amount, but it is believed his 1959 contract calls for a $5,000 cut from his estimated $75,000 last year. Mantle wants a raise to $85,000.

"I played in 150 games last year, more than anybody in the league, I think," he said. Actually, Boston's Jackie Jensen and Frank Malzone, Detroit's Frank Bolling and Chicago's Nelson Fox were the only players to appear in more.

TURLEY

I walked more than anybody else and I scored more. I've led the league in scoring four or five times in the last seven years," Mantle said.

His average slumped to .304 last year from .365 in 1957, but Mantle led the circuit in homers, 42, and runs driven in, 97.

He had a quip for Stengel at a dinner Tuesday night when asked about terms of his contract this year.

"I know there's going to be a lot of questions like that," he said. "I would just like to say by good, clean living and staying in training you can make $125,000."

Mantle also told the Knights of Columbus dinner that he believes the Yankees and the Milwaukee Braves will meet again in the World Series.

* * *

But Turley's Happy, Signs for $32,000

NEW YORK—(AP)—New York pitching ace Bob Turley, who estimates he has traveled 75,000 miles this winter collecting plaques, trophies and other mementoes for being the American League's only 20-game winner in 1958, found time Thursday to drop into the Yankee office and sign his 1959 contract.

The big right-hander did all right in that department, too, walking out with an estimated $32,000 contract. This represents a $7,000 increase.

"Turley received a very substantial raise," declared Assistant General Manager Roy Haney. "And he earned it, too."

Turley didn't have to tell newsmen that he was satisfied. The big grin on his face was proof enough.

"I got exactly what I asked for," he said beaming.

Bob posted a 21-7 record and an earned run average of 2.98 in 1958. He won two games and saved another for the Yankees in the World Series against the Milwaukee Braves.

'Won't Hurt College Football'

Bryant: Who's Afraid of The Pros?

By LUTHER EVANS
Herald Sports Writer

Paul (Bear) Bryant believes in positive thinking, positive talking and, above all, positive hitting by his football teams.

And Bryant needed no longer than his first season as head coach for his alma mater, Alabama, to indoctrinate his athletes with such ideas.

Able to win only twice in 1957 (over soft-touches Mississippi Southern and Georgia), the Bear's "hitters" struck last season for a 5-4-1 record.

"Just loafing" Thursday at the Key Biscayne Hotel, Bryant voiced varied positive opinions. Such as:

1 — The Southwest Conference is a tougher league than the Southeastern.

2 — Widening of college goal posts from 19½ to 24 feet wont' encourage more emphasis on field goals.

3 — The pros won't run college football out of business because "they're two different games."

4 — Coaching at Alabama, where he played end as an undergraduate, is "the most wonderful thing that ever happened to me."

Bryant, who coached Texas A&M to an 8-2 record and a Gator Bowl bid in 1957, believes there is "very little difference" in the caliber of top teams in the Southwest and Southeastern circuits.

"But", he said, "I think the overall competition is a little keener in the Southwest. Instead of having just one traditional opponent you have, about six big rivals.

"That's because the schools are located so close together. Everybody plays everybody else each season—and anyone can win.

A proponent of goal posts moved to the goal lines, Bryant said: "I don't think widening the posts five or six feet will encourage many teams to go for more field goals. Distance is what we have trouble with."

Bryant didn't take kindly to the suggestion that pro football may be killing interest in collegians.

"There's room for both," he said. "They're absolutely two different games. The pros put on a great production. And fans go to see the perfection of individual stars.

"But college football is different. It provides a rallying point for people. It gives them more rooting interest."

Bryant insists that he originally had no desire to return to Tuscaloosa as coach. "But after I got there I decided it was the most wonderful thing that ever happened to me."

Bryant had no sooner labeled Louisiana State and Auburn as the SEC teams to beat again in 1959 than someone mentioned the university of Miami must play both within a three-week period.

Bear expressed his commiseration for Andy Gustafson with just two words:

"Oh . . . goodness."

Ex-National Open King Cary Middlecoff Blasts Out at Bayshore
. . . his team won charity exhibition but Cary lost to Sam Snead

Nothing Pleased Sam

Middlecoff Trio Tops Fuming Snead's Team

By RAY CRAWFORD
Herald Sports Writer

Sam Snead wasn't particularly happy Thursday afternoon while smacking a golf ball around Bayshore course.

He wasn't pleased with the way he was hitting his shots although he scored 70.

He didn't like Bayshore's high fairway grass and stubby greens.

He was irritated over playing in a sixsome with himself and Cary Middlecoff teeing off from one spot, amateurs Frank Strafaci and Jack Penrose hitting from another and women golf pros Marlene Hagge and Mickey Wright from still another place.

And, most of all, he didn't like losing to Cary Middlecoff's team.

★ ★ ★

Middlecoff, Mrs. Hagge and Penrose whipped Snead, Miss Wright and Strafaci, 4-up, in the exhibition match played for benefit of Variety Children's Hospital.

In individual match play, Snead beat Middlecoff, 1-up, although both had 70's.

Penrose, 71, beat Strafaci, 74, 2-up, and Mrs. Hagge, 72, downed Miss Wright, 78, 5-up.

"This is the first time I ever played anything like this," Snead said. "I think it causes confusion having everybody hit from a different place."

On the other hand, the amateurs and the women liked their distance advantage. And, despite hitting from 20 to 40 yards back of the others, Snead usually managed to outdrive everybody.

At the end of five holes, Middlecoff's team was three up to the joy of the crowd, obviously rooting for the "underdog" Middlecoff team. A birdie on No. 1 by Penrose, another on No. 3 by Middlecoff and an eagle 3 (women's par 5) by Mrs. Hagge on No. 5 provided the upset.

The only other holes won were on No. 9 where Middlecoff ran in an 18-foot birdie putt, No. 10 where Middlecoff sank an eight-footer and on No. 17 where Snead dropped a curving 25-foot putt.

Heavies Sign For Beach Semifinal

Garvin Sawyer, 23-year-old Cincinnati heavyweight hope, and Ollie Wilson of Hartford, Conn., have been signed for a 10-round semifinal on Tuesday night's Mickey Crawford-Gomeo Brennan card at Miami Beach Auditorium.

Sawyer was impressive recently in going 10 rounds with ranking heavyweight Zora Folley on a TV show. A fine puncher, he has kayoed such as Embril Davidson and Cal Butler.

Sawyer turned pro in 1955 after winning the National A.A.U. and International Golden Gloves championships the previous year.

Ussery Rides $17.70 Hialeah Winner

Sonny Dan Routs 1-2 Backbone

By JOE McLAUGHLIN
Herald Turf Editor

Victory Stable's Sonny Dan, under a smart ride by Bobby Ussery, made every post a winning one to capture Hialeah's Live Oak purse Thursday with the greatest of ease. A crowd of 14,346 watched the race.

Clocked in 1:23 2-5 for the seven furlongs, the gelding by Hawley-Luk O'Sullivan never made a misstep to win by four lengths over the 1 to 2 favored Backbone with Sam Boulmetis aboard.

Fabulous Fox was a head away for third and Misty Flight a neck back for fourth.

Backbone, weighted at 124, was scratched from Wednesday's Palm Beach due to the off conditions of the track but he met a tartar in Sonny Dan Thursday.

Sonny Dan broke fast as the gate opened, and outraced Greek Star for the lead with Backbone third. The latter caught Greek Star going to the far turn and then made an effort to challenge Sonny Day. But there was no catching the flying leader.

Sonny Dan returned a wholesome $17.70.

JIMMY JONES tossed a saddle over Calumet's Cole's Melody, a filly by Heliopolis-Twosy, for the fifth race and Chris Rogers gave the gal a perfect front-running victory in 1:24 4-5 for the seven furlongs.

Showing the way to Bay Point by a length and a quarter, the Calumeter hung up a $20.50 mutuel.

Landman, tardy at the start, saved the show just a nose off Bay Point but six ahead of Star Wagon.

Cole's Melody, idle since last October, had won her last start at Garden State.

ENGLAND'S 1959 juvenile champion, Tudor Melody, is definitely out of Hialeah's $100,000 Flamingo of February 28, trainer John Nerud confirmed Thursday.

"The colt is doing fine and I'm well pleased with him," Nerud said, "but some small difficulties delayed him and he hasn't progressed to a point where he'd be ready for such a tough race. The farthest he's breezed is a half-mile."

4-Ball Golf Champs Win On 19th Hole

LINDSAY

By JIMMY BURNS
Herald Sports Editor

HOLLYWOOD — Defending Champions Mary Ann Downey of Baltimore and Marjorie Lindsay of Decatur, Ill., Thursday had the roughest time surviving the opening round of the 14th Women's International Four-Ball Golf Tournament at Orange Brook.

The Downey-Lindsay team, which won this tournament in 1957 and again last year, was forced to the 19th hole to beat Joan Burke, Hollywood, and Shirley Lindsay, Marjorie's sister.

"We lost two of the first three holes because we couldn't putt," Marjorie explained. The defenders turned one-down, but Marjorie became more accurate with her putter to square the match on the 18th with a par five when Joan three-putted.

Marjorie ended the competition with a par four on the 19th hole.

It was the first time the two Lindsay sisters had met in tournament competition, and Marjorie said: "I hope it was the last time. It was too nerve-wracking."

Two other matches ended on the final hole (18th), where Doris Phillips and Dale Fleming beat Tish Preuss and Virginia Ott, 1-up when Dale downed a putt for a winning par.

In the other full-length match, Alice Dye and Berridge Long combined for pars on the last hole to cash in their 1-up lead over Nancy Roth, attractive Hollywood blonde, and Pat Tiernan. Nancy, who showed class in the Doherty last week, scored two birdies on the back side.

The most one-sided victory was posted Judy Bell and Barbara McIntire in beating Glenda Fruehan and Gerry Adamson, 7-5. This team is favored to reach the finals against either the duos of Betty Kerby-Joanne Goodwin or Marlene Streit-Ann Casey Johnstone.

Each of the latter teams won by 5-4 margins. Miss Goodwin is the 1956 Doherty champion, and lost to Mrs. Streit last Sunday in the finals of that tournament.

Hialeah Five Invades Jackson Gym

Talented Hialeah High, loser of only two of 11 games, visits dangerous Jackson tonight in the top local high school basketball game tonight.

Another interesting contest will be played at North Miami where the lowly but potentially explosive Pioneers host strong West Palm Beach.

Bernie Butts, Hialeah's ace and Dade County's top scorer, carries a 27-plus average against Jackson.

Jackson Coach Speedy Hecht said his cage captain, Ernie Yarashuk, will return to action tonight. Yarashuk was sidelined two weeks ago.

Other games include:

Pep Loses Two in Row; Quits Ring

HARTFORD, Conn. — (AP) — Willie Pep, who made a fortune in the ring and spent most of it, is looking for a job.

The 36-year-old former world featherweight champion broke the news of his retirement from the ring Wednesday night to his old friend, Sports Editor Bill Lee of The Hartford Courant.

"It was my own decision," he told Lee, a decision he made during a plane ride from Caracas, Venezuela.

"Nobody likes to end up a loser and I've lost my last two fights," explained Pep, "but I thought it all out and I'm through. There will be no comebacks."

Is the hawk-faced former boxing master who earned more than a half-million dollars during his fabulous 22-year ring career broke?

On the say of Lee, the answer is "to all intents and purposes, yes." Three years from now, Pep stands to pick up a check for $50 weekly from an annuity which becomes effective on his 39th birthday, but that's about it.

As a pro, Willie won the 126-pound title and set records that may never be erased. He punched out victories over 224 foes, lost to 10 and was held to a draw once.

Buffalo Wants to Play Sugar Kings in Jersey

MONTREAL — (AP) — Roberto Maduro, president of the Havana Sugar Kings, is expected to submit a bright report to the International League today on prospects for baseball this season under the new revolutionary regime in Cuba.

Maduro and Paul Miller, general manager of the Sugar Kings, head the Cuban delegation to the annual meeting of the 76-year-old league and a banquet tendered by the pennant-winning Montreal Royals.

Both men were reported confident of a revival of baseball popularity in the island republic under the Rebel government.

But at least one club, the Buffalo Bisons, is opposed to continuing IL games in Cuba, where the Sugar Kings have held a franchise since 1954. The Bisons opened the IL season in Havana last year.

John Stiglmeier, general manager of the Bisons, said, "I hear people are stockpiling guns down there and it's still a dangerous situation."

Stiglmeier favors having the Cuban games transferred from Havana to Roosevelt Stadium in Jersey City.

Stiglmeier met with Harold F. Kierce, deputy to Bernard J. Berry, the Jersey City Park director.

After the meeting, Kierce sent a telegram to league president Frank Shaughnessy in Montreal in which he extolled the virtues of Roosevelt Stadium. Kierce asked Shaughnessy to read the message at today's meeting.

Other league members are understood to be in favor of continued play there. The Toronto Maple Leafs invited Castro to throw out the first ball when they open the 1959 II season in Havana April 14.

The Rebel chieftain has been described as a former minor league pitcher.

Although not on the meeting's official agenda, the club owners also are expected to discuss a threat by league player representatives to strike for a pension plan.

Sally League Picks Alabaman

JACKSONVILLE — (AP) — Sam Smith Jr., Dothan, Ala., baseball official, was elected president of the South Atlantic Baseball League Thursday and will take over the Class A circuit's reins Sunday.

He succeeds Sam Wolfson, who resigned recently. Smith also is president of the Class D Alabama-Florida League.

Navy Shifts Irish Game To Philly

BALTIMORE — (AP) — The 1960 Navy-Notre Dame football game has been officially shifted to Philadelphia and the Middies will play the Air Force Academy in this city for the first time that year, Capt. Slade Cutter said Thursday.

Cutter previously had said the Navy-Notre Dame game would be transfered to Philadelphia because of the lack of patronage here.

He had informed the Baltimore park board in a letter "the record clearly shows that there are few Navy football fans in Baltimore."

Navy had played the Irish here as one of its home games. In 1958, the contest drew a capacity crowd of some 27,700.

with him, I must think I'd have a chance to win."

By arrangement, Miami Boxing Commissioner Chuck Geiger called Raft later in the program and urged Raft Enterprises to consider Miami as a site for the bout.

"On behalf of the City of Miami and the Miami Boxing Commission I ask you to give every consideration to Miami as the place to hold the bout," Geiger said.

With Yankee Stadium, the Los Angeles Coliseum and Havana also being considered, Kearns explained:

"It all depends on the date."

Kearns said he did not feel there would be any trouble on Moore agreeing to Raft's terms.

"We've talked about several different guarantees, Kearns said, "and so far they've been the biggest Archie ever had."

Raft, however, did not mention $450,000 as a guarantee to Robinson in their open-to-the-public TV talk.

Argyll Hits Line First

RIO DE JANEIRO —(AP)— The American yacht Argyll, skippered by New York's William T. Moore and navigated by Miami's Phil Tomlinson, was first to finish Friday in the 1,200-mile race from Buenos Aires.

Tomlinson said the Argyll's elapsed time was 11 days, 23 hours, 31 minutes and 25 seconds.

Trogdon Says 'No' To FSU Job Offer

After careful consideration, George Trogdon has said "thank you . . . no" to an offer to serve as an assistant coach under Perry Moss at Florida State University.

"My football future is behind me," Trogdon said Thursday. "I coached for 30 years — longer than any other coach in the state.

"But my business interests (real estate, citrus and cattle raising) prevent my continuing at the University of Miami on a part-time basis . . . or going to FSU.

"Perry made a nice proposition," said the former Miami High head coach who told Coach Andy Gustafson last month he planned to retire.

"Moss said I could come up during the season and have the rest of the year free. But I just can't see my way clear."

The popular Trogdon has an Aberdeen Angus herd on a ranch at Fort Myers; is associated with a local real estate brokerage, and has agreed to manage a citrus grove he recently sold at Qauchula.

Anthony Seeks 8th in Row In TV Scrap With Vargas

NEW YORK —(AP)— Young Tony Anthony, now an avowed heavyweight, will try to make it eight straight tonight in Madison Square Garden against Rueben Vargas of Richmond, Calif.

Although the 23-year-old Anthony is ranked No. 1 among light heavyweight contenders, he prefers to go for broke with the big boys. He will be spotting Vargas about 15 pounds.

The 10-round match will be carried by NBC TV (Channel 7) starting at 10 p.m. (EST).

TV FIGHT

Nobody has beaten Anthony since Archie Moore stopped him in a title bid in 1957. He won all seven starts last year, five by knockouts, boosting his career record to 37-5-1. He has stopped 28 opponents.

Vargas, 25, makes his Garden debut in this contest. He is hailed as a puncher with a 17-6 record, including 13 knockouts.

Vargas' 1958 record showed knockouts over Johhny Mayes, Jackie Torme and Young Jack Johnnson. He lost to Alex Miteff and was stopped by Monroe Ratliff.

4 'B' Winners In Beach Ninth

Four dogs which scored Grade B victories in their most recent starts will clash in an evenly-matched Grade A ninth race at the Miami Beach Kennel club tonight.

The four are Kelvin Dee, Trans Trix, Foxy Guy and Flashy Moon. However, the favorite's role could fall to Dixie's Son, overdue for a winning effort.

The Grade A eighth, also over the O. P. Smith course, appears just as tight a fit. The field includes J. R.'s Image, Remember Mama and Colebrook, all close up in their latest efforts.

J. R.'s Image was second to Miss Monica and Remember Mama closed fast for a runner-up spot to Parnell Mary.

Secret Session Eyes 9th Win

Gold Coast's Secret Session, who owns eight victories, goes after another in tonight's ninth race at Flagler Kennel club. Bold Larry, Derman and Mystery Guide, all boasting five wins, head the opposition.

In the co-featured 10th, Jotaway, Barter Point and Master Spot all go after a seventh triumph.

Stake Eligibles In 3-8 Feature

Six potential starters in the upcoming $10,000 Silver Anniversary stake go into action in tonight's 11th race over the 3-8 mile course at Hollywood Kennel club. They are Warmed Over, Soapy Jones, Mar Rusty, Run Best, Keep Hunting and Runyonese.

The ninth event is a 3-16 sprint offering, matching Blue Ember, Tough Oak and Andato, among others. Three Kings tops a field of early speed dogs going postward in the 10th over the Hollywood course.

Inshore Fishing Slow, But Sails Can Be Had

With inshore fishing around Miami at a slow pace, this weekend appears to be a fine time to go after that sailfish you've been wanting.

At this writing, weather conditions are perfect for comfortable Gulfstream fishing, and sails are plentiful in the blue water. Charter boats from all Greater Miami docks have been hitting consistently on sailfish. Several strikes per day are common.

DUNAWAY

Remember it doesn't cost a big chunk of money to go out on a charter boat, either. Get together with some of your fishing pals and work up a share-expenses party. And if you can't work this, then wander down to your nearest dock and see if there in't a single seat open. Usually there is.

Aside from sailfish and the Gulfstream standbys of bonito and barracuda, the ocean is rather uncooperative these days. Kingfish refuse to school in big numbers, although the few taken are real whoppers. This is a common situation, for big kings are individualists which keep pretty much away from the packs of smaller ones.

* * *

Plenty of Scrappy Blue Runners

THE OCEAN PIERS of Miami Beach are low on mackerel, bluefish and kingfish. Some big bonitos, however, are attracting anglers. And if you're looking for fast fishing, family style, take the kids out to one of the piers and let them wage battle against the hordes of scrappy blue runners.

South Bay waters offer small bluefish, fair bottom fishing, and a few mackerel. Bonefish are active around Norris Cut and Key Biscayne. Occasional big catches of pompano also are being recorded from the Government Cut and Norris Cut territories.

In the northern portions of the bay, fine panfishing is reported by the Blue Marlin Fisheries at 163rd Street. Snappers bite fast in Dumbfoundling Bay and the Oleta River, while a good run of croakers is also under way. Where the Oleta River joins the inland waterway close to the Sunny Isles drawbridge, angler's have been hitting small bluefish, drum and even an occasional redfish.

Crabbing is hot on the Oleta River, both for numbers and size.

Sails Plentiful Out of Marathon

FROM JEWFISH CREEK Harry Gilbert says trolling in Barnes Sound usually pays off in mackerel, bluefish, or both — but not in long strings.

"Trout are the same," he adds. "Small catches of six or seven per party. For those who want them, however, snappers are available by the dozen."

Marathon, according to mate Clara Schoen of the party boat Sea Legs, is fattening up on kingfish and sailfish.

"Kingfishing has been real good. Some days small kings are heavily schooled. Other days see the larger fish, but in smaller concentrations. We usually make the run to the Bahia Honda Bridge, and few customers complain about the longer trip, for that's where the kings are schooled.

FISHING
with Vic Dunaway

"Sails are plentiful. We should know, because we've goofed six in a row and are trying to break the jinx, but charter boats are doing very well."

Snappers are hitting the deck in hefty weight and large number out of Layton's Long Key Camp. Specimens of 3-6 lbs. have been regular fare during the last week. Also in the limelight are groupers as big as 14 pounds.

Tarpon are romping around the Channel 5 bridge, and bonefish are reported thick on nearby flats.

Bass on Boom at Lake Okeechobee

FRESHWATER devotees will find the usual good action on the Tamiami Canal, and canal territory north of Hialeah.

Bass are on the boom at Lake Okeechobee. Shellcrackers finally made a belated appearance in the big pond, and bream fishing is improving every day.

Rafer Johnson Gets State Post

SACRAMENTO, Calif. — (AP) — Gov. Edmund G. Brown Thursday appointed Rafer Johnson, world record holder in the decathlon, to a four-year term on the state recreation commission.

Johnson, 23, is a senior and student at UCLA.

Members of the recreation commission serve without pay and advise the governor on recreation needs and policy.

Bowlers Aplenty

The Women's International Bowling Congress began 1959 with 7,743 sanctioned leagues and 962,292 female bowlers.

Arrarte, Orbea Click In Doubles

Arrarte, a youthful Basque considered the most improved player on the Miami Fronton roster, has combined with Orbea to form one of the most effective doubles teams of the current jai alai season.

Always long on offensive ability, Arrarte this year blossomed into a tremendous defensive factor in the back court and so impressed Players' Manager Pedro Mir that he was moved into featured doubles play.

In 20 trips postward, Arrarte and Orbea have won or placed six times.

Ondarra Ready For Title Quest

Ondarra, winner of the singles crown at the Dania Jai Alai Palace for the last two seasons, appears to be getting ready for another mid-season surge.

Trailing Isasa by six victories, Ondarra scored three wins in one night last week. Similar mid-season streaks have won the title for Ondarra the last two years.

Tonight Ondarra operates from the No. 1 post.

Redskins Seeking New Training Site

Beginners: Curb That Backswing

By BILLY SIXTY

How high should the ball be at the top of the backswing? It varies with different bowlers, but the beginner will do well to restrict it to shoulder level.

An exaggerated backswing results in a ball that's difficult to control. The body, on the fourth step, is likely to be ahead of the ball.

The sketch illustrates a backswing that leaves the bowler balanced and co-ordinated in a smooth swing. Once the ball has swung backward to the extent of its momentum, it will come downward of its own weight. The length of the backswing determines the speed of the ball. The arm is straight, the swing grooved close to the body. There is no forcing action.

It all begins with the push-away that starts the ball into motion. In order to lengthen the backswing and increase the speed at which the ball will be rolled, increase the push-away. Start the ball higher and push it out farther.

'No, No, That's Wrong!' Cries Nurse Rebecca Lawrence
. . . as reporter Eddie Gong learns to hold baby

New Father Learns How To Bathe Baby--Daily

By EDDIE GONG
Herald Staff Writer

Your wife expecting a baby soon?

As a future Daddy you should know how to give baby a bath.

My wife had a girl several weeks ago so I took in the free Red Cross "How to Bathe Baby" class the other night at 5020 Biscayne Blvd.

All the other men were "expectant fathers" and we were all nervous. Nurse Rebecca Lawrence of the Florida State University nursing staff was in charge.

* * *

A PRETTY STUDENT NURSE handed me a "baby"—a lifesize baby doll, fully-clothed and snugly wrapped in a blanket.

"No, Mr. Gong, don't put open diaper pins into your mouth and never leave them opened on baby's bed. A baby could flick one into his eye."

First a hair shampoo for the baby. Then a quick rinse.

"That's incorrect, sir," said the nurse. "That's a half nelson your using to hold the baby with."

Finally I mastered the "football" hold. That's done by tucking baby on your hip under an elbow.

I rinsed and dried baby's hair. "Please remember to keep the towel out of baby's face," reminded the nurse.

* * *

THEN I GOT my baby soaped up into a fine lather but forgot about its face and was corrected again. Now into the tub. Water just right says your elbow and baby is thoroughly soaped.

I grabbed baby by the neck and the ankles and was about to put him in feet first into the tub. Baby was slippery and just about to get away from me when Miss Lawrence came to my rescue.

"You have to use the Arm and Leg hold on baby and put him in feet first," she said.

The judo-type hold was wonderful.

The rest was easy except for the dressing part—I had to do it twice because I forgot to put an undershirt on baby.

* * *

"NOW YOU HAVE WASHED your first baby," said Miss Lawrence. "You must do this everyday after your baby arrives home from the hospital."

"Are you supposed to bathe the baby every day," I asked.

"That's correct," she replied. "Don't you bathe yours everyday?"

"Uh . . . no," I gulped. "We haven't given her a bath yet."

"How old is your baby?"

"Only three weeks old," I replied.

"Are you serious," she exclaimed in disbelief.

I sputtered out a sheepish "yes."

The class roared.

The Jack Paars Saw Hosts' Colt Win Race

Petare Caused Latin Fireworks

WHEN THAT bundle of Venezuelan energy Petare runs at Hialeah Saturday, eyes will be focused as much on his owners and his trainer as they will be on him.

Petare's victory in last Saturday's Royal Palm Stakes set off a display of Latin fireworks the likes of which Hialeah has seldom seen.

In the winner's circle the Anselmo A. Dorato family, trainer Millard Farisziadie, jockey Gustavo Avila and all their friends hugged and kissed and trilled cadenzas of ecstatic Spanish.

Although every horse owner loves to see his entry win, it is sledom that such uncurbed joy is displayed over a victory. Petare's people and their reaction made lots of other people happy, too.

* * *

IN CONTRAST to the Doratos is Adele L. (Mrs. Frank) Rand whose Clem won the Palm Beach Stakes Wednesday. She summers in New York, winters on her enormous Santa Fe ranch and, although many of her horses race here, never comes to Florida.

First Visits Of the Season

FIRST VISIT this season was marked for several at Hialeah Wednesday. Although her husband has been coming out regularly, lovely Mrs. Paulding Fosdick didn't make the trip from Palm Beach until this week.

Mrs. Ellsworth Augustus came down from Fort Lauderdale, although not to see her own horses run. They're resting up from the summer season on her Aiken farm.

With the J. R. H. Thourons was first timer Mrs. Roy Carruthers who is probably best known as Helen Bond Carruthers, creator of exquisitely decorated and lined cashmere sweaters. Her summer address is Versailles, Ky.

* * *

DOWN THIS week from New York were Mr. and Mrs. George Zauderer and their horses. They're seeking a post position for one of their thoroughbreds. If one doesn't turn up by this weekend they'll be off to Montego Bay where they spend their winters. Their daughter Cheray will make her debut in New York this fall.

Don't Put Off Polio Shots; They Could Save Your Life

By DR. J. G. MOLNER

They say that a prophet is without honor in his own country, and if so, today's remarks may at least be accepted in some cities other then my own.

Dr. J. G. Molner

My own city (Detroit) has just passed through another polio epidemic, the worst in America this year, with a score of victims dead, and more than 10 times as many paralyzed to some degree, ranging up to damage dooming them to live in iron lungs.

True, we have managed, with the obvious danger of the disease all around us, to persuade several hundred thousaid people in the metropolitan area to get polio shots — at last. And also to have their children inoculated.

I regret that it required an epidemic to convince these neighbors of mine to have the shots. No doubt I failed the year before, and the year before that. I tried to impress, wheedle, lead, frighten folks into getting shots. And I didn't succeed well enough.

So then the epidemic struck. As I made — and still make — rounds in the hospitals and see these people who will be crippled for life, I can't help feeling — well, pitifully sorry for them, and unalterably sure that any of the rest of us who have not had polio shots should have our heads examined.

As both the death and the paralysis reports rolled in, time after time it was the same story: No polio shots.

Or sometimes just one shot, but the victim hadn't gone back for the other two shots in the series. Fewer of the victims had received two shots.

A relative handful had had all three shots — none of the dead had three, and of those with paralysis despite all three shots, the paralysis was slight and in most instances will show little remaining paralysis a year from now.

Our figures show that polio vaccine will prevent 85 to 90 per cent of the paralysis, thus taking away most of the terrifying aspect of the disease.

That is why I am writing today's column — to try my utmost best to persuade readers — all of my readers if possible — to get these polio shots if you have not had them. If you have had one or two shots, then finish the series. If you have had none, start now. NOW!

Figure it out for yourself: The first two shots should be one month apart. The third should come from six to seven months later. Count the months on your fingers, and you will see that, starting today, you still have no more than barely time enough to complete the shots before the next "polio season" emerges.

Are you "too old" for the shots? Or is a baby "too young"? In my city alone, this year, victims ranged in age from two weeks to 66 years. If you are under 40, the vaccine is a must; if you are over 40 it is still highly desirable.

We carry life insurance, health insurance, fire and theft insurance on our homes and cars. The $6 to $10 that three polio shots will cost is cheap as any insurance you'll ever find, and will continue to protect you for about five years. Then, in all probability, a single booster shot is all you'll need to renew protection. Please act on this.

Dr. Molner welcomes all reader mail, but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible. Always write to him in care of The Miami Herald.

Paris Fashions Reflect De Gaulle's 'Austerity'

By Herald Wire Services

PARIS — Paris fashion designers are reflecting the austerity of Gen. Charles de Gaulle's Fifth French Republic.

Their new spring styles mark a clear return to simplicity, neatness and charm.

Political factors have always influenced Paris fashion designers, whether they admit it or not.

* * *

THIS SEASON fashion tycoons seem to have designed their clothes with an eye to exports. Their goal is made easier by the combination of franc devaluation and the 10 per cent customs duty cut established among the six countries of the European "common market."

For once their purpose is to please foreign women, particularly German fraus and Italian signoras, more than to win the trade of Parisian "elegants."

Testing ground for this utterly new departure is to be Western Germany, and the time immediately after the last Paris collections, Feb. 2.

Under an agreement about to be signed between the union of haute couture and all principal couturiers, each fashion house in Paris will prepare three special models for export:

One will be for sports wear, another for afternoon, and a third for formal evening parties.

European buyers—and they alone—will be invited to a special "European models" collection. They will be allowed to take any pictures or sketch any designs they wish.

They can, in effect, inhale at their leisure that high brand of inspiration that comes from Paris high fashion.

* * *

ANOTHER REVOLUTIONARY innovation this spring and summer is abandonment of the unnecessary suspicion and harassment with which the big houses of fashion have treated foreign buyers and newsmen.

Fear of being copied has been an obsession of Paris couturiers for years.

But henceforth—maybe not this season but surely next—buyers and newsmen fashion writers will be given what the union of haute couture pompously calls a "couture passport."

If they pledge on their honor not to copy designs or take pictures at any collections, foreign buyers and fashion reporters will be allowed to circulate freely.

All they will have to show is to flourish their "passports" at the door.

Gone will be the present rigmarole of formalities that start a couple of months in advance in order to get invitations to shows. Invariably these are marked "strictly personal" and you are warned severely not to divulge any bit of the technique used to execute the models.

'Return to Elegance' Wins Award for Beaton

NEW YORK — (UPI) — Fashions and home decor will return to an era of individuality, predicts stage designer Cecil Beaton.

"It's time for a return to individuality, and I hope it's here," said Beaton, who will receive this year's Elsie De Wolfe Memorial Award from the American Institute of Decorators. (Miss De Wolfe was considered the founder of the interior design profession.)

The dapper Englishman gets the award today for his "inspiring contribution to those arts which concern our profession" — namely, his designs for the musical play, "My Fair Lady," and the movie, "Gigi."

"Although a trend cannot be laid at the feet of one person, Beaton's work for these shows had much to do with a return to elegance. By exposing a great number of people to it, it gained more acceptance," said an AID spokesman.

This elegance is more difficult to commercialize, hence more individualistic, Beaton said, in an interview.

"We're developing a style that is hard to copy, hard to manufacture in bulk. It is too expensive for mass production and not easily understood," he added.

New Dye Treats the Hair As It Changes the Color

By KAY MURPHY
Herald Staff Writer

I've been dyeing for years. Check the spelling before you send flowers. It's my hair I have reference to. But years of dyeing does spell death to the hair shafts — unless you take the proper precautions.

That's why I'm delighted to discover a dye that conditions the hair while it works at the job of changing your hair color.

Oil, proteins and moisturizing have been blended with the dye to guard against that inevitable drying out process.

Heretofore, that drying out process, as old dye-hards like me have learned to our regret, require periodic conditioning treatments to replenish the depleted oil supply.

These treatments meant more time and more money spent in the hairdresser's shop.

I was a natural to use as guinea pig for something different in the way of dyes because my hair is so "un-natural." I'm a brunette-turned-blonde. And too many trips to the beach had doubled the damage due to bleaching. Sun and saltwater are not to be recommended for hair conditioning.

I had further abused my head by having too many permanents within too short a period of time. I started using my head — instead of abusing it — when I switched dyes. You can feel the difference in one application. Your hair is softer, springier to the touch. It has more sheen to it, too.

Something else I noticed—your hair is as wet at the end of the 30-minute dyeing time as it was when the dye was first applied. Which certainly bears out the moisturizing claim of the manufacturer.

Other dyes I've tried have a tendency to dry out here and there in the hair before the half-hour ends. The result? An "uneven" dye job.

Another thing — there's no scalp sting when the dye's applied. And I have the kind of scalp that's sensitive to dye pot chemicals.

I'm one of the two out of five women who touch up their hair in one way or another. Either with rinses or with dyes.

But this word of advice from the old, dye-hard. Keep your hair in good condition. Otherwise you'll wind up with no hair at all.

The dye I tried is available locally, of course. One salon is so impressed with it that a special department has been set up to handle color work, utilizing this particular dye. And they're providing consultant service.

This dye will cost you from $1 to $1.50 more per application than others on the market, depending on the shop you frequent.

Where To Buy?

Call FR 9-3826 after 9:30 a.m. today. After 24 hours, write to The Miami Herald Shopping Service, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Lamb Stew With Lima Beans Is Winner in Recipe Contest

A lamb stew with dry lima beans, sour cream stirred in as a finishing touch, is first prize winner in this week's recipe contest. The recipe comes from Margaret Sattely.

Second prize recipe is Pickled Black-Eyed Peas, to make ahead for a company dinner or family nibbling. Mrs. Margaret Porter entered this recipe.

"Do not use catsup or other tomato containing condiment," cautions Dr. Everett B. Poole of his Pintos Parnassus. His slow simmered bean dish is third prize winner.

HUNGARIAN LAMB STEW
(First Prize, $5 in cash)

- 1½ cups dry lima beans
- 2 pounds boned lamb shoulder or breast
- 1 teaspoon salt

- 1 1-pound can tomatoes

Cheese Balls With Parsley

Little balls of cream cheese make a festive center dish on the snack table. Mash and moisten cream cheese with salad dressing or cream, and season with salt and paprika. Shape the balls with your fingers or with butter paddles — one inch in diameter is about right. Serve them on toothpicks if you like.

For an added touch, roll the balls in finely cut dried beef or in chopped parsley.

MARY ASTOR: My Story

The Downward Spiral

Mary Astor returned to Hollywood from New York with Ferris Hall, an unemployed actor who, like her, had a drinking problem.

One In a Series

Mary Astor

I got a quick call to fly to Tucson for locations on a picture for Twentieth. I had asked Ferris to stay at the apartment to take care of Missy.

I returned from Tucson on the plane about midnight, 12 hours earlier than I had planned. I telephoned the apartment from the airport, but there was no answer. I didn't know what I was going to do: I had given Ferris my key, and the apartment lobby door was locked at nine in the evening.

I got a cab and rode into Hollywood, and made another call when I got to La Brea and Sunset Boulevard. Ferris answered, sleepily and very drunk. "Can you make it downstairs and just open the door for me?" I asked. In a few minutes I was there and Ferris was in the lobby, grinning, his shirttail hanging out of partly fastened pants and Missy in his arms with her tail blown up in fright.

I was burning mad. As the door of the apartment closed behind me, I threw my things down and rescued Missy, who was fighting to get away from his heavy embrace; I tossed Ferris a blanket and said, "Don't try to go home the way you are. You'll never make it. Get some sleep on the couch."

Ferris Proposes

I WAS SO TIRED that I slept heavily and didn't hear him the next morning. About four o'clock Ferris came in. He had been drinking. He was smoking a cigar, leaning back in the big chair in a kind of sneering arrogance. He bated me into an anger that was explosive.

Feeling the danger, I said as steadily as I could, "Ferris, I don't want you around when you're drunk. It's too hard on me. I've put you to bed and nursed you and dried you out for the last time. Now get out."

The next day, I went into rehearsal at CBS, and as usual, the work of TV was so all-absorbing and concentrated that what happened last week might have happened last year. It was a great escape for me.

Ferris came in late one evening, fairly drunk.

"I've just spent two hours with your friend the monsignor," he said.

"You seem to have something that keeps you going. I don't know what it is, but I see you trotting off to Mass come hell or high water. In New York, or on the road, and now here; I don't know what it is. But I want to find out. I want some of it, too."

I could only sit and listen. I had sent up many a prayer for this, but still I couldn't believe it. Even when he said he was going for his first instructions the following Friday night.

On Thursday, Ferris was still drinking. "But I'm going to knock it off tomorrow," he said. "I'm going to start being the guy I'm supposed to be." He seemed truly humble. And on him it had great charm.

We went out to dinner that night and he talked a great deal about how it seemed to him that he had just had the wrong angle about everything. We were sitting in a candlelit booth. It was fatal.

Ferris said, with great sincerity, that we should be married. We had been through so much together, and in spite of everything somehow we had stuck. We knew each other. We contained no surprises.

"Let me hear you say that again when you're sober," I told him. "I'm not so drunk," he smiled.

* * *

Soon afterward Miss Astor went on the road with a play and was gone for months before the tour finally ended. She was flying back to Los Angeles.

Fog Closes In

MY HEART BEGAN its unrhythmic thumping as the plane circled and landed. And suddenly he was there on the ramp, looking well—so very well. He was grinning as he hugged me. "Looks like you need a rest, girl . . ."

"You look so well. I can't get over it—what have you been doing?" I said happily.

And he said, "I got married, three weeks ago."

Steady now, Mary. Find some words. Don't scream.

"Well, what do you know! How wonderful! Anybody I know?"

"No, she's an English girl . . ."

But the fog had closed in . . . I heard very little—my training came to my rescue and I was doing an excellent impression of an interested friend.

My mind was like a radio with several stations overlapping; my emotions twisted the dial, and first one would come through and then another. "I'm free, free, free. I would have married him. I've escaped!

"I'm glad for him. I hope he's really in love with her. Maybe love will keep him more sober than I could."

But the strongest signal to come in was the most persistent: "What am I going to do without him? I have no one. No one in this whole world."

Lonely Depression

AFTER FERRIS LEFT ME I tried to sleep. I woke and walked around. I finally cried. I drank.

Gradually I began spiraling down into lonely depression. There was enough work. I was nervous with the discipline of drinking, of trying not to drink. From the tension and complete lack of enthusiasm or appreciation of the fact that I was so very lucky to be "wanted" for work. Withdrawing, withdrawing; drinking to ease the unnamed pain.

Must Rhinos Die for Love?

KATMANDU, Nepal — (WNS) — The rhinoceros is the king of the beasts in Nepal, but the government has warned that they will die out if women do not change their habits.

A powder made from the horns of the rhinoceros is used as a love potion by women throughout Asia, particularly in China.

The market for this elixir is so great that hunters are overdoing the profitable business of killing the wild animals.

'You Owe Your Hubby First Place'

DEAR ELEANOR HART:

I feel I must answer Anxious as her letter could have been written by myself four years ago.

I had been married eight months when my father died. As I was an only child, mother came to "visit" us. Her visit lengthened to three months, and my husband started fuming. He said I was putting mother first, that he felt as if we were visiting in her home rather than she in ours.

I talked to our pastor and he advised me to ask mother to leave. There was a middle aged couple in our church who were considering taking in a lady boarder. He sent them to talk to mother.

Mother was very hurt. She spoke of gratitude, all she had done for me, etc. However, our minister reminded me that in my marriage vows I had agreed to forsake all others and that included mother.

Mother left and for two weeks wouldn't speak to me. However, she soon began to adjust, take part in group activities and was quite happy.

Now she visits me often. She comes to spend an afternoon, and we play scrabble, sew, etc. It is understood that she is to stay for dinner only on invitation, and she is invited once or twice a week.

Yes, Anxious, many mothers do live with their married sons and daughters, but only because it is a convenient arrangement for all concerned.

As my minister told me, "Your mother cannot live with you without leaning on you, and the load would become awfully heavy after awhile."

You owe your husband your loyalty and love, and first place in your life and heart.

If your mother and husband cannot live happily together, then you must help your mother to stand alone and live alone. You will all be happier for it.

I WAS THERE

* * *

(ASIDE TO ANXIOUS: I hope you've left the hotel and gone home to work things out with hubby. As I Was There says, ultimately, you will be happier if you do.)

* * *

'We Couldn't Be Happier'

DEAR ELEANOR HART:

I too am a contented wife. If only more wives would put into their daily routine loving, understanding and appreciating their husbands, I'm sure it would make for a happier home and fewer separations and divorces.

My husband and I have been married a year and a half. We couldn't be happier. Until last month he was unemployed, and even before that time of being together day and night, we couldn't see enough of each other.

We both agree, marriage is a full time job and you have to put your heart and soul into it, like any other worthwhile job. But it isn't hard when you are truly happy and contented, and your love for each other is deep and genuine.

Of course we have our faults, but my husband's are so few and his good ones so numerous, I try to overlook the faults.

I wish more readers would write about their happiness and the ones who aren't so happy would try to do their level best, for things can be ironed out.

We're convinced our marriage was made in heaven.

A Woman's Prayer

By JOSEPHINE ROBERTSON

Let my faith in those I love stand firm, O Lord. When they are away, hold my imagination in check.

When they do things I cannot see the reason for, make me content to wait for an explanation, remembering the qualities of character that have always made me proud, and mindful that there are some factors another cannot know.

And if some misunderstanding should arise, strengthen me, I pray, to trust rather than to judge, to the end that, when the situation has been cleared, I may truly say that my confidence has never faltered. Amen.

How To Get Rid Of Stains

By JEAN WARDLOW
Herald Staff Writer

We had readers with stains. Now we have readers with stain removers.

READERS' EXCHANGE

J.S. of Fort Lauderdale, Mrs. F.R.H. of Miami Springs and J.M.J. of Miami can tell you how to remove rust.

Two of the readers agree on the lemon juice-salt method. Mrs. S. says: "Wet the spot with lemon juice, sprinkle freely with table salt and lay on grass in the sun. If rust spot remains, repeat."

Mrs. J. pours her lemon juice over the salt on the fabric. And she cautions," "I mean real lemon juice, not bottled juice or lime juice."

Mrs. H. says, "To remove rust and other stubborn stains, I use very successfully (commercial name) iron rust remover." Bet you know what to do to find out the name of it. Yep. Stamped, self-addressed envelope with request. Another reader, Mrs. ESM. of Miami used it and was happy with results, too.

Two Methods For Crotons

MRS. C.J.O. of Hollywood can say a few words about croton stain removal. First, for white fabrics—or if you're the devil-may-care type with colors:

"Mix 3 tablespoons chlorine bleach, 3 tablespoons borax and 3 tablespoons water.

"Mix this in a china dish, never metal. Dip spots stained with croton up and down in solution until they disappear. Wash and rinse garment thoroughly.

"This method should be used before the garment is laundered, as in most stain removal."

And then for colored fabric: "This is the way I've removed croton stains from pastel cotton: Dip a swab or cotton-tipped toothpick in undiluted household bleach.

"Touch the stain with the bleach-moistened cotton tip. Rinse well in about 1 minute or less. Let article dry. If stain remains, repeat.

"I rinse quickly and thoroughly."

And then we have Mrs. W.G.J. of Miami. What a doll. She doesn't simply read the paper and wrap her coffee grounds in it. She clips.

And some of the clips concerned croton stains. She sent them along. Among the methods for stain removal were: Soak fresh croton stains in alcohol, then wash.

Crochet Hook Baffles Her

A.S. of Miami would like you to get her off the hook. And when she says hook, she means it.

"Have you ever seen a crochet hook about 13 inches long with a hook on each end? I probably have the only one in Miami."

Her problem? Well, she's not quite sure what to put on it—either end. "If anyone can give me directions, I shall appreciate the kindness very much," she adds.

Help for Shiny Skirts

A ray of light for Mrs. W.R. of Miami who wants to remove the shine from skirts.

Mrs. P.E.S. of Hollywood says: "Tell the lady who wants to take the shine off her skirt to dampen (not wet) a cloth with vinegar and rub lightly over the shiny part.

"This works for men's trousers, too."

She also adds: "Another method, if the shine is not too bad, is to use a small piece of the same cloth as the garment and rub well."

And if THAT doesn't work, Well, there's always the next rummage sale.

This is a Sunday, Tuesday and Friday column for the Florida homemaker. Hints, questions and answers may be mailed with full name and address to Readers' Exchange, The Miami Herald, Miami, 30. The Herald is not responsible for the safety or efficiency of methods recommended by our readers.

Medics Think Nikita Is Ill

NEW YORK — (UPI) — The New York World Telegram and Sun said Thursday that in the opinion of several prominent New York doctors "there is a distinct possibility" that Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev may be suffering from hardening of the arteries of the brain.

These doctors compared photographs of the Russian leader, taken early last year with those taken recently.

"The arteries in his temple look more prominent in the latest photo," the newspaper quoted one doctor as saying. "They look prominent and tortuous. It looks like a distinct possibility of cerebral hardening of the arteries."

The newspaper said that another doctor said that "in cases like this there is always the hazard of cerebral vascular accidents, or, in other words, the danger of a stroke."

The World Telegram and Sun quoted another physician as saying that "it's perhaps speculative to base judgment on photos, but the latest photo seems to show his face typically haggard and lined."

"Such an arterial ailment is quite common in overweight people more than 50 years of age," one of the doctors pointed out, the newspaper said.

Khrushchev will be 65 on April 17, the newspaper pointed out, and he was quoted by Sen. Hubert Humphrey, who met him recently, as saying that he had kidney trouble.

The New York doctors, according to The World Telegram and Sun, said that the photos also showed that the Soviet premier had lost weight since last July. They speculated that his doctors had advised this since, though not a cure, it is a help in fighting the inroads of cardiovascular disease.

Boy Pinned for 7 Hours Under 2-Ton Drain Pipe

LOS ANGELES — (AP) — A 12-year-old boy who chose a sandy construction site for a playground was rescued Thursday after seven hours of being pinned by a two-ton concrete storm drain pipe.

Authorities say Perry A. Luth III apparently was digging a tunnel under the pipe Wednesday when it slipped down on his back, crushing him flat.

At dinner time his parents missed him and a search began. About four and a half hours after the pipe slipped, Perry's father spotted his son's bicycle by the work project near their Westchester home, then found the boy.

"I'm cold. I can't move my feet," were the boy's first words.

Then, in concerned tones, he asked:

"Did I make you miss the movie?"

"That's all right, son," the elder Luth replied. "We'll have you out right away."

Police extricated him by slipping a huge beam into the pipe, and jacking up its extended end.

Perry was taken to a hospital suffering from shock and possible internal injuries.

Texan Rescued From Conveyor Belt

FORT WORTH, Tex. —(AP)— For three agonizing hours early Thursday, Jerold Mikeworth clung with fingers of steel to keep from being drawn all the way into a moving conveyor belt. His foot was entangled in a roller of the conveyor.

The 43-year-old laborer was alone 125 feet up inside the Kimbell Feed Mill here. His cries couldn't be heard over the machinery noise. When the belt finally was turned off his voice was almost gone. A fellow worker found him and shut off the machinery.

But Mikeworth's ordeal wasn't over yet.

Only access to the four-story perch was by a vertical moving platform that holds only one man on each step. Mikeworth couldn't stand.

Ambulance attendants and firemen rigged elaborate escape apparatus.

He was strapped into a wire basket and a pulley and cable used to swing him out of a door on the sheer face of the building.

While spotlights highlighted the scene, a fire truck to which the cable was attached backed slowly to lower the basket.

Mikeworth's troubles began at midnight when he went to measure a grain bin and slipped. He reached ground at 5 a.m.

"I kept hoping someone would come up and turn that doggone belt off," he said.

"My foot jammed into the rollers between the belt. They think my ankle is broken, but it sure would have been worse if it hadn't been for my fingers.

"I grabbed hold of a bar next to the rollers and held on. I knew if I let go, I'd be pulled maybe up to my waist into that machinery."

Diver Chats From Trap In Sewer

CHICAGO — (UPI) — Rescue workers Thursday worked to free a diver trapped in a storm sewer about 150 feet below ground on Chicago's South Side.

The diver, Frank Hefing, apparently was in no immediate danger. He chatted by telephone to crewmen on the surface who assured him help was on the way.

A crew member said Hefing, an experienced professional diver, descended into the sewer opening to shut a valve which was flowing water to enter a nearby tunnel where a new sewer project is under construction.

Hefing apparently was swept and trapped by water or air pressure into a hole off the shaft.

Ambulance Led In London Fog

LONDON—(AP)—A desperately ill baby boy was placed in a hospital Thursday after a relay of eight policemen marched across London guiding an ambulance through thick fog.

The ambulance was carrying 10-month-old Mark Searle from Portsmouth to the Great Ormond Street Hospital for Sick Children. London's fog was so murky that officers had to use flashlights to feel their way ahead of the slowly moving vehicle.

Nuns, Priest Die in Lake

PERTH, Australia — (AP) — Three nuns and a priest were drowned when their dinghy turned over in the darkness on a lake near Mandurah, 50 miles south of Perth.

Two other nuns, weighed down by their water-soaked habits, were found near exhaustion clinging to the overturned boat. They said the others one by one grew weak during the night, released their hold and disappeared in the darkness.

The group was returning by boat from a picnic. None could swim.

Hoffa Set To Move On PAA

Claims Majority Of Stock Clerks

By DOM BONAFEDE
Herald Staff Writer

Jimmy Hoffa's Teamsters Union was poised Thursday to make its first assault on the airline industry by trying to bring Pan American World Airways stock clerks under its wing.

The Herald learned that the 800 clerks throughout the PAA system will vote next week on whether they want to be represented by the Teamsters or the International Association of Machinists.

Warren Lane, National Mediation Board official, confirmed the report and added that Hoffa already has signed up more than 51 per cent of the clerks.

Some 300 clerks based in Miami will cast their ballots next Tuesday and Wednesday, Lane said.

Other elections will be held in Cape Canaveral, New York City and on the Pacific Coast.

If Hoffa gets a foothold in the airline industry it will give him virtual control over the nation's transportation industry.

It was also learned that Hoffa was making eyes at the stewards and stewardesses of Mohawk Airlines, a small carrier operating in New York State.

Hoffa earlier disclosed he was making a stab at moving in on the airline industry when he gave a $200,000 loan to the Flight Engineers International Association during its 38-day strike.

He also ordered a study by subordinates to determine which airline and airport workers he could organize to be in a position to close down operations in case of a strike.

The stubby boss of the scandal-scarred union further threatened to stop gasoline deliveries to any airline which provoked his displeasure in labor-management battles.

Hoffa's wooing of PAA's clerks apparently is the opening shot of a concerted drive by the Teamsters to infiltrate the airline industry.

The clerks formerly were members of the machinists union but later switched to the Transport Workers Union. The changeover was nullified, however, by the AFL-CIO, leaving the way open for the Teamsters to step in.

Meanwhile, PAA faces a strike threat from its ground service employes following the collapse of negotiation talks.

Cuba Orders Peso Curbs

HAVANA, Cuba — (AP) — Cuba's new government Thursday put a $50 limit on the amount of Cuban pesos that individuals can bring into or take out of the country.

Any pesos held by travelers over that limit will be taken away from them by customs officials under the order.

The move was announced by Treasury Minister Rufo Lopez Fresquet. Aides said it was aimed at stopping black market sales of pesos abroad by members of the fallen Batista regime who fled with large sums of money.

Security Chief's Condition Serious

Hialeah Officer Shot by Tipster

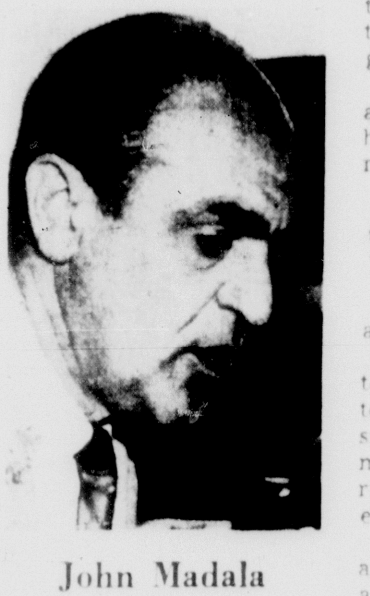
By JAMES BUCHANAN
Herald Staff Writer

As hundreds of Hialeah Race Track fans looked on in horror, an arthritic 75-year-old tout Thursday fired two bullets into John Madala, track security chief and ex-FBI agent who helped gun down John Dillinger.

Shortly before the bugle called the first race, the elderly tipster, identified as Maxim Gay, shuffled toward Madala, who was talking with his brother behind the grandstand, and muttered in a stuttering voice:

"You've taken away my living."

He then took out a revolver and fired two shots, sending Madala sprawling to the ground.



John Madala
. . . track security boss

Stepping closer, he fired three more shots and dropped the weapon just as track guards grabbed him.

"He shot him in the back and he shot him again when he was down," said L. D. Norris, a track newspaper vendor.

"He fired once and Madala turned back," Norris said. "Max fired again."

"John fell and Max fired again. I heard five shots."

Madala was rushed to Doctors' Hospital where surgeons took one slug out of his right side and one out of his abdomen. His condition was serious. Three of the shots missed.

Police identified the gunman as Gay, an oldtime professional tout who is well known around the country's race tracks as a tip-sheet salesman.

They said that Gay, of 126 SW Seventh Ave., told them he tried to kill Madala because the security chief ordered him rejected from the track Wednesday.

State Attorney Richard Gerstein said Gay will be charged with assault with a deadly weapon and intent to commit murder.

Gay, a gray-haired man who walks haltingly with a stoop, was taken to the Hialeah police station for questioning and later booked at the county jail.

Officers described him as "calm, cooperative and unremorseful."

Under questioning, he told investigators he bought the revolver — a .38 caliber Smith and Wesson — Wednesday from a Hialeah gun dealer with the avowed purpose of

State-Long Turnpike Dead--Collins

Herald Bureau

TALLAHASSEE — Gov. LeRoy Collins said Thursday that proposed federal interstate system of limited access highways has killed plans for extension of Florida's turnpike north of Orlando.

Collins said the proposal to extend the existing toll road from Fort Pierce to Orlando would "not conflict but will compliment the interstate system. I think any extension beyond that point should now be regarded as hopeless."

He said he felt the two-year-old turnpike had proven a great asset to the state but any extension north of Orlando to the Georgia line probably would not be feasible if it had to compete with a free limited access interstate system.

Only the portion between Miami and Fort Pierce has been built and some investment sources have cast doubt even on feasibility of running it to Orlando.

But Collins said there will be no interstate route to compete with a tollway from Fort Pierce to Orlando and he sees no reason why it should not be built someday.

Model of the Thor
. . . Douglas explains it

U.S. Puts Out Missile By the Lot

SANTA MONICA, Calif.—(AP) — America is mass-producing one of its most reliable missiles in a form so simple that crews can fire them in volleys on 15-minutes notice—even from mobile bases.

The missile is the 1,500-mile Thor, a combat-ready weapon that also is a workhorse in space research.

It can carry a nuclear warhead known as the "county-buster" and it is stockpiled at bases in this country and abroad.

But because of its limited range, the future of the Thor is uncertain.

This picture emerged Thursday after the first press tour of Thor production and testing facilities here and in Sacramento, Calif. Donald W. Douglas, president of Douglas Aircraft Co., led the tour.

Newsmen saw parts of more than a dozen Thors on an assembly line at the Douglas Aircraft plant here and 17 finished missiles in a storage area.

At Sacramento they saw a demonstration that a hangared Thor can be made ready to launch 15 minutes after the order to fire.

A Thor squadron has 15 missiles, all ready to be fired at once, at the same target or at 15 different targets.

In the field, each missile requires only four men to fuel and fire it.

Fifteen successes and 12 partial successes out of 31 firings attest the Thor's reliability.

He Denies Red ICBM Operational

WASHINGTON — (UPI) — Defense Secretary Neil H. McElroy acknowledged Thursday that Russia probably will have more intercontinental ballistic missiles than the U.S. in a year or two. He said neither nation has the weapon in operational shape right now.

McElroy revealed, however, that the U.S. will have a full squadron of Atlas ICBMs ready to fire from the West Coast by next July.

Such a squadron would include 10 launchers of the Atlas missiles which could carry deadly nuclear warheads to targets 5,500 miles away. They presumably would be located at Vandenberg Air Force Base north of Los Angeles.

McElroy told a Senate inquiry the U.S. does not intend to match the Russians "missile for missile" in the ICBM race but would rely on "the diversity capability." He defined this as the ability to delivery devastating blows by means of a variety of weapons and thus deter the Kremlin from launching a general war.

Sen. Stuart Symington (D., Mo.) immediately charged that the U.S. voluntarily was yielding to Russia superiority in the missile race.

McElroy, basing his testimony on the latest U.S. intelligence estimates, was the first witness before a special Senate committee seeking an "unadorned" accounting of U.S. space and missile progress.

As to the overall missile picture, McElroy said "we concede that he (Russia) has substantial capability, operational now, with a 700-mile missile."

But the defense chief said that "if a war were fought today" the U.S. and Russia would rely on manned bombers. He said the U.S. has a "marked" superiority in heavy bombers, and a "modest superiority in medium bombing planes."

No detection system exists against ICBMs today, he said, but one is being built, with facilities under construction at Thule, Greenland and in Alaska. A detection base is planned for northern Great Britain.

'Massive Assistance' Bill Opens Civil Rights Battle

15 Liberals Combine In Senate

WASHINGTON — (UPI) — Fifteen liberal senators opened the 1959 congressional civil rights battle Thursday by introducing a bill that would throw the full weight of the government behind the Supreme Court's school integration order.

The bipartisan group, headed by Sen. Paul H. Douglas (D., Ill.), said the legislation would give local communities wishing to integrate the government's "massive assistance" to counter the "massive resistance" thrown up by Southern states.

Douglas and others said the bill was not aimed at punishing the South and did not demand immediate compliance. However, it is far more sweeping than either the "moderate" proposal by Senate Democratic Leader Lyndon B. Johnson or the administration's forthcoming bill.

Douglas, acknowledging the rocky path ahead of the bill, said he expected Southerners to raise a filibuster threat against it. In a caustic reference to Johnson's middle-of-the-road measure, he added:

"Then some ostrich-like proposal, burying its head in the sand so that it cannot see the school problem, offending — and helping—almost no one, will probably be served up as a 'reasonable compromise' . . . I hope the Senate will not be misled by these maneuvers."

The liberal version was sponsored by 11 Democrats and four Republicans.

One of them, Sen. Jacob K. Javits (R., N.Y.), said "this opens the civil rights battle in Congress for this session."

The bill would authorize the Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare to offer legal, financial and technical aid in school integration cases. The technical help could amount to as much as $2,500,000 a year for five years.

The secretary also could make grants for school buildings, teachers and community aid where states threaten to close schools to prevent integration. This aid would total 40 million dollars annually for five years.

Javits virtually conceded that the liberal bill had no chance of winning approval from the Senate Judiciary Committee, headed by Sen. James O. Eastland (D., Miss).

Besides Douglas and Javits, other sponsors were Sens. Hubert H. Humphrey (D., Minn.), Thomas C. Hennings Jr. (D., Mo.), Clifford P. Case (R., N.J.), Wayne Morse (D., Ore.), Joseph S. Norfolk Will 'Mix' 6 Schools

NORFOLK, Va. —(AP)— The Norfolk School Board announced Thursday that the city's six closed schools will open Monday on an integrated basis.

Three high and three junior high schools have been closed since September to avoid integration. However, the state laws under which their doors were locked have been nullified by state and federal court decisions.

The reopening will bring the first Negro children in Virginia history—17 in all—into white public school classrooms.

The school board's announcement came immediately after the City Council assured it of operating funds. An earlier council resolution to cut off school monies, fell before Federal Court orders.

The schools affected are Maury, Granby, and Norview High School and Norview, Blair and Northside Junior Highs. A total of 10,000 white children are affected. However, only about 75 per cent of that number are expected to return to school Monday since many are attending school elsewhere or have dropped it altogether.

Meanwhile a Federal Circuit Court judge in Baltimore postponed mandatory integration at two Charlottesville, Va., public schools. A spokesman for the school board said the schools probably would open next week on a segregated basis.

Affected are 1,700 students at Venable Elementary and Lane High Schools. Their schools were closed by the state after a Federal Court judge ordered the admission of 12 Negro students last September.

The decision by Chief Judge Simon E. Sobeloff of the Fourth U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals was disclosed by John S. Battle Jr. counsel for the Charlottesville School Board.

avenging his dismissal from the track.

The shooting occurred near the paddock area in full view of spectators. Despite the number of people in the vicinity, no one else was injured.

Madala was talking with his brother, Joseph, also a member of the track security force, and was turning away when Gay confronted him with revolver in hand.

Madala, 58, a native of Chicago, was an outstanding agent with the FBI for 15 years before quitting to take over the newly formed Thoroughbred Protective Bureau here in 1946.

He played a big part in the hunt and eventual slaying of Dillinger, notorious gunman of the 1930s, outside a Chicago theater.

In 1940 he was assigned to the Miami office to investigate the white slavery rackets. His probe led to exposure of the traffic centering at the La Paloma Club.

After the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor, he was made administrative assistant here and played a leading role in rounding up enemy aliens.

'Apple-a-Day' Proponent, Dr. Engene Lucas, 62, Dies

EAST LANSING, Mich.—(AP) — Dr. Eugene Lucas, known for his scientific testing of the adage that an apple a day keeps the doctor away, is dead of a heart attack. He was 62.

An apple-loving horticulturist at Michigan State University, Lucas was running a four-year experiment on the health effects of apple-eating. In the tests, which will be continued, 500 students eating apples daily were checked for health against non-apple-eating students.

The University Hospital is keeping score on which groups have more of such common illnesses as colds, throat infections, skin disorders and stomach upsets.

He had said: "Although science had ridiculed folk tales for years, we have found much scientific foundation for lore that pertains to plants and diseases."

Lucas was better known in the scientific world for his research on cancer and tumors.

A native of Vienna, he received degrees from the University of Vienna and the University of Leipzig in Germany. He helped develop a wheat strain that still is widely used in Europe.

Duke Ellington, the old maestro whose artistry is known from hither to thither to yon and return, now is doing a 30-minute part in "Jump For Joy" at Copa City. When I saw the show opening night some space-brain director had Duke sweeping the stage and carrying scenery. Duke's now putting his orchestra into the show. He's playing "Mood Indigo," "Sophistocated Lady" and other of his world famous hits. They had Duke billed as the star. Now he really is.

Opening night the directors had three good Negro actors doing a supposedly satirical takeoff of a Noel Coward theme. It was the worst thing I've seen in a theater since two comedians tried "Waiting for Godot." If you can imagine a colored man wearing an English cap, duster and handle-bar mustaches! And the dialogue—but I'll spare you that. Then there was a bedroom scene that insulted the dignity of the human race; and lots more. Now, all that ghastliness is gone and Duke heads a good show, with Barbara McNair the neatest thing in town.

Lou Walters has a really smart show, as usual. Trust the old maestro to give us something well dressed, in good taste and tinged with the sensational. I've not seen Betty Grable but she's selling out Latin Quarter every night. They come away lovin' her. She's something new in night club circles and folks like new faces. See how Red Skelton packs 'em in, with nary a chorus gal in sight.

Ive not seen "Newcomers of 1958" at Deauville, but it's fast, smooth and they can't miss with kids like Buster Keaton, Rudy Vallee, Harry Richman, Fifi Dorsay. As for Whiteman; he's Old Man River.

He Went Wrong

The boy was riding a bicycle east on NE First St., which is one-way west. Police nabbed him—and women started calling to say officers "roughed up" the lad, held him by the collar, tossed him and his bike into the paddy wagon and off to jail. Two women went into First Federal and said in effect, "if you don't do something we'll stop dealing with you."

Well, the lad was James Paul Bryan, 17, who lives at 270 NW 63rd Ave. Police said he had been warned about riding the wrong way on that street, and took no heed. So they booked him. Now it's up to Hizzoner.

Gromyko Rattles Rockets

'War Almost Impossible'

MOSCOW — (AP) — Andrei Gromyko declared Thursday growing might of the Communist bloc, which he described as dedicated to peaceful coexistence, will soon make a new world war impossible.

The Soviet foreign minister at the same time told the 21st Soviet Communist Party Congress that arming of West Germany with atomic weapons was a roadway to war.

"The distance to the most remote part of West Germany is much closer to us than the moon," Gromyko warned the West in an obvious reference to Soviet rocket power.

U. S. Secretary of State John Foster Dulles and Chancellor Konrad Adenauer of the Bonn republic were singled out for attack on the German question.

"Dulles found nothing better to do at his news conference of two days ago than again to threaten war," Gromyko said. "But he cannot threaten the Soviet Union because there can be only one outcome to war—the defeat of the aggressor, a defeat which will be unparalleled in history."

Gromyko said the most important question today is conclusion of a peace treaty with Germany and liquidation of the American, British and French occupation of West Berlin, which Premier Khrushchev proposes to turn into a neutralized free city.

If there is no agreement with the West on the future of West Berlin, he said, "the Soviet Union — according to its agreement with the (East) German Democratic Republic —will implement certain outlined measures."

This apparently referred to Moscow's plan to turn over occupation controls to East Germany and perhaps to sign a separate peace treaty with the East German regime.

"Unfortunately," Gromyko added, "Adenauer hastens to be the first to reject every new Soviet proposal aimed at reducing international tension . . .

"Now this is how the question stands today: Either arming of the (West German) Bundeswehr with atomic weapons, which means the road to unleashing a new war, or solution of the German question through conclusion of a treaty of peace."

Gromyko said "the growing might of the Soviet Union and the countries of the Socialist camp makes it risky, and will soon make it impossible, to unleash another world war." He stressed that this furnished a new and firmer foundation for the policy of peaceful coexistence.

"If the Socialist (Communist) system were to give only this—the guarantee of the impossibility of a world war—this alone would mean the death knell for rotten 'capitalism,'" he said.

Shift to Miami Denied

Channel 10 Trial Stays in Capital

By DAVID KRASLOW
Of Our Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — Federal Judge Burnita S. Matthews ruled Thursday that the Channel 10 trial of Richard A. Mack and Thurman A. Whiteside can't be moved to Miami.

The trial has been set for Feb. 16, but Mack, former Federal Communications Commission member, and Whiteside, a Miami attorney, are expected to ask for a delay.

Mack and Whiteside had requested that the trial be shifted from here to Miami.

They were indicted by a federal grand jury in Washington last September on charges of conspiring to have Mack sell his vote in the award of the Channel 10 Miami television license.

Mack and Whiteside had claimed that because of the congressional hearings a year ago, and subsequent proceedings in Washington, a prejudicial atmosphere exists in Washington and they cannot obtain a fair trial.

Judge Matthews ruled that a showing of such prejudice "has not been made."

Mack also had asked for a transfer on the grounds that he is destitute and that the expense of a trial in Washington would work a hardship on him. It also was pointed out that virtually all of the potential witnesses reside in Miami.

But Judge Matthews ruled that the Federal Court in Washington had exclusive jurisdiction with respect to one of the three courts in the indictment and that the "interest of justice" would not be served by a partial transfer of the case.

Mack and Whiteside are both charged in the first count alleging conspiracy. Whiteside is charged along in the second count and Mack is accused alone in the third count.

Judge Matthews held that the first two counts are triable either in Washington or Miami.

She also denied motions to dismiss the indictment, to have the government file more detailed charges, and to strike certain portions of the indictment.

A claim that the grand jury's secrecy had been violated by a newspaper article published 11 days prior to the announcement of the indictment was over-ruled by the judge.

Castro Due To Allot Cuban Land

HAVANA, Cuba—(UPI)—Fidel Castro will launch the government's agrarian reform program Monday by personally delivering the first parcels of land to peasants in Oriente province, cradle of the Cuban revolution, it was announced.

The announcement was made by Carlos Franqui, editor of "Revolucion," official organ of Castro's July 26 revolutionary movement.

Franqui said Castro will appear Monday afternoon at Guayabal de Nagua, near the town of Estrada Palma in Oriente, to address a mass meeting of farm workers and make personal delivery of the first land grants.

The scene will be near Castro's former headquarters in the Sierra Maestra mountains, from which he directed the two year triumphant revolution against former Dictator Fulgencio Batista.

Qualified military sources meanwhile confirmed that revolutionary trials of former Batista officials will be resumed today when Lt. Col. Ricardo Luis Grao will go on trial before a court martial at the hall of justice in the Superior War Tribunal building.

Grao is the last of the three most prominent Batista military officers to go on trial.

The two others, Maj. Jesus Sosa Blanco and Maj. Pedro Morejon Valdes were tried and sentenced to death. Both have appealed the sentences.

National Summary

A weather front stretching from Minnesota into the Texas Panhandle marked the advance edge of colder air overspreading the plains with snow from Montana into parts of Minnesota southward into Kansas.

Colder air will advance through the midwest and Gulf states to western foothills of the Appalachians Friday preceded by occasional rain and warmer temperatures. Snow should taper off to flurries or end in the mid and upper Mississippi Valley but a change from rain to snow or flurries is indicated as cold air lowers mercury levels through Indiana, Ohio and into Kentucky.

Strong winds should cause drifting of heavy snowfall in upper Michigan and thunderstorms may mark the eastern edge of the outbreak from the central Appalachians into Alabama.

Very cold weather will produce sub zero temperatures as far south as Nebraska and readings in the 20s are forecast for Kansas and parts of Oklahoma Friday afternoon as Arctic winds push southward over Texas.

Rains, expected to reach central California, will diminish to showers in the Pacific northwest Friday while occasional snow spreads across the northern and central plateau reaching the Rockies.

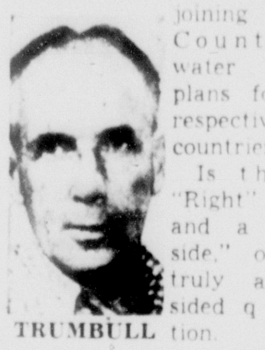
Opinions Are Firmly-Fixed in Canal Feud

By STEVE TRUMBULL
Herald Staff Writer

(Last of two articles)

FORT PIERCE — Can any compromise come in the hot feud now on between this county of St. Lucie and adjoining Martin County over water control plans for their respective back countries?



TRUMBULL

Is there a "Right" side and a "wrong side," or is it truly a two-sided question.

Interviewing everyone who has a firmly fixed opinion would have meant practically the combined populations of both counties. That being a slightly awkward procedure with newspaper space limitations, we decided to spend our time with two leaders from each camp.

These four are men we have known and respected over a period of years, and whose personal integrity we never have questioned.

For the Fort Pierce viewpoint, and the viewpoint of the Central and Southern Florida Flood Control District, we went to David Click of Clewiston, chairman of the district, and Brian McCarty of this city, vice chairman and brother of the late Gov. Dan McCarty.

* * *

FOR THE VIEWS of the opposing Martin county camp we went to Ernie Lyons, longtime and respected editor of the Stuart News, and Capt. Bruce Leighton, USN (ret), now a large scale farmer in Martin county. He is chairman of the Martin County Water Conservation committee.

Click and McCarty hedged not at all in admitting that — in time of a peak flood — two of the three canals to be widened each could dump as much as 5,000 cubic feet per second of water into the North fork of the St. Lucie river behind Stuart. That's "But," said Click, "objection.

"But," said Coick, "objectors in Martin county insist on ignoring the fact that a wide and deep canal, with the proper control structures that these canals will have, can be far less injurious in the matter of silt than a narrow and clogged canal.

* * *

"THEY SAY WE should take a greater share of the Belcher canal out through Fort Pierce. Our engineers tell us this is impossible with the contours of the effected area. We can't run it uphill.

"This plan was part of the original, overall plan for the 17-county project. It has long been known. It has been aired in public hearings long ago. U. S. Army Engineers have approved it. Congress has approved it, and the money has been appropriated. We can do nothing but go ahead, or bog down the entire plan."

Captain Leighton, in our session at his farm west of Stuart, produced copies of elevation maps to argue the point that the Belcher canal could not take more of the controversial water.

"They (the flood control engineers) had a hell of a good plan in its inception," he said, "but now they have come up with one where we get 25 per cent of the benefits and 75 per cent of the ill effects of the fresh water and silt dumping.

* * *

"THE ORIGINAL C&SF plan called for outlets from the St. Johns marsh around Sebastian-Melbourne at Titusville. But public sentiment there stopped those outlets. The people didn't want their fresh water supply drained away.

"Now they're getting ready to lead the drainage from the upper St. Johns marsh down into this three-canal project, and we'll get that water, too. They say they are not, but in dry weather there will be no other way to keep the proposed St. Lucie County impounding area filled."

Both McCarty and Click denied there is any such intention.

"The flow of the St. Johns is from south to north," said McCarty. "I don't know how we could run that water uphill.

"THERE HAS BEEN more distortion of fact in this matter than anything I've ever heard about," McCarty claimed. "Some 40,000 people now live in St. Lucie County. Our future fresh water supply is as important as flood control. We don't want to run off a bit more of that water than is absolutely necessary.

"Some of our critics even profess to believe we are not putting in the locks and control structures shown on the plan.

"That's ridiculous. Those control structures are approved by federal (Army) engineers. We are getting 85 per cent of the construction money from the federal government. Do you think those engineers would let us build without those controls?

"I don't believe anyone seriously believes this argument. This overall flood control work has saved Florida an estimated $44,500,000 damage in the last five years. Let's get on with it without wrangles between two counties. It's too important to the South Florida economy for that."

Said Lyons:

"We now take 8,800 cubic feet of water per second when all the gates are opened in the St. Lucie canal to lower Lake Okeechobee. That's just about ruined us. It's silted up our bays by an estimated 6 million cubic yards and ruined the fishing in an area where that is an economic mainstay.

* * *

"WE ESTIMATE that damage to the area is $200,000 the first month the St. Lucie locks are opened. What will it be when we get an added flow of another 10,000 cubic feet of water per second.

"We have seen water over State Road 60 (back of Vero Beach). That's the headwaters of the St. Johns, and no one can tell us we're not going to get that, too. This is land reclamation, not flood control. Land reclamation with federal money is illegal."

As this is written, dredges are preparing to start the contracted job of clearing out the St. Lucie river downstream from the mouth of the existing, shallow and clogged Rim ditch. Inasmuch as Army engineers had been quoted as saying this would not be done until the deepening, widening and control structures were assured for this canal, it looks like the name calling may have all been futile.

Who is right and who is wrong in this scrap?

It looks to this reporter like the answer to that one depends entirely on where you sit.

$6,298,000 Slashed From School Funds

TALLAHASSEE — (UPI) — The cabinet, over protests of school superintendent Thomas D. Bailey, Thursday slashed $6,298,000 off funds requested to run the public schools and buy textbooks.

Bailey warned the reductions might leave the schools short.

But the cabinet accepted Budget Director Harry Smith's prediction the counties will make up the $3,798,000 slashed from the state's share of minimum foundation program for schools.

Smith said the governor's drive for "full cash value" real estate assessments will result in a 20 per cent increase in revenue from school millage.

Bailey had figured on an increase in county contributions of only 10 per cent.

Although less than Bailey recommended, the $277,760,808 appropriation approved for school operations is nearly $35,000,000 more than the schools are spending now.

Bailey said increased enrollment necessitates the additional money.

Segregation Costly, He Says

Collins Asks Mixing In Graduate Schools

Economy Moves Urged

By JOHN BOYLES
Capitol Bureau Chief

TALLAHASSEE — Gov. LeRoy Collins moved Thursday toward full integration of the graduate schools at Florida State and the University of Florida.

He told the State Budget Commission that the graduate program at Florida A&M University for Negroes here is proving too costly.

Collins also told a press conference that he will oppose any constitutional change which would alter the guarantee of a uniform system of free public schools.

Attorney General Richard Ervin has said he will recomment the Legislature adopt a parent option-tuition plan for private schools to bolster Florida's fight against racial mixing in the schools.

Nearly every other southern state has integrated its graduate schools without trouble, Collins told the Budget Commission.

He said the graduate program at Florida A&M ought to be reappraised in the light of economy as well as racial considerations.

In 1958 a federal district court order opened the graduate schools at the University of Florida to Negroes. Only one Negro has been admitted. He is in the school of law.

Collins said that during the past seven years the state has spent about $60,000 on every student graduate from the Negro law school at A&M. It has been operating seven years and has graduated six lawyers at a total cost of $370,000 and now has an enrollment of 18.

Under the state's "separate but equal" facilities doctrine, graduate schools in law, agriculture, pharmacy and education have been established at A&M.

"I think we are going to have to reappraise the A&M graduate program in the light of the state's financial position as well as in the light of this racial situation," the governor declared.

He said, "The people in Virginia tell me that the matter of educating Negroes in graduate schools poses no problem, and they are having the same experience in North Carolina, Tennessee, Oklahoma, Arkansas and Louisiana."

Collins said he had not had an opportunity to study Attorney General Ervin's proposal for a parent-option-tuition plan.

It would require a constitutional change to continue providing for free public schools but would knock out the requirement for a uniform system.

Three-Bid Printing Deals Eyed

See Reaction Story, Page13A

By JOHN L. BOYLES
Capitol Bureau Chief

TALLAHASSEE — A legislative investigation will attempt to find out if some state agencies and printers are giving only token recognition to a law requiring that at least three bids be invited for printing jobs.

One purchasing official for a large state agency, who declined to be quoted by name, said he was approached by an agent for an unidentified company about doing the agency's printing.

He said he told the salesman he would call for bids on some envelopes and was admonished, "Don't worry about that. I'll bring three bids with me when I bring the envelopes.

State Rep. John E. Matthews Jr. of Jacksonville said he will look into the complaint of one printer who reported, "We had an awfully hard time getting on some of the invitation-to-bid lists. People just give us the fishy eye and that is the last we hear."

Mathews has asked state agencies to supply him with full information on all printing costs, and how bids are received. He believes state printing should be handled like other services — under the state's central purchasing system.

A big variance in printing costs is pointed up in contrasting the purchase of letter heads by the Railroad and Public Utilities Commission and the State Beverage Department.

The Railroad Commission paid $16 a thousand for letterheads in a 20,000 order. The three bids were: Rose Printing Co., Tallahassee, low at $16; Record-Press of St. Augustine, second low at $16.85, and Buckley-Newman of Tallahassee, third at $17.50

Beverage Department bids were opened to wide competitive bidding. The Suwannee Democrat of Live Oak submitted the low bid of $8.15 a thousand for an order of 25,000.

Charles Rosenberg, president of Rose and whose other interests comprise the state's largest printing organization, was one of the chief foes of Mathews' attempt to put printing under central purchasing two years ago.

The Railroad Commission letterhead job was sought by both Rose Printing Co. and Record Press, Inc. of St. Augustine.

Rosenberg is not shown among officers of the Record-Press but Charles Ausley, his lawyer and who is listed in the Secretary of State's office as vice president of Rose, is shown as chairman of the board of the St. Augustine firm.

Five 18-Year-Old Boys Killed in Auto Crash

By DAN BROWN
Cocoa Bureau Chief

COCOA BEACH — One of the seven 18-year-old boys said, "Let's go to Cocoa Beach and see if there's a missile shoot."

So they raced to Cocoa Beach from Orlando early Thursday and five of them died when an elevated pipe which crosses the beach sheared off the top of their car.

The two survivors got such bad head injuries a brain surgeon gave them "only one chance in a 100 of living." They hadn't regained consciousness Thursday afternoon.

Among the victims was 21-year-old Nickie H. Morgan of Orlando, a boy "who was crazy about missile shoots," according to his father.

Also dead were Kenneth L. D. Gardiner, James E. Weaver, Richard Knobler and John E. Roquemore—all of Orlando.

Patrick Costello and Kenneth Gepper survived.

The ill-starred seven made their decision to "watch for a missile" at an Orlando drive-in restaurant where they all met shortly after midnight.

It probably came at the urging of Morgan, Roquemore, Weaver or Knobler who came to Cocoa Beach often to see the missiles fly from Cape Canaveral.

Costello, Gepper and Gardiner also spent the evening together. The three, all college students, triple dated with Orlando girls.

They took the girls to see "Son of Sinbad," then stopped for a snack at the restaurant and agreed to meet at the restaurant again after taking the girls home.

All the girls got home at about 11:45 p.m. and the three boys—who were riding in two cars, returned to the drive-in restaurant and met their four death car companions.

Roquemore, son of a prominent Orlando auto parts merchant, and the owner of the 1959 Ford death car, was convicted of causing three 1958 accidents and two 1957 accidents, according to Orlando records.

His record also shows a speeding conviction and one for illegal possession of liquor.

There was no liquor in the death car and no evidence any of the boys had been drinking.

Cosetllo, a starting basketball forward for Orlando Junior College, was a "good, hard-working athlete and a good, hard-working student," according to Ronald Cox, his basketball coach.

Knobler was a mystery. Papers on his body identified him as a resident of the Orlando YMCA. But YMCA officials said the boy, who lived alone, hadn't been at the Y in more than a month.

All they knew about him was that "his parents live up north some place, and he has an aunt in Daytona Beach."

Gardner was a freshman at the University of Florida and a "nice guy" according to a classmate.

Morgan, Weaver and Gepper all were Orlando Junior College students like Costello. All were described as "hard-working boys."

King Perjury Case Is Handed to Jury

BARTOW, Fla. — The State pictured former State Sen. Harry King Thursday as the "brains" behind the 1956 perjury scheme, but the defense claimed eight days of state testimony failed to prove him guilty.

The case went to the six-man jury at 3:15 p.m.

King sat expressionless and pale as he listened to four hours of final arguments. He heard the state picture him as the "brains" behind a perjury scheme.

He listened as the defense claimed the state had failed in eight days of testimony to prove his guilt and described him as "a man who has suffered enough."

Both sides presented final arguments before a six-man criminal court jury in King's second trial for allegedly setting up a perjury scheme in connection with a $10,000 Polk County political payoff three years ago.

King and his co-defendant, former sheriff Pat Gordon, allegedly procured deputy sheriffs Rollie Arnold and James Busbee to lie before the grand jury investigating the charge that King gave $10,000 to former state Rep. Boone Tillett Jr., Lake Wales attorney, not to oppose King for re-election.

Chief defense counsel Chester Bedell, Jacksonville, told the jury that "when Mr. King transferred the $10,000 to Mr. Tillett it was entirely political in nature. But Mr. King is not being tried here for violation of election laws."

He pointed out that King is charged only with conspiring to commit perjury and procuring the two deputies to lie for him. But he said there was no evidence to show that the 56-year-old King, now a Winter Haven attorney, talked with either of the deputies before they agreed to the perjury plan Feb. 28, 1956, 24 days after the payoff in a lemon grove near Babson Park.

"If anyone induced Busbee it was not Mr. King," said Bedell.

Schulberg Laying Groundwork for Castro Film

SARASOTA'S first citizen of the arts, Budd Schulberg, who should be in Remagen, Germany, preparing for the co-production with brother Stuart of a movie about World War II, is at the Havana Riviera instead scouting a more resent "war" for material for a Fidel Castro Story movie which Elia Kazan may direct. "Across the Sierra Maestra?" Schulberg is also penning a Castro piece for True Magazine.

Sudden Thot: From the news pictures of Fidel it would appear he's a one-suit (maybe two pairs of pants) guy. When Fulgencio Batista fled his "finca" outside Havana he left 100 suits and 34 pairs of trousers in his roomsize wardrobe. And on his study table were busts of Winston Churchill, Joseph Stalin, Mahatma Ghandi, Joan of Arc, Gen. Erwin Rommel, Homer, Viscount Montgomery, Dante and Benjamin Franklin, Abe Lincoln who were represented in the finca's Patio of Heroes.

This is the very end on the cat-lying-down-with-the-dog, or whatever the metaphor of it is! A world premiere of a movie will be among the prizes on "The Price Is Right" — a television show! Winner of the audience participation bidding will have the premiere of "The Gidget," with klieglights and visiting stars, in his or her own living room. Sandra Dee and Cliff Robertson are featured in the Columbia production.

DiLaurentiis Expected Today

ITALIAN film producer Dino D'Laurentis, husband of Silvana Mangano, checks into the Fontainebleau Hotel today for a short stay. His newest film — and Silvana's — is "The Tempest," in which Van Heflin, a last week visitor, is also starred.

Garson Kanin, who directed the Broadway production of "A Hole in the Head," which is about a Miami Beach hotel, is due Sunday at the Fontainebleau where scenes for the movie version were filmed . . . Latin Quarter comedian Jay Lawrence has arrived! He's had his name inscribed on a celebrity chair at Fu Manchu's. But it's brother Larry who does the oriental bit!

Habla Asiatic Indian? Walter Klements, of the Wometco Theaters, wants the translation for "Pather Panchali," the title of the Cannes Film Festival prize winner which opens at the Mayfair and Sunset Theaters next Friday. Press book for the film, he says, is "vague" about the meaning.

Ava Gardner has been selected by the jai-alai players at Miami fronton to top their best actress list. Now Ava will have to volunteer her idea of the Ten Best Basques.

Janet to Make P.A. Here

JANET LEIGH will be at the Saxony Hotel on Wednesday for a series of personal appearances at the Carib, Miami and Miracle Theaters where "The Perfect Furlough," in which she co-stars with husband Tony Curtis will be playing . . . That was actor Keefe Brasselle congratulating actress Betty Grable on her sock show at the Latin Quarter . . . Ken Gregory, once a Martha Raye aide, is now managing the Babalu Bar at the Surfcomber.

Lola Fisher is doing most of the score from "My Fair Lady" in her limited engagement at the Empress Hotel Regency Room. And who could do it better — Miss Fisher had the lead in the Broadway production for a spell. She's using "production" props in her act . . . Bea Kalmus has moved her Stairway to the Stars radio interview show—but she hasn't moved it far—from the Bel Aire to the Sherry-Frontenac. They are in the same block.

Barney Nagler, columnist for the 50-cents-a-copy Morning Telegraph, essayist for the slicks and TV writer-producer, has been resting up from those collective chores at the Seville Hotel. Wonder if Barney remembers a New York colleague of the 30's — David Boehm, now a writer-producer for 20th Century-Fox? The once rotund-as-John Morton scrivener is almost as slim as Gary Cooper from the grind of the movie mills! His next production is "Snow Birch," which has been retitled "Woman Obsessed" for the screen. Guess the snow drifted.

Widow Gave Him $102,000

SANTA MONICA, Calif. — (AP) — Actor John Carroll testified Wednesday that a wealthy widow gave him $102,000 to further his career, and with no strings attached.

Carroll

The 54-year-old actor testified in Superior Court in defending himself against a suit for recovery of $228,800 brought by the 63-year-old widow, Mrs. Maude M. Marron.

Carroll said Mrs. Marron gave him $55,000 on May 1, 1953. He quoted her as saying: "This money is for you to do with as you see fit if it will further your career."

The actor said he received $7,000 from the widow after he had been instrumental in recovering a portion of $25,000 which he said she had given to another man.

He said once Mrs. Marron saw a picture of an expensive automobile and told him: "I'm going to get you one." He said she gave him $10,700 to buy the car.

The actor said no one else was present at the time when he received gifts from Mrs. Marron.

State-Long Pike Dead --Collins

Herald Bureau

TALLAHASSEE — Gov. LeRoy Collins said Thursday that proposed federal interstate system of limited access highways has killed plans for extension of Florida's turnpike north of Orlando.

Collins said the proposal to extend the existing toll road from Fort Pierce to Orlando would "not conflict but will complement the interstate system. I think any extension beyond that point should now be regarded as hopeless."

He said he felt the two-year-old turnpike had proven a great asset to the state but any extension north of Orlando to the Georgia line probably would not be feasible if it had to compete with a free limited access interstate system.

Only the portion between Miami and Fort Pierce has been built and some investment sources have cast doubt even on feasibility of running it to Orlando.

But Collins said there will be no interstate route to compete with a tollway from Fort Pierce to Orlando and he sees no reason why it should not be built someday.

Boy Pinned Hours Under 2-Ton Pipe

LOS ANGELES — (AP) — A 12-year-old boy who chose a sandy construction site for a playground was rescued Thursday after seven hours of being pinned by a two-ton concrete storm drain pipe.

Authorities say Perry A. Luth III apparently was digging a tunnel under the pipe Wednesday when it slipped down on his back, crushing him flat.

At dinner time his parents missed him and a search began. About four and a half hours after the pipe slipped, Perry's father spotted his son's bicycle by the work project near their Westchester home, then found the boy.

"I'm cold. I can't move my feet," were the boy's first words.

Then, in concerned tones, he asked:

"Did I make you miss the movie?"

"That's all right, son," the elder Luth replied. "We'll have you out right away."

Police extricated him by slipping a huge beam into the pipe, and jacking up its extended end.

Perry was taken to a hospital suffering from shock and possible internal injuries.

A Prelude to Shoot

Big Titan Missile Given Static Test

More State News, 10C

CAPE CANAVERAL — (AP) — Fire and smoke shot from the base of the mighty Titan intercontinental range ballistic missile Thursday during a prelaunch ground engine test.

If the static was successful after a series of recent failures, it meant that another Titan launch attempt could be expected next week.

An apparently satisfactory Vanguard satellite rocket engine test Wednesday paved the way for another firing of that temperamental missile soon.

The Titan, the nation's newest and potentially most powerful ICBM, made its debut Dec. 20, but the attempted shoot failed when the missile fizzled out on the pad.

Since that time three more static tests have been conducted on different Titan missiles with no apparent success.

The two-stage Titan, the first of the so-called "second generation missiles," is expected to be more advanced than than the present Atlas ICCBM.

It was the first appearance of the Vanguard in action at the Cape since Sept. 26 when the 72-foot rocket failed to blast a small satellite into orbit on its seventh try.

The lone Vanguard victory came last March 17 when a $3\frac{1}{4}$-pound moon was plopped into an orbit that may last two centuries.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration already has announced that the Vanguard program will be phased out after four more launchings.

Cuba Orders Peso Curbs

HAVANA, Cuba — (AP) — Cuba's new government Thursday put a $50 limit on the amount of Cuban pesos that individuals can bring into or take out of the country.

Any pesos held by travelers over that limit will be taken away from them by customs officials under the order.

The move was announced by Treasury Minister Rufo Lopez Fresquet. Aides said it was aimed at stopping black market sales of pesos abroad by members of the fallen Batista regime who fled with large sums of money.

Report Heard in Caracas

Slaying by Trujillo Of His V-P Is Denied

CIUDAD TRUJILLO, Dominican Republic — (AP) — Reports that Vice President Joaquin Balaguer had been slain were denied Thursday in government circles. Balaguer was reported working in his offices as usual Thursday afternoon.

Earlier, Dominican exiles in Caracas, Venezuela, said they had been advised Gen. Rafael Leonidas Trujillo, strongman of the Dominican Republic, had shot and killed Vice President Balaguer. Their story was splashed under banner headlines in the Caracas evening newspapers El Mundo and Pregon.

Nicolas Silfa and Angel Miolan, directors of the Dominican Revolutionary Party in exile, said in Caracas a clandestine radio reported the incident occurred last Tuesday in Ciudad Trujillo.

The exiles said the broadcast reported that Trujillo fired five shots at the vice president during an argument. The report added that Trujillo had accused Balaguer of not dealing harshly enough with an "insurrection."

Silfa and Miolan charged that the Dominican army has been disarmed and ordered to barracks. They charged that a "wave of repression" in the Dominican Republic was so great that hospitals had been converted into jails. It said the San Juan Hospital in Ciudad Trujillo was one.

Diver Freed From Sewer By Buddies

CHICAGO — (UPI) — A diver, his foot caught in a sewer gate 50 feet underwater, was trapped for more than five hours 160 feet under Chicago's streets Thursday.

His ordeal ended when his foot was freed and he was brought by slow stages to the surface. Two fellow divers rescued him by jacking open the gate.

The diver, Frank Hefling, 55, had to pause in a decompression chamber before he could come completely to the surface. He was then rushed to South Chicago Hospital.

Hefling had descended into the vertical sewer shaft on a mission to close the 12-square-inch gate leading to a water tunnel under construction on Chicago's far South Side.

His foot became caught in the gate and he was pinned against it by tons of water pressure sweeping past him.

Hoffa Set To Move On PAA

Claims Majority Of Stock Clerks

By DOM BONAFEDE
Herald Staff Writer

Jimmy Hoffa's Teamsters Union was poised Thursday to make its first assault on the airline industry by trying to bring Pan American World Airways stock clerks under its wing.

The Herald learned that the 800 clerks throughout the PAA system will vote next week on whether they want to be represented by the Teamsters or the International Association of Machinists.

Warren Lane, National Mediation Board official, confirmed the report and added that Hoffa already has signed up more than 51 per cent of the clerks.

Some 300 clerks based in Miami will cast their ballots next Tuesday and Wednesday, Lane said.

Other elections will be held in Cape Canaveral, New York City and on the Pacific Coast.

If Hoffa gets a foothold in the airline industry it will give him virtual control over the nation's transportation industry.

It was also learned that Hoffa was making eyes at the stewards and stewardesses of Mohawk Airlines, a small carrier operating in New York State.

Hoffa earlier disclosed he was making a stab at moving in on the airline industry when he gave a $200,000 loan to the Flight Engineers International Association during its 38-day strike.

He also ordered a study by subordinates to determine which airline and airport workers he could organize to be in a position to close down operations in case of a strike.

The stubby boss of the scandal-scarred union further threatened to stop gasoline deliveries to any airline which provoked his displeasure in labor-management battles.

Hoffa's wooing of PAA's clerks apparently is the opening shot of a concerted drive by the Teamsters to infiltrate the airline industry.

The clerks formerly were members of the machinists union but later switched to the Transport Workers Union. The changeover was nullified, however, by the AFL-CIO, leaving the way open for the Teamsters to step in.

Meanwhile, PAA faces a strike threat from its ground service employes following the collapse of negotiation talks.

Nikita's Arteries Hardening? New York Doctors Think So

NEW YORK — (UPI) — The New York World Telegram and Sun said Thursday that in the opinion of several prominent New York doctors "there is a distinct possibility" that Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev may be suffering from hardening of the arteries of the brain.

These doctors compared photographs of the Russian leader, taken early last year with those taken recently.

"The arteries in his temple look more prominent in the latest photo," the newspaper quoted one doctor as saying. "They look prominent and tortuous. It looks like a distinct possibility of cerebral hardening of the arteries."

The newspaper said that another doctor said that "in cases like this there is always the hazard of cerebral vascular accidents, or, in other words, the danger of a stroke."

The World Telegram and Sun quoted another physician as saying that "it's perhaps speculative to base judgment on photos, but the latest photo seems to show his face typically haggard and lined."

"Such an arterial ailment is quite common in overweight people more than 50 years of age," one of the doctors pointed out, the newspaper said.

Khrushchev will be 65 on April 17, the newspaper pointed out, and he was quoted by Sen. Hubert Humphrey, who met him recently, as saying that he had kidney trouble.

The New York doctors, according to The World Telegram and Sun, said that the photos also showed that the Soviet premier had lost weight since last July. They speculated that his doctors had advised this since, though not a cure, it is a help in fighting the inroads of cardiovascular disease.

Struck by Two Bullets

Hialeah Security Chief Is Shot Down by Tipster

By JAMES BUCHANAN
Herald Staff Writer

As hundreds of Hialeah Race Track fans looked on in horror, an arthritic 75-year-old tout Thursday fired two bullets into John Madala, track security chief and ex-FBI agent who helped gun down John Dillinger.

Shortly before the bugle called the first race, the elderly tipster, identified as Maxim Gay, shuffled toward Madala, who was talking with his brother behind the grandstand, and muttered in a stuttering voice:

"You've taken away my living."

He then took out a revolver and fired two shots, sending Madala sprawling to the ground.

Stepping closer, he fired three more shots and dropped the weapon just as track guards grabbed him.

Bill Horan, a track employe who witnessed the shooting, said:

"I turned around when I heard the first shot but I didn't get excited. I thought it was a movie act involving Madala.

"Then I saw someone shoot at him when he was down. Lucky somebody else didn't get shot, too."

Madala was rushed to Doctors' Hospital where surgeons took one slug out of his right side and one out of his abdomen. His condition was serious. Three of the shots missed.

Police identified the gunman as Gay, an oldtime professional tout who is well known around the country's race tracks as a tip-sheet salesman.

They said that Gay, of 126 SW Seventh Ave., told them he tried to kill Madala because the security chief ordered him ejected from the track Wednesday.

John Madala

State Attorney Richard Gerstein said Gay will be charged with assault with intent to commit first degree murder.

Gay, a gray-haired man who walks haltingly with a stoop, was taken to the Hialeah police station for questioning and later booked at the county jail.

Officers described him as "calm, cooperative and unremorseful."

Under questioning, he told investigators he bought the revolver — a .38 caliber Smith and Wesson — Wednesday from a Hialeah gun dealer with the avowed purpose of avenging his dismissal from the track.

Health Spot Calls Mamie

WASHINGTON — (UPI) — Mrs. Mamie Eisenhower plans to return to Beauty Queen Elizabeth Arden's Maine Chance health resort in Phoenix, Ariz., next month.

A White House spokesman said Thursday the First Lady plans to go to the plush resort by train with her sister, Mrs. G. Gordon Moore.

It was not announced how long Mrs. Eisenhower plans to stay or just when she will go to the exclusive beauty-health resort that charges $600 a week and up.

Mrs. Eisenhower's last trip to "Maine Chance" created a stir in some quarters because President Eisenhower took her there in the Presidential plane Columbine III from Thomasville, Ga. last February.

McElroy: Reds Will Take Lead

Senate Probers Hear Defense Officials

WASHINGTON — (UPI) — The Air Force's ballistic missile chief told Senate investigators Thursday the U.S. should be building more intercontinental missiles to meet the "very great danger" posed by Russian strength.

Maj. Gen. Bernard A. Schriever made the statement after Defense Secretary Neil H. McElroy acknowledged that Russia would have more intercontinental ballistic missiles than the U.S. in a year or two. But McElroy said this country was not trying to match Russia missile for missile.

Testifying before the combined Senate space-preparedness subcommittee, McElroy said this country was relying on a variety of weapons to deter war. They include not only ICBM's — a squadron will be ready to fire in July — but also manned bombers and missile firing submarines.

Following McElroy to the stand, Schriever said the U.S. had the capacity to increase its ICBM power considerably. He said Soviet missile strength endangered not only the nation's security but its actual survival.

"In view of the very great danger," he said, "we should be building larger ICBM forces. We have the capacity to build more."

Schriever, commander of the Air Force Ballistic Missile Division, urged that the question of a speed-up "be given serious consideration over the next several months."

McElroy denied there was any current gap in ICBM's. He said neither Russia nor the U.S had an "operational" missilee now and this country would have one on the firing line first. But he said Russia would catch up later and forge ahead because the U.S. had other plans.

McElroy said this country's first ICBM squadron would be on the firing line at Vandenberg Air Force Base, near Los Angeles, by July. It will have 10 launchers for hurling Atlas missiles with hydrogen warheads to targets 5,500 miles away. That would include Moscow.

The Senate committee, headed by Senate Democratic leader Lyndon B. Johnson, called McElroy, Gen. Nathan F. Twining, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, and the chiefs of the individual services for an "honest count" on this nation's missile-space strength.

Thor Being Stockpiled

U.S. Mass-Producing 1,500-Mile Missile

SANTA MONICA, Calif.—(AP) — America is mass-producing one of its most reliable missiles in a form so simple that crews can fire them in volleys on 15-minutes notice—even from mobile bases.

The missile is the 1,500-mile Thor, a combat-ready weapon that also is a workhorse in space research.

It can carry a nuclear warhead known as the "county-buster" and it is stockpiled at bases in this country and abroad.

But because of its limited range, the future of the Thor is uncertain.

This picture emerged Thursday after the first press tour of Thor production and testing facilities here and in Sacramento, Calif. Donald W. Douglas, president of Douglas Aircraft Co., led the tour.

Newsmen saw parts of more than a dozen Thors on an assembly line at the Douglas Aircraft plant here and 17 finished missiles in a storage area.

At Sacramento they saw a demonstration that a hangared Thor can be made ready to launch 15 minutes after the order to fire.

A Thor squadron has 15 missiles, all ready to be fired at once, at the same target or at 15 different targets.

In the field, each missile requires only four men to fuel and fire it.

Fifteen successes and 12 partial successes out of 31 firings attest the Thor's reliability.

'Massive Assistance' Bill Opens Civil Rights Battle

15 Liberals Combine In Senate

WASHINGTON — (UPI) — Fifteen liberal senators opened the 1959 congressional civil rights battle Thursday by introducing a bill that would throw the full weight of the government behind the Supreme Court's school integration order.

The bipartisan group, headed by Sen. Paul H. Douglas (D., Ill.), said the legislation would give local communities wishing to integrate the government's "massive assistance" to counter the "massive resistance" thrown up by Southern states.

Douglas and others said the bill was not aimed at punishing the South and did not demand immediate compliance. However, it is far more sweeping than either the "moderate" proposal by Senate Democratic Leader Lyndon B. Johnson or the administration's forthcoming bill.

Douglas, acknowledging the rocky path ahead of the bill, said he expected Southerners to raise a filibuster threat against it. In a caustic reference to Johnson's middle-of-the-road measure, he added:

"Then some ostrich-like proposal, burying its head in the sand so that it cannot see the school problem, offending — and helping—almost no one, will probably be served up as a 'reasonable compromise' . . . I hope the Senate will not be misled by these maneuvers."

The liberal version was sponsored by 11 Democrats and four Republicans.

One of them, Sen. Jacob K. Javits (R., N.Y.), said "this opens the civil rights battle in Congress for this session."

The bill would authorize the Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare to offer legal, financial and technical aid in school integration cases. The technical help could amount to as much as $2,500,000 a year for five years.

The secretary also could make grants for school buildings, teachers and community aid where states threaten to close schools to prevent integration. This aid would total 40 million dollars annually for five years.

Javits virtually conceded that the liberal bill had no chance of winning approval from the Senate Judiciary Committee, headed by Sen. James O. Eastland (D., Miss).

Besides Douglas and Javits, other sponsors were Sens. Hubert H. Humphrey (D., Minn.), Thomas C. Hennings Jr. (D., Mo.), Clifford P. Case (R., N.J.), Wayne Morse (D., Ore.), Joseph S. Clark (D., Pa.), Richard L. Neuberger (D., Ore.), Pat McNamara (D., Mich.), William Proxmire (D., Wis.), J. Glenn Beall (R., Md.), Philip A. Hart (D., Mich.), Eugene J. McCarthy (D., Minn.), Thomas J. Dodd (D., Conn.), and Gordon Allott, (R., Colo.).

Norfolk Will 'Mix' 6 Schools

NORFOLK, Va. —(AP)— The Norfolk School Board announced Thursday that the city's six closed schools will open Monday on an integrated basis.

Three high and three junior high schools have been closed since September to avoid integration. However, the state laws under which their doors were locked have been nullified by state and federal court decisions.

The reopening will bring the first Negro children in Virginia history—17 in all—into white public school classrooms.

The school board's announcement came immediately after the City Council assured it of operating funds. An earlier council resolution to cut off school monies, fell before Federal Court orders.

The schools affected are Maury, Granby, and Norview High School and Norview, Blair and Northside Junior Highs. A total of 10,000 white children are affected. However, only about 75 per cent of that number are expected to return to school Monday since many are attending school elsewhere or have dropped it altogether.

Meanwhile a Federal Circuit Court judge in Baltimore postponed mandatory integration at two Charlottesville, Va., public schools. A spokesman for the school board said the schools probably would open next week on a segregated basis.

Affected are 1,700 students at Venable Elementary and Lane High Schools. Their schools were closed by the state after a Federal Court judge ordered the admission of 12 Negro students last September.

The decision by Chief Judge Simon E. Sobeloff of the Fourth U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals was disclosed by John S. Battle Jr. counsel for the Charlottesville School Board.

His Tests to Continue

'Apple-a-Day' Proponent, Dr. Engene Lucas, 62, Dies

EAST LANSING, Mich.—(AP) — Dr. Eugene Lucas, known for his scientific testing of the adage that an apple a day keeps the doctor away, is dead of a heart attack. He was 62.

An apple-loving horticulturist at Michigan State University, Lucas was running a four-year experiment on the health effects of apple-eating. In the tests, which will be continued, 500 students eating apples daily were checked for health against non-apple-eating students.

The University Hospital is keeping score on which groups have more of such common illnesses as colds, throat infections, skin disorders and stomach upsets.

He had said: "Although science has ridiculed folk tales for years, we have found much scientific foundation for lore that pertains to plants and diseases."

Lucas was better known in the scientific world for his research on cancer and tumors.

A native of Vienna, he received degrees from the University of Vienna and the University of Leipzig in Germany. He helped develop a wheat strain that still is widely used in Europe.

Duke Ellington, the old maestro whose artistry is known from hither to thither to yon and return, now is doing a 30-minute part in "Jump For Joy" at Copa City. When I saw the show opening night some space-brain director had Duke sweeping the stage and carrying scenery. Duke's now putting his orchestra into the show. He's playing "Mood Indigo," "Sophistocated Lady" and other of his world famous hits. They had Duke billed as the star. Now he really is.

Opening night the directors had three good Negro actors doing a supposedly satirical takeoff of a Noel Coward theme. It was the worst thing I've seen in a theater since two comedians tried "Waiting for Godot." If you can imagine a colored man wearing an English cap, duster and handle-bar mustaches! And the dialogue—but I'll spare you that. Then there was a bedroom scene that insulted the dignity of the human race; and lots more. Now, all that ghastliness is gone and Duke heads a good show, with Barbara McNair the neatest thing in town.

Lou Walters has a really smart show, as usual. Trust the old maestro to give us something well dressed, in good taste and tinged with the sensational. I've not seen Betty Grable but she's selling out Latin Quarter every night. They come away lovin' her. She's something new in night club circles and folks like new faces. See how Red Skelton packs 'em in, with nary a chorus gal in sight.

Ive not seen "Newcomers of 1958" at Deauville, but it's fast, smooth and they can't miss with kids like Buster Keaton, Rudy Vallee, Harry Richman, Fifi Dorsay. As for Whiteman; he's Old Man River.

Castro To Allot Land

He'll Initiate Cuban Reform

HAVANA, Cuba—(UPI)—Fidel Castro will launch the government's agrarian reform program Monday by personally delivering the first parcels of land to peasants in Oriente Province, cradle of the Cuban revolution, it was announced.

The announcement was made by Carlos Franqui, editor of "Revolucion," official organ of Castro's July 26 revolutionary movement.

Franqui said Castro will appear Monday afternoon at Guayabal de Nagua, near the town of Estrada Palma in Oriente, to address a mass meeting of farm workers and make personal delivery of the first land grants.

The scene will be near Castro's former headquarters in the Sierra Maestra mountains, from which he directed the two year triumphant revolution against former Dictator Fulgencio Batista.

Qualified military sources meanwhile confirmed that revolutionary trials of former Batista officials will be resumed today when Lt. Col. Ricardo Luis Grao will go on trial before a court martial at the hall of justice in the Superior War Tribunal building.

Grao is the last of the three most prominent Batista military officers to go on trial.

The two others, Maj. Jesus Sosa Blanco and Maj. Pedro Morejon Valdes were tried and sentenced to death. Both have appealed the sentences.

Shift to Miami Denied

Channel 10 Trial Stays in Capital

By DAVID KRASLOW

Of Our Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — Federal Judge Burnita S. Matthews ruled Thursday that the Channel 10 trial of Richard A. Mack and Thurman A. Whiteside can't be moved to Miami.

The trial has been set for Feb. 16, but Mack, former Federal Communications Commission member, and Whiteside, a Miami attorney, are expected to ask for a delay.

Mack and Whiteside had requested that the trial be shifted from here to Miami.

They were indicted by a federal grand jury in Washington last September on charges of conspiring to have Mack sell his vote in the award of the Channel 10 Miami television license.

Mack and Whiteside had claimed that because of the congressional hearings a year ago, and subsequent proceedings in Washington, a prejudicial atmosphere exists in Washington and they cannot obtain a fair trial.

Judge Matthews ruled that a showing of such prejudice "has not been made."

Mack also had asked for a transfer on the grounds that he is destitute and that the expense of a trial in Washington would work a hardship on him. It also was pointed out that virtually all of the potential witnesses reside in Miami.

But Judge Matthews ruled that the Federal Court in Washington had exclusive jurisdiction with respect to one of the three counts in the indictment and that the "interest of justice" would not be served by a partial transfer of the case.

Mack and Whiteside are both charged in the first count alleging conspiracy. Whiteside is charged along in the second count and Mack is accused alone in the third count.

Judge Matthews held that the first two counts are triable either in Washington or Miami.

She also denied motions to dismiss the indictment, to have the government file more detailed charges, and to strike certain portions of the indictment.

A claim that the grand jury's secrecy had been violated by a newspaper article published 11 days prior to the announcement of the indictment was over ruled by the judge.

Channel 6 Now Open For Bidding

After almost two years of legal hassles, Miami's television Channel 6 is open to all applicants who wish to bid to operate it.

The U.S. Court of Appeals Friday sustained the Federal Communications Commission, which assigned Channel 6 to the Miami area April 25, 1957.

Gerico Investment Co., which operates WITV on Channel 17 in Fort Lauderdale, an ultra high frequency station, contested the assignment on the grounds that a fifth VHF channel in Miami modified its license.

Gerico also contended it should have been allowed to operate on Channel 6, instead of being forced to compete for the honor with other applicants.

A similar and earlier appeal by Gerico in connection with Channel 7 in Miami also was denied.

The Channel 6 Very High Frenquency station is of the type picked up on average television sets. Only sets provided with special equipment can get the UHF channels.

Strong winds should cause drifting of heavy snowfall in upper Michigan and thunderstorms may mark the eastern edge of the outbreak from the central Appalachians into Alabama.

Very cold weather will produce sub zero temperatures as far south as Nebraska and readings in the 20s are forecast for Kansas and parts of Oklahoma Friday afternoon as Arctic winds push southward over Texas.

Rains, expected to reach central California, will diminish to showers in the Pacific northwest Friday while occasional snow spreads across the northern and central plateau reaching the Rockies.

Opinions Are Firmly-Fixed in Canal Feud

(Last of two articles)

By STEVE TRUMBULL
Herald Staff Writer

FORT PIERCE — Can any compromise come in the hot feud now on between this county of St. Lucie and adjoining Martin County over water control plans for their respective back countries?

TRUMBULL

Is there a "Right" side and a wrong" side, or is it truly a two-sided question.

Interviewing everyone who has a firmly fixed opinion would have meant practically the combined populations of both counties. That being a slightly awkward procedure with newspaper space limitations, we decided to spend our time with two leaders from each camp.

These four are men we have known and respected over a period of years, and whose personal integrity we never have questioned.

For the Fort Pierce viewpoint, and the viewpoint of the Central and Southern Florida Flood Control District, we went to David Click of Clewiston, chairman of the district, and Brian McCarty of this city, vice chairman and brother of the late Gov. Dan McCarty.

* * *

FOR THE VIEWS of the opposing Martin County camp we went to Ernie Lyons, longtime and respected editor of the Stuart News, and Capt. Bruce Leighton, USN (ret), now a large scale farmer in Martin County. He is chairman of the Martin County Water Conservation committee.

Click and McCarty hedged not at all in admitting that — in time of a peak flood — two of the three canals to be widened each could dump as much as 5,000 cubic feet per second of water into the North fork of the St. Lucie river behind Stuart. That's the nub of the Stuart objection.

"But," said Click, "objectors in Martin County insist on ignoring the fact that a wide and deep canal, with the proper control structures that these canals will have, can be far less injurious in the matter of silt than a narrow and clogged canal.

* * *

"THEY SAY WE should take a greater share of the Belcher canal out through Fort Pierce. Our engineers tell us this is impossible with the contours of the affected area. We can't run it uphill.

"This plan was part of the original, overall plan for the 17-county project. It has long been known. It has been aired in public hearings long ago. U. S. Army Engineers have approved it. Congress has approved it, and the money has been appropriated. We can do nothing but go ahead, or bog down the entire plan."

Captain Leighton, in our session at his farm west of Stuart, produced copies of elevation maps to argue the point that the Belcher canal could not take more of the controversial water.

"They (the flood control engineers) had a hell of a good plan in its inception," he said, "but now they have come up with one where we get 25 per cent of the benefits and 75 per cent of the ill effects of the fresh water and silt dumping.

* * *

"THE ORIGINAL C&SF plan called for outlets from the St. Johns marsh around Sebastian-Melbourne at Titusville. But public sentiment there stopped those outlets. The people didn't want their fresh water supply drained away.

"Now they're getting ready to lead the drainage from the upper St. Johns marsh down into this three-canal project, and we'll get that water, too. They say they are not, but in dry weather there will be no other way to keep the proposed St. Lucie County impounding area filled."

Both McCarty and Click denied there is any such intention.

"The flow of the St. Johns is from south to north," said McCarty. "I don't know how we could run that water uphill.

* * *

"THERE HAS BEEN more distortion of fact in this matter than anything I've ever heard about," McCarty claimed. "Some 40,000 people now live in St. Lucie County. Our future fresh water supply is as important as flood control. We don't want to run off a bit more of that water than is absolutely necessary.

"Some of our critics even profess to believe we are not putting in the locks and control structures shown on the plan.

"That's ridiculous. Those control structures are approved by federal (Army) engineers. We are getting 85 per cent of the construction money from the federal government. Do you think those engineers would let us build without those controls?

"I don't believe anyone seriously believes this argument. This overall flood control work has saved Florida an estimated $44,500,000 damage in the last five years. Let's get on with it without wrangles between two counties. It's too important to the South Florida economy for that."

Said Lyons:

"We now take 8,800 cubic feet of water per second when all the gates are opened in the St. Lucie canal to lower Lake Okeechobee. That's just about ruined us. It's silted up our bays by an estimated 6 million cubic yards and ruined the fishing in an area where that is an economic mainstay.

* * *

"WE ESTIMATE that damage to the area is $200,000 the first month the St. Lucie locks are opened. What will it be when we get an added flow of another 10,000 cubic feet of water per second.

"We have seen water over State Road 60 (back of Vero Beach). That's the headwaters of the St. Johns, and no one can tell us we're not going to get that, too. This is land reclamation, not flood control. Land reclamation with federal money is illegal."

As this is written, dredges are preparing to start the contracted job of clearing out the St. Lucie river downstream from the mouth of the existing, shallow and clogged Rim ditch. Inasmuch as Army engineers had been quoted as saying this would not be done until the deepening, widening and control structures were assured for this canal, it looks like the name calling may have all been futile.

Who is right and who is wrong in this scrap?

It looks to this reporter like the answer to that one depends entirely on where you sit.

Eau Gallie Mayor Milton McGrath named Councilmen James E. Chapman and Vance Bell and City Manager Clark Maxwell as his committee.

Harrison Shuns Lie Detector

JACKSONVILLE — AP — James E. Harrison refused to take a lie detector test Thursday about his three-month disappearance during which he was thought a murder victim. "I've been pushed around enough," the 32-year-old Indian River city businessman said.

He talked privately with police for five hours after coming here from Miami in answer to a subpoena. Investigators said the conference produced nothing new in the case.

State Atty. William A. Hallowes said Harrison's story is inconclusive and the case is not closed.

Harrison disappeared Oct. 7 and turned up last week in Phoenix, Ariz. He said he remembered nothing from the time a stranger slugged him in a Jacksonville parking lot until he identified himself to Phoenix police.

In the meantime a California convict, Roy V. Olson, 23, confessed he killed Harrison. After Harrison was found alive, Olson repudiated his confession.

Officers, however, said Olson knew too many details and there was too much blood on Harrison's car — found abandoned on a Jacksonville street Oct. 14 — for them to believe there wasn't some basis to Olson's story.

The investigation now centers around two bags of fertilizer.

J. C. Patrick, Duval County's chief criminal investigator, said efforts will be made to firmly establish the purchase of the fertilizer by Harrison at a service station Oct. 7. A woman at the station told officers of such a purchase after Harrison's disappearance.

Harrison maintains he has no recollection of the purchase.

Five Orlando Youths Killed in Auto Crash

Accident Occurs On Cocoa Beach

by DAN BROWN
Cocoa Bureau Chief

COCOA BEACH — One of the seven 18-year-old boys said, "Let's go to Cocoa Beach and see if there's a missile shoot."

So they raced to Cocoa Beach from Orlando early Thursday and five of them died when an elevated pipe which crosses the beach shared off the top of their car.

The two survivors got such bad head injuries a brain surgeon gave them "only one chance in a 100 of living." They hadn't regained consciousness Thursday afternoon.

T. C. Worley, the contractor who strung the elevated pipeline across the south beach at Cocoa Beach was grief-stricken.

The line, was used to "jet in" piles for the Bon Aire Motel bulkhead project, he said, and it had a red lantern on it.

Among the victims was Nickie H. Morgan of Orlando, a boy "who was crazy about missile shoots," according to his father.

Also dead were Kenneth L. D. Gardiner, James E. Weaver, Richard Knobler and John E. Roquemore—all of Orlando.

Patrick Costello and Kenneth Gepper survived.

The accident scene, which is about half mile north of Patrick Air Force Base, is on a section of the beach where driving is not allowed.

On its way to the death crash, the boys' car flashed by several signs which say "No Driving."

There was another touch of irony.

No missiles were fired from Cape Canaveral Wednesday night or Thursday morning.

The accident is the worst in Brevard County's history.

It brings the 1959 county death toll to eight.

The ill-starred seven made their decision to "watch for a missile" at an Orlando drive-in restaurant where they all met shortly after midnight.

It probably came at the urging of Morgan, Roquemore, Weaver or Knobler who came to Cocoa Beach often to see the missiles fly from Cape Canaveral.

Costello, Gepper and Gardiner also spent the evening together. The three, all college students, triple dated with Orlando girls.

They took the girls to see "Son of Sinbad," then stopped for a snack at the restaurant and agreed to meet at the restaurant again after taking the girls home.

All the girls got home at about 11:45 p.m. and the three boys—who were riding in two cars, returned to the drive-in restaurant and met their four death car companions.

Roquemore, son of a prominent Orlando auto parts merchant, and the owner of the 1959 Ford death car, was convicted of causing three 1958 accidents and two 1957 accidents, according to Orlando records.

His record also shows a speeding conviction and one for illegal possession of liquor.

There was no liquor in the death car and no evidence any of the boys had been drinking.

Costelo, a starting basketball forward for Orlando Junior College, was a "good, hard-working athlete and a good hard-working student," according to Ronald Cox, his basketball coach.

Knobler was a mystery. Papers on his body identified him as a resident of the Orlando YMCA. But YMCA officials said the boy, who lived alone, hadn't been at the Y in more than a month.

All they knew about him was that "his parents live up north some place, and he has an aunt in Daytona Beach."

Gardiner was a freshman at the Universrty of Florida and a "nice guy" according to a classmate.

Morgan, Weaver and Gepper all were Orlando Junior College students like Costello. All were described as "hard-working boys."

Eau Gallie Assured Of Library

EAU GALLIE — This city is assured of getting a new library building before a campaign to raise $10,000 to help pay for construction can be launched.

Mayor Milton McGrath, who's been running a one-man library drive, announced Tuesday that "we already have the promise of a contractor to build the building, and other promises to do the wiring, plumbing and floor work — all free of charge."

The mayor stated that the city hopes to be able to have all construction materials donated, too. Brevard County is donating the site on Cypress St., between Eighth and Ninth Streets.

But "money still is needed, although it might not take the $10,000 we had planned asking residents to contribute," McGrath said. "After all the donations are made, we'll decide the amount of cash needed."

The city is to provide the building, and the county government ately $6,000 annually to pay for operation, including a librarian's salary.

Natural Gas Pipeline Draws Near Brevard

By BILL BUNGE
Melbourne Bureau Chief

MELBOURNE — Construction on the Brevard County link of the Texas-to-Florida natural gas pipeline is scheduled to start in two to three weeks by Harbert Construction Corp. of Birmingham, it was learned by The Herald Thursday.

The contractor has unloaded 50 miles of 20-inch pipe sections from railroad cars in a Melbourne Airport warehouse area. Truck crews are starting to distribute it in advance of crews who are pushing their way here from the Kissimmee area. Pipe is being laid at the rate of a mile and one-half a day.

Dozens of other railroad carloads of pipe are spotted at Micco, Sebastian, Gifford, Vero Beach and Fort Pierce in preparation for joining the Brevard line with the southern leg running along the Sunshine State Parkway.

Meanwhile, Brevard officials are making plans to ask the Federal Power Commission for an allocation of gas from this main line, coming into the county near Minton's Corner in West Melbourne. It will be here that the seven million dollar countywide system will connect for its supply.

The way was paved for the county to request its gas allocation from the FPC when the city of Cocoa agreed this week to sign a franchise. Other major Brevard municipalities previously signed the agreement.

Main line construction crews now are working their way toward Holopaw from Kissimmee. When they reach Holopaw, about 30 miles west of Melbourne, the local Harbert headquarters will take over the pipe laying.

The Brevard link will come from the center of the state on a route generally following SR 192 (Kissimmee Hwy.), turn south in West Melbourne, and run approximately six to seven miles west of U.S. 1 to a point on the turnpike near Fort Pierce.

This local section, some 60 miles long, is one of the last to be constructed.

City Plans Check of Housing Unit

EAU GALLIE — A property owner complaint caused city officials to start a check Tuesday to determine whether the Federal Public Housing Administration has violated the municipal building code in constructing a low-cost home development east of Sunwood Park.

The 24-unit project, started a month ago, "devaluates my property," complained the property owner. This low-cost development has irked city officials for some time anyway, and the gripe caused them to take another look at it.

According to City Manager Clark Maxwell, the development was planned back in 1951 when the site was zoned for duplex units such as are going up now.

A year ago, before construction began, city council adopted a new zoning code for the town. The new law changed the FPHA site area to an R1A classification, allowing only single family dwellings.

Since the project wasn't started, Maxwell said, "we probably forgot about it when we wrote the new zone code."

Barney Nagler, columnist for the 50-cents-a-copy Morning Telegraph, essayist for the slicks and TV writer-producer, has been resting up from those collective chores at the Seville Hotel. Wonder if Barney remembers a New York colleague of the 30's — Sydney Boehm, now a writer-producer for 20th Century-Fox? The once rotund-as-John Morton scrivener is almost as slim as Gary Cooper from the grind of the movie mills! His next production is "Snow Birch," which has been retitled "Woman Obsessed" for the screen. Guess the snow drifted.

Widow Gave Him $102,000

SANTA MONICA, Calif. — (UP) — Actor John Carroll testified Wednesday that a wealthy widow gave him $102,000 to further his career, and with no strings attached.

Carroll

The 54-year-old actor testified in Superior Court in defending himself against a suit for recovery of $228,800 brought by the 63-year-old widow, Mrs. Maude M. Marron.

Carroll said Mrs. Marron gave him $55,000 on May 1, 1953. He quoted her as saying: "This money is for you to do with as you see fit if it will further your career."

The actor said he received $7,000 from the widow after he had been instrumental in recovering a portion of $25,000 which he said she had given to another man.

He said once Mrs. Marron saw a picture of an expensive automobile and told him: "I'm going to get you one." He said she gave him $10,700 to buy the car.

The actor said no one else was present at the time when he received gifts from Mrs. Marron.

Gym for Jayne?

HOLLYWOOD, Calif. — (UPI) — Jayne Mansfield's husband, strongman Mickey Hargitay may go into the gymnasium business.

Star's Hat, Wig Ablaze

HOLLYWOOD, Calif. — (UPI) — Sophia Loren's plumed hat caught fire on a movie set here but the beautiful Italian star escaped injury when the blaze was quickly extinguished.

Miss Loren returned to work after the incident, in which both her hat and her blonde wig caught fire. She accidentally backed into a gas jet on the set.

Lack of Pigeons Big Attraction For Naples Area

By DORIS REYNOLDS
Herald Correspondent

NAPLES—What do you like best about Naples? This week it's the sun, the Gulf, golf, and the other things we all love. But this question was put to me recently and I decided the thing I liked best was the lack of pigeons.

MRS. REYNOLDS

Attention, Columnist Larry Thompson: You've found someone eager and ready to fight these nasty birds! We invite you to come to Naples: for there are no pigeons in our environs. And, please, please, nobody send us any.

After deciding our pigeonless existence is next to Shangra-la . . . I got to thinking . . . why haven't pigeons been brought here? Not that I want to import any. I'm all in favor of sea gulls, beach birds, egrets, and even parakeets. But let's keep Naples free of pigeons!

Herb Dinner Is Again Popular

MRS. FORREST DONELSON entertained the Garden Club at luncheon on Thursday. Last year the club held its first herb luncheon, featuring delicately flavoured foods prepared by the members. It was such a big success . . . it was decided to repeat it this year.

Each member brought a covered dish (all exotic and delicious) and copies of the recipe. Such delicacies as chicken cacciatore, veal parmigiano and herb rice made the members forget about calories.

And while we're on the subject of good food; we mustn't forget the party hosted by Betty and Nick Wallingford Saturday. The Wallingfords home is charmingly done with many heirlooms that have led distinguished careers. For instance the glorious painting by Caputo, done in Morocco.

Nick's aunt was married to Gen. Adlebert de Chambrun and while he was governor general of Morocco, Nan Longworth Wallingford (Nick's mother) visited them. When the general and his lady entertained at a large ball Caputo was commissioned to do a painting of the event.

The painting, now hanging in the Wallingford's living room, is the result. In addition, they have some fine 16th century paintings as part of their collection.

Wining and dining as guests of the Wallingfords on Saturday were Mary and Benny Morris, Tommy Becher, Countess Edna de Frise, Kevin O'Shea, Maggie Ford, and her attractive brother, Albert Towers. Mr. Towers is spending the season in Naples, bringing with him his boat, which he's christened Aunt Hattie (after his favorite aunt.)

Molly Ordway was beaming happily for her son, Peter, and his darling Irish Colleen white are here for three weeks. Peter met his Pat in London, where she was associated with British Broadcasting Co. They'll go from Naples to London, where Peter will complete a thesis. Then on to California for further study.

While we are on the discussion of boats, Molly Ordway (Mrs. Donald) commented that she'd had several boats since she began coming to Naples some years ago. All have been christened "Pumpkin Seed" . . . if you can imagine a boat shaped like a pumpkin seed.

Joining in the chatter was Lib Moyer, who is also a long time sun seeker in these parts. She once owned the enchanting house at the end of 21st ave., but is now living in Fort Myers Beach with her artist son.

Fashion Shows Fill Calendars

NOW THAT SPRING is once again in our midst it's time for the distaff side of the family to think about clothes. The ladies here will get a glimpse of the latest Jane Derby creations at a dinner dance and fashion show at the Beach Club Feb. 6. Jane Derby's representative will be commentator for the show and, although there will be several professional models, many of the costumes will be modeled by local girls.

Then on Friday the 13th (don't be superstitious) . . . lucky ladies in Naples will see the Naples Woman's Club annual fashion showing of resort and spring fashions. This showing is always a highlight of the season and this year Alice (Mrs. E. W.) Timberlake is serving as chairman. Lynn Bailey will do the commentary, and background music will be provided by Mrs. Gordon McCutheon.

And while you're busy marking your calendar . . . put a big circle around Feb. 10. That's Shrove Tuesday and the day of the Bazaar held annually by the Women's Auxiliary of Trinity by the Cove. As usual the beautifully crafted gifts and goodies made by the members will be sold.

They'll be artistically designed aprons, stuffed animals and lots of other handiwork on sale. That evening Mary Van Daalen will preside as chef at the traditional Shrove Tuesday dinner; pancakes, sausage and coffee.

Chit Chat From Naples Byways

CHIT CHAT: Well known West Coast Disc Jockey Glen Dill was in Naples this week on a top secret mission. Casual remarks about oil, movies, and good weather led me to believe that he's doing some commentary for a film being made about oil. But don't quote me; I'm just supposin'.

Mr. and Mrs. Dick Phinny of Fremont, Mich., have been in Naples for some time, but have returned to frozen lands for the time being. But they were in Naples long enough to purchase one of the beautiful Reef Club apartments. They'll be back in March. Mrs. Phinny is one of the Gerber babies. Her mother and dad started the well known baby food company and Mrs. Phinny had the role of guinea pig in the early baby food days. Everything was hunky dory evidently, since Mrs. Phinny is a real charming and attractive gal.

Bruce Mitchell, resident artist for Bucknell University, was in Naples this week. He was guest of E. George Rogers and spoke at the Naples Art Association meeting on Tuesday. Mr. Mitchell is a fine painter and a jazz enthusiast. He's combined the two with startling effect. His paintings are canvas interpretations of jazz.

He's done all sorts of creative works and his demonstration Tuesday depicted his feeling about flamenco music. Ireland Renee, now living in St. Petersburg, formerly studied with Mr. Mitchell. He came to Naples to play his guitar for the exhibition, and also spoke on painting. It was one of the most unusual and fascinating lectures ever presented here.

Collins Asks Mixing In Graduate Schools

Economy Moves Urged

By JOHN BOYLES
Capitol Bureau Chief

TALLAHASSEE — Gov. LeRoy Collins moved Thursday toward full integration of the graduate schools at Florida State and the University of Florida.

He told the State Budget Commission that the graduate program at Florida A&M University for Negroes here is proving too costly.

Collins also told a press conference that he will oppose any constitutional change which would alter the guarantee of a uniform system of free public schools.

Collins asked State Budget Director Harry G. Smith to prepare some figures on the cost of the A&M graduate program.

Attorney General Richard Ervin has said he will recommend the Legislature adopt a parent option-tuition plan for private schools to bolster Florida's fight against racial mixing in the schools.

Nearly every other southern state has integrated its graduate schools without trouble, Collins told the Budget Commission.

He said the graduate program at Florida A&M ought to be reappraised in the light of economy as well as racial considerations.

In 1958 a federal district court order opened the graduate schools at the University of Florida to Negroes. Only one Negro has been admitted. He is in the school of law.

Collins said that during the past seven years the state has spent about $60,000 on every student graduate from the Negro law school at A&M. It has been operating seven years and has graduated six lawyers at a total cost of $370,000 and now has an enrollment of 18.

Under the state's "separate but equal" facilities doctrine, graduate schools in law, agriculture, pharmacy and education have been established at A&M.

"I think we are going to have to reappraise the A&M graduate program in the light of the state's financial position as well as in the light of this racial situation," the governor declared.

He said, "The people in Virginia tell me that the matter of educating Negroes in graduate schools poses no problem, and they are having the same experience in North Carolina, Tennessee, Oklahoma, Arkansas and Louisiana."

Collins said he had not had an opportunity to study Attorney General Ervin's proposal for a parent-option-tuition plan.

It would require a constitutional change to continue providing for free public schools but would knock out the requirement for a uniform system.

"I will reiterate, however," the governor said, "that I am opposed to any program that is going to destroy our public schools as we have enjoyed and benefited from them in the past."

He asserted that a free public school system has been "the bedrock for the building of Florida and it must continue as the bedrock for future progress."

Polk Jury Finds King Guilty

BARTOW — (UPI) — A six man jury Thursday found former Sen. Harry King guilty of conspiracy to commit perjury but acquitted him on the more serious charge of subornation of perjury.

The case went to the six-man jury at 3:15 p.m.

King sat expressionless and pale as he listened to four hours of final arguments. He heard the state picture him as the "brains" behind a perjury scheme.

He listened as the defense claimed the state had failed in eight days of testimony to prove his guilt and described him as "a man who has suffered enough."

The jury went to supper at 6:30 p.m. and then resumed deliberations. After four hours and 15 minutes behind closed doors, the foreman told Judge Roy H. Amidon the jury could not agree on a decision.

Amidon, pointed out the "considerable time and expense" required by the trial, sent them back to try again.

Both sides presented final arguments before a six-man criminal court jury in King's second trial for allegedly setting up a perjury scheme in connection with a $10,000 Polk County political payoff three years ago.

King and his co-defendant, former sheriff Pat Gordon, allegedly procured deputy sheriffs Rollie Arnold and James Busbee to lie before the grand jury investigating the charge that King gave $10,000 to former state Rep. Boone Tillett Jr., Lake Wales attorney, not to oppose King for re-election.

Chief defense counsel Chester Bedell, Jacksonville, told the jury that "when Mr. King transferred the $10,000 to Mr. Tillett it was entirely political in nature. But Mr. King is not being tried here for violation of election laws."

He pointed out that King is charged only with conspiring to commit perjury and procuring the two deputies to lie for him. But he said there was no evidence to show that the 56-year-old King, now a Winter Haven attorney, talked with either of the deputies before they agreed to the perjury plan Feb. 28, 1956, 24 days after the payoff in a lemon grove near Babson Park.

"If anyone induced Busbee . . . it was not Mr. King," said Bedell.

$6,298,000 Slashed From School Funds

TALLAHASSEE — (UPI) — The cabinet, over protests of school superintendent Thomas D. Bailey, Thursday slashed $6,298,000 off funds requested to run the public schools and buy textbooks.

Bailey warned the reductions might leave the schools short.

But the cabinet accepted Budget Director Harry Smith's prediction the counties will make up the $3,798,000 slashed from the state's share of minimum foundation program for schools.

Smith said the governor's drive for "full cash value" real estate assessments will result in a 20 per cent increase in revenue from school millage.

Bailey had figured on an increase in county contributions of only 10 per cent.

Although less than Bailey recommended, the $277,760,808 appropriation approved for school operations is nearly $35,000,000 more than the schools are spending now.

Bailey said increased enrollment necessitates the additional money.

This permits the state to cut its contribution by $3,787,000 and increase the countys' share correspondingly, he said.

The other $2,500,000 was cut from the free textbook appropriation after Sen. Wilson Carraway of Tallahassee said the legislature might require high school students to buy their own books.

He said there is virtually no chance the legislature would go along with the $8,500,000 figure recommended by Bailey.

The school superintendent was visibly irritated by the textbook cut.

He said he is sick and tired of having to fight for this appriation every two years and thinks the legislature should decide if it wants to furnish the books or make the children buy their own.

State Not Art-Conscious, Governor Collins Asserts

TALLAHASSEE — (UPI) — Gov. LeRoy Collins today deplored the fact that Floridians are not more art-conscious.

Collins said Florida's capitol building — devoid of art — is a disgrace.

Other state capitols, he said, put Florida in the shade in this respect. "This is one place Florida ranks at the bottom."

He said Virginia and South Carolina have real art treasures in their capitols and executive mansions.

Secretary of State R. A. Gray recalled that the has given up after trying four years to get the legislature to furnish money to put a few murals in the capitol.

"I do not know the reason or what we can do to change the feeling," Collins said, "but here appears to be no appreciation for art in Florida."

Funeral Set

MELBOURNE — Funeral services for Robert Patterson Berry, 45, of Micco, will be held at 2 p.m. today in Brownlie Funeral Home here. Burial will be at Melbourne. Mr. Berry, who died Wednesday at home, came to this area in 1954 from St. Louis. Survivors include his mother, Mrs. I. F. Berry, Micco, one brother and one sister.

Seminoles' Attorneys At Odds

TALLAHASSEE — (UPI) — A battle of attorneys over representation of Florida's warring tribes of Seminole Indians landed in Circuit court here Thursday.

The Tallahassee law firm headed by former Gov. Millard F. Caldwell asked the court to rule on its eligibility to represent the so-called reservation Indians in their $50,000,000 damage claim against the Federal government.

The Caldwell firm has been approved by the U.S. commissioner of Indian affairs, Glenn Emmons, but has been challenged by Morton Silver, Miami attorney for the Miccosukee tribe of Seminoles who live along the Tamiami Trail and look down on their brothers on the reservation.

Silver claims attorneys cannot prosecute the money claim for the reservation tribe until the Miccosukee tribe succeeds in its quest to get the state to deed it 200,000 acres of Everglades land.

Caldwell, joined by his five partners, said his firm does not want to get involved further without court approval.

Sleepless Marathon Is Ended

JACKSONVILLE — (UPI) — Heavy-eyed and exhausted after staying awake 225 continuous hours, disc jockey Dave Hunter ended his "wake-a-thon" Thursday and went home to see his wife, 20-month-old son and a "dish of cookies and a glass of milk" — and sleep.

Bidding ado to his makeshift studio in a downtown auto sales building at 6:09 p.m., Hunter was ushered to a waiting ambulance and whisked to his home at nearby Jacksonville Beach.

He had been spinning records, conducting interviews and sundry other duties since 9 a.m. Jan. 20, apparently setting a record for sleeplessness.

Broadcaster Peter Tripp of New York city, who began a similar marathon the same day, quit after 200 hours without sleep Wednesday at 7:14 p.m.

"I'm glad to get this thing over with," Hunter said in a fatigue-husky voice. "It has really been a horrible experience. It was just a nine-day period of wanting desperately to get some sleep."

August Schlueter's Funeral Rites Set

EAU GALLIE — The funeral for August (Gus) Schlueter, noted marine engineering consultant, will be held in Rockville Centre, Long Island.

Mr. Schlueter, 70, who died Tuesday in Brevard Hospital, came to Brevard County in 1916. He was at one time president of Schlueter-Hoeveler Associates, Inc., of New York City, and is credited with developing special equipment for the marine industry.

Survivors include the wife, Mrs. Margaret B. Schlueter, Eau Gallie, one daughter, three grandchildren, and a brother.

Ernest Slater Dies at 64

VERO BEACH—Ernest Slater, 64, of 220 SW 6th Ct., a retired coal miner who moved to Vero Beach a year ago from Peoria, Ill., died here Thursday morning.

Survivors include his wife, Ruby, a sister and three brothers. Services and burial will be in Peoria with Floyd Funeral Home in charge of local arrangements.

Mrs. Behringer's Funeral Is Today

STUART — Requiem mass for Mrs. Elizabeth V. Behringer, 71, who died Wednesday at Martin Memorial Hospital will be said today at 9 a.m. at St. Joseph Catholic Church.

Mrs. Behringer and her husband Charles, a retired executive of the New York Telephone Company have been winter residents at the Riverview Apartments for the past 13 years.

Other survivors include two sons, Charles and William both of New York and two grandchildren. Johns Funeral Home is in charge. Burial will be in Pine Lawn, New York.

Printing Deals Eyed

Investigation Is Scheduled

By JOHN L. BOYLES
Capitol Bureau Chief

TALLAHASSEE — A legislative investigation will attempt to find out if some state agencies and printers are giving only token recognition to a law requiring that at least three bids be invited for printing jobs.

One purchasing official for a large state agency, who declined to be quoted by name, said he was approached by an agent for an unidentified company about doing the agency's printing.

He said he told the salesman he would call for bids on some envelopes and was admonished, "Don'y worry about that. I'll bring three bids with me when I bring the envelopes.

State Rep. John E. Mathews Jr. of Jacksonville said he will look into the complaint of one printer who reported, "We had an awfully hard time getting on some of the invitation-to-bid lists. People just give us the fishy eye and that is the last we hear."

Mathews has asked state agencies to supply him with full information on all printing costs, and how bids are received. He believes state printing should be handled like other services — under the state's central purchasing system.

A big variance in printing costs is pointed up in contrasting the purchase of letter heads by the Railroad and Public Utilities Commission and the State Beverage Department.

The Railroad Commission paid $16 a thousand for letter heads in a 20,000 order. The three bids were: Rose Printing Co., Tallahassee, low at $16; Record-Press of St. Augustine, second low at $16.85, and Buckley-Newman of Tallahassee, third at $17.50

Beverage Department bids were opened to wide competitive bidding. The Suwannee Democrat of Live Oak submitted the low bid of $8.15 a thousand for an order of 25,000.

Charles Rosenberg, president of Rose and whose other interests comprise the state's largest printing organization, was one of the chief foes of Mathews' attempt to put printing under central purchasing two years ago.

The Railroad Commission letterhead job was sought by both Rose Printing Co. and Record Press, Inc. of St. Augustine.

Rosenberg is not shown among officers of the Record-Press but Charles Ausley, his lawyer and who is listed in the Secretary of State's office as vice president of Rose, is shown as chairman of the board of the St. Augustine firm.

State-Long Pike Dead --Collins

Herald Bureau

TALLAHASSEE — Gov. LeRoy Collins said Thursday that proposed federal interstate system of limited access highways has killed plans for extension of Florida's turnpike north of Orlando.

Collins said the proposal to extend the existing toll road from Fort Pierce to Orlando would "not conflict but will complement the interstate system. I think any extension beyond that point should now be regarded as hopeless."

He said he felt the two-year-old turnpike had proven a great asset to the state but any extension north of Orlando to the Georgia line probably would not be feasible if it had to compete with a free limited access interstate system.

Only the portion between Miami and Fort Pierce has been built and some investment sources have cast doubt even on feasibility of running it to Orlando.

But Collins said there will be no interstate route to compete with a tollway from Fort Pierce to Orlando and he sees no reason why it should not be built someday.

Boy Pinned Hours Under 2-Ton Pipe

LOS ANGELES — (AP) — A 12-year-old boy who chose a sandy construction site for a playground was rescued Thursday after seven hours of being pinned by a two-ton concrete storm drain pipe.

Authorities say Perry A. Luth III apparently was digging a tunnel under the pipe Wednesday when it slipped down on his back, crushing him flat.

At dinner time his parents missed him and a search began. About four and a half hours after the pipe slipped, Perry's father spotted his son's bicycle by the work project near their Westchester home, then found the boy.

"I'm cold. I can't move my feet," were the boy's first words.

Then, in concerned tones, he asked:

"Did I make you miss the movie?"

"That's all right, son," the elder Luth replied. "We'll have you out right away."

Police extricated him by slipping a huge beam into the pipe, and jacking up its extended end.

Perry was taken to a hospital suffering from shock and possible internal injuries.

Big Titan Missile Given Static Test

More State News, 10C

CAPE CANAVERAL — (AP) — Fire and smoke shot from the base of the mighty Titan intercontinental range ballistic missile Thursday during a pre-launch ground engine test.

If the static was successful after a series of recent failures, it meant that another Titan launch attempt could be expected next week.

An apparently satisfactory Vanguard satellite rocket engine test Wednesday paved the way for another firing of that temperamental missile soon.

The Titan, the nation's newest and potentially most powerful ICBM, made its debut Dec. 20, but the attempted shoot failed when the missile fizzled out on the pad.

Since that time three more static tests have been conducted on different Titan missiles with no apparent success.

The two-stage Titan, the first of the so-called "second generation missiles," is expected to be more advanced than than the present Atlas ICCBM.

It was the first appearance of the Vanguard in action at the Cape since Sept. 26 when the 72-foot rocket failed to blast a small satellite into orbit on its seventh try.

The lone Vanguard victory came last March 17 when a 3¼-pound moon was plopped into an orbit that may last two centuries.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration already has announced that the Vanguard program will be phased out after four more launchings.

Diver Freed From Sewer By Buddies

CHICAGO — (UPI) — A diver, his foot caught in a sewer gate 50 feet underwater, was trapped for more than five hours 160 feet under Chicago's streets Thursday.

His ordeal ended when his foot was freed and he was brought by slow stages to the surface. Two fellow divers rescued him by jacking open the gate.

The diver, Frank Hefling, 55, had to pause in a decompression chamber before he could come completely to the surface. He was then rushed to South Chicago Hospital.

Hefling had descended into the vertical sewer shaft on a mission to close the 12-square-inch gate leading to a water tunnel under construction on Chicago's far South Side.

His foot became caught in the gate and he was pinned against it by tons of water pressure sweeping past him.

Cuba Orders Peso Curbs

HAVANA, Cuba — (AP) — Cuba's new government Thursday put a $50 limit on the amount of Cuban pesos that individuals can bring into or take out of the country.

Any pesos held by travelers over that limit will be taken away from them by customs officials under the order.

The move was announced by Treasury Minister Rufo Lopez Fresquet. Aides said it was aimed at stopping black market sales of pesos abroad by members of the fallen Batista regime who fled with large sums of money.

Report Heard in Caracas

Slaying by Trujillo Of His V-P Is Denied

CIUDAD TRUJILLO, Dominican Republic — (AP) — Reports that Vice President Joaquin Balaguer had been slain were denied Thursday in government circles. Balaguer was reported working in his offices as usual Thursday afternoon.

Earlier, Dominican exiles in Caracas, Venezuela, said they had been advised Gen. Rafael Leonidas Trujillo, strongman of the Dominican Republic, had shot and killed Vice President Balaguer. Their story was splashed under banner headlines in the Caracas evening newspapers El Mundo and Pregon.

Nicolas Silfa and Angel Miolan, directors of the Dominican Revolutionary Party in exile, said in Caracas a clandestine radio reported the incident occurred last Tuesday in Ciudad Trujillo.

The exiles said the broadcast reported that Trujillo fired five shots at the vice president during an argument. The report added that Trujillo had accused Balaguer of not dealing harshly enough with an "insurrection."

Silfa and Miolan charged that the Dominican army has been disarmed and ordered to barracks. They charged that a "wave of repression" in the Dominican Republic was so great that hospitals had been converted into jails. It said the San Juan Hospital in Ciudad Trujillo was one.

Hoffa Set To Move On PAA

Claims Majority Of Stock Clerks

By DOM BONAFEDE
Herald Staff Writer

Jimmy Hoffa's Teamsters Union was poised Thursday to make its first assault on the airline industry by trying to bring Pan American World Airways stock clerks under its wing.

The Herald learned that the 800 clerks throughout the PAA system will vote next week on whether they want to be represented by the Teamsters or the International Association of Machinists.

Warren Lane, National Mediation Board official, confirmed the report and added that Hoffa already has signed up more than 51 per cent of the clerks.

Some 300 clerks based in Miami will cast their ballots next Tuesday and Wednesday, Lane said.

Other elections will be held in Cape Canaveral, New York City and on the Pacific Coast.

If Hoffa gets a foothold in the airline industry it will give him virtual control over the nation's transportation industry.

It was also learned that Hoffa was making eyes at the stewards and stewardesses of Mohawk Airlines, a small carrier operating in New York State.

Hoffa earlier disclosed he was making a stab at moving in on the airline industry when he gave a $200,000 loan to the Flight Engineers International Association during its 38-day strike.

He also ordered a study by subordinates to determine which airline and airport workers he could organize to be in a position to close down operations in case of a strike.

The stubby boss of the scandal-scarred union further threatened to stop gasoline deliveries to any airline which provoked his displeasure in labor-management battles.

Hoffa's wooing of PAA's clerks apparently is the opening shot of a concerted drive by the Teamsters to infiltrate the airline industry.

The clerks formerly were members of the machinists union but later switched to the Transport Workers Union. The changeover was nullified, however, by the AFL-CIO, leaving the way open for the Teamsters to step in.

Meanwhile, PAA faces a strike threat from its ground service employes following the collapse of negotiation talks.

Nikita's Arteries Hardening? New York Doctors Think So

NEW YORK — (UPI) — The New York World Telegram and Sun said Thursday that in the opinion of several prominent New York doctors "there is a distinct possibility" that Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev may be suffering from hardening of the arteries of the brain.

These doctors compared photographs of the Russian leader, taken early last year with those taken recently.

"The arteries in his temple look more prominent in the latest photo," the newspaper quoted one doctor as saying. "They look prominent and tortuous. It looks like a distinct possibility of cerebral hardening of the arteries."

The newspaper said that another doctor said that "in cases like this there is always the hazard of cerebral vascular accidents, or, in other words, the danger of a stroke."

The World Telegram and Sun quoted another physician as saying that "it's perhaps speculative to base judgment on photos, but the latest photo seems to show his face typically haggard and lined."

"Such an arterial ailment is quite common in overweight people more than 50 years of age," one of the doctors pointed out, the newspaper said.

Khrushchev will be 65 on April 17, the newspaper pointed out, and he was quoted by Sen. Hubert Humphrey, who met him recently, as saying that he had kidney trouble.

The New York doctors, according to The World Telegram and Sun, said that the photos also showed that the Soviet premier had lost weight since last July. They speculated that his doctors had advised this since, though not a cure, it is a help in fighting the inroads of cardiovascular disease.

Struck by Two Bullets

Hialeah Security Chief Is Shot Down by Tipster

By JAMES BUCHANAN
Herald Staff Writer

As hundreds of Hialeah Race Track fans looked on in horror, an arthritic 75-year-old tout Thursday fired two bullets into John Madala, track security chief and ex-FBI agent who helped gun down John Dillinger.

Shortly before the bugle called the first race, the elderly tipster, identified as Maxim Gay, shuffled toward Madala, who was talking with his brother behind the grandstand, and muttered in a stuttering voice:

"You've taken away my living."

He then took out a revolver and fired two shots, sending Madala sprawling to the ground.

Stepping closer, he fired three more shots and dropped the weapon just as track guards grabbed him.

Bill Horan, a track employe who witnessed the shooting, said:

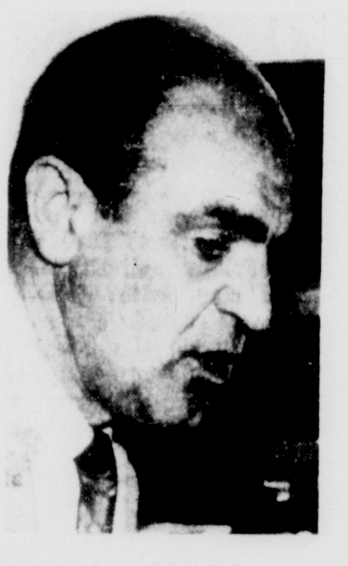
"I turned around when I heard the first shot but I didn't get excited. I thought it was a movie act involving Madala.

"Then I saw someone shoot at him when he was down. Lucky somebody else didn't get shot, too."

Madala was rushed to Doctors' Hospital where surgeons took one slug out of his right side and one out of his abdomen. His condition was serious. Three of the shots missed.

Police identified the gunman as Gay, an oldtime professional tout who is well known around the country's race tracks as a tip-sheet salesman.

They said that Gay, of 126 SW Seventh Ave., told them he tried to kill Madala because the security chief ordered him ejected from the track Wednesday.



John Madala

State Attorney Richard Gerstein said Gay will be charged with assault with intent to commit first degree murder.

Gay, a gray-haired man who walks haltingly with a stoop, was taken to the Hialeah police station for questioning and later booked at the county jail.

Officers described him as "calm, cooperative and unremorseful."

Under questioning, he told investigators he bought the revolver — a .38 caliber Smith and Wesson — Wednesday from a Hialeah gun dealer with the avowed purpose of avenging his dismissal from the track.

Health Spot Calls Mamie

WASHINGTON — (UPI) — Mrs. Mamie Eisenhower plans to return to Beauty Queen Elizabeth Arden's Maine Chance health resort in Phoenix, Ariz., next month.

A White House spokesman said Thursday the First Lady plans to go to the plush resort by train with her sister, Mrs. G. Gordon Moore.

It was not announced how long Mrs. Eisenhower plans to stay or just when she will go to the exclusive beauty-health resort that charges $600 a week and up.

Mrs. Eisenhower's last trip to "Maine Chance" created a stir in some quarters because President Eisenhower took her there in the Presidential plane Columbine III from Thomasville, Ga. last February.

McElroy: Reds Will Take Lead

Senate Probers Hear Defense Officials

WASHINGTON — (UPI) — The Air Force's ballistic missile chief told Senate investigators Thursday the U.S. should be building more intercontinental missiles to meet the "very great danger" posed by Russian strength.

Maj. Gen. Bernard A. Schriever made the statement after Defense Secretary Neil H. McElroy acknowledged that Russia would have more intercontinental ballistic missiles than the U.S. in a year or two. But McElroy said this country was not trying to match Russia missile for missile.

Testifying before the combined Senate space-preparedness subcommittee, McElroy said this country was relying on a variety of weapons to deter war. They include not only ICBM's — a squadron will be ready to fire in July — but also manned bombers and missile firing submarines.

Following McElroy to the stand, Schriever said the U.S. had the capacity to increase its ICBM power considerably. He said Soviet missile strength endangered not only the nation's security but its actual survival.

"In view of the very great danger," he said, "we should be building larger ICBM forces. We have the capacity to build more."

Schriever, commander of the Air Force Ballistic Missile Division, urged that the question of a speed-up "be given serious consideration over the next several months."

McElroy denied there was any current gap in ICBM's. He said neither Russia nor the U.S had an "operational" missilee now and this country would have one on the firing line first. But he said Russia would catch up later and forge ahead because the U.S. had other plans.

McElroy said this country's first ICBM squadron would be on the firing line at Vandenberg Air Force Base, near Los Angeles, by July. It will have 10 launchers for hurling Atlas missiles with hydrogen warheads to targets 5,500 miles away. That would include Moscow.

The Senate committee, headed by Senate Democratic leader Lyndon B. Johnson, called McElroy, Gen. Nathan F. Twining, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, and the chiefs of the individual services for an "honest count" on this nation's missile-space strength.

Thor Being Stockpiled

U.S. Mass-Producing 1,500-Mile Missile

SANTA MONICA, Calif.—(AP)— America is mass-producing one of its most reliable missiles in a form so simple that crews can fire them in volleys on 15-minutes notice—even from mobile bases.

The missile is the 1,500-mile Thor, a combat-ready weapon that also is a workhorse in space research.

It can carry a nuclear warhead known as the "county-buster" and it is stockpiled at bases in this country and abroad.

But because of its limited range, the future of the Thor is uncertain.

This picture emerged Thursday after the first press tour of Thor production and testing facilities here and in Sacramento, Calif. Donald W. Douglas, president of Douglas Aircraft Co., led the tour.

Newsmen saw parts of more than a dozen Thors on an assembly line at the Douglas Aircraft plant here and 17 finished missiles in a storage area.

At Sacramento they saw a demonstration that a hangared Thor can be made ready to launch 15 minutes after the order to fire.

A Thor squadron has 15 missiles, all ready to be fired at once, at the same target or at 15 different targets.

In the field, each missile requires only four men to fuel and fire it.

Fifteen successes and 12 partial successes out of 31 firings attest the Thor's reliability.

'Massive Assistance' Bill Opens Civil Rights Battle

15 Liberals Combine In Senate

WASHINGTON — (UPI) — Fifteen liberal senators opened the 1959 congressional civil rights battle Thursday by introducing a bill that would throw the full weight of the government behind the Supreme Court's school integration order.

The bipartisan group, headed by Sen. Paul H. Douglas (D., Ill.), said the legislation would give local communities wishing to integrate the government's "massive assistance" to counter the "massive resistance" thrown up by Southern states.

Douglas and others said the bill was not aimed at punishing the South and did not demand immediate compliance. However, it is far more sweeping than either the "moderate" proposal by Senate Democratic Leader Lyndon B. Johnson or the administration's forthcoming bill.

Douglas, acknowledging the rocky path ahead of the bill, said he expected Southerners to raise a filibuster threat against it. In a caustic reference to Johnson's middle-of-the-road measure, he added:

"Then some ostrich-like proposal, burying its head in the sand so that it cannot see the school problem, offending — and helping—almost no one, will probably be served up as a 'reasonable compromise' . . . I hope the Senate will not be misled by these maneuvers."

The liberal version was sponsored by 11 Democrats and four Republicans.

One of them, Sen. Jacob K. Javits (R., N.Y.), said "this opens the civil rights battle in Congress for this session."

The bill would authorize the Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare to offer legal, financial and technical aid in school integration cases. The technical help could amount to as much as $2,500,000 a year for five years.

The secretary also could make grants for school buildings, teachers and community aid where states threaten to close schools to prevent integration. This aid would total 40 million dollars annually for five years.

Javits virtually conceded that the liberal bill had no chance of winning approval from the Senate Judiciary Committee, headed by Sen. James O. Eastland (D., Miss).

Besides Douglas and Javits, other sponsors were Sens. Hubert H. Humphrey (D., Minn.), Thomas C. Hennings Jr. (D., Mo.), Clifford P. Case (R., N.J.), Wayne Morse (D., Ore.), Joseph S. Clark (D., Pa.), Richard L. Neuberger (D., Ore.), Pat McNamara (D., Mich.), William Proxmire (D., Wis.), J. Glenn Beall (R., Md.), Philip A. Hart (D., Mich.), Eugene J. Norfolk Will 'Mix' 6 Schools

NORFOLK, Va. —(AP)— The Norfolk School Board announced Thursday that the city's six closed schools will open Monday on an integrated basis.

Three high and three junior high schools have been closed since September to avoid integration. However, the state laws under which their doors were locked have been nullified by state and federal court decisions.

The reopening will bring the first Negro children in Virginia history—17 in all—into white public school classrooms.

The school board's announcement came immediately after the City Council assured it of operating funds. An earlier council resolution to cut off school monies, fell before Federal Court orders.

The schools affected are Maury, Granby, and Norview High School and Norview, Blair and Northside Junior Highs. A total of 10,000 white children are affected. However, only about 75 per cent of that number are expected to return to school Monday since many are attending school elsewhere or have dropped it altogether.

Meanwhile a Federal Circuit Court judge in Baltimore postponed mandatory integration at two Charlottesville, Va., public schools. A spokesman for the school board said the schools probably would open next week on a segregated basis.

Affected are 1,700 students at Venable Elementary and Lane High Schools. Their schools were closed by the state after a Federal Court judge ordered the admission of 12 Negro students last September.

The decision by Chief Judge Simon E. Sobeloff of the Fourth U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals was disclosed by John S. Battle Jr. counsel for the Charlottesville School Board.

Madala, 58, a native of Chicago, was an outstanding agent with the FBI for 15 years before quitting to take over the newly formed Thoroughbred Protective Bureau here in 1946.

He played a big part in the hunt and eventual slaying of Dillinger, notorious gunman of the 1930s, outside a Chicago theater.

In 1940 he was assigned to the Miami office to investigate the white slavery rackets. His probe led to exposure of the traffic centering at the La Paloma Club.

After the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor, he was made administrative assistant here and played a leading role in rounding up enemy aliens.

'Apple-a-Day' Proponent, Dr. Engene Lucas, 62, Dies

EAST LANSING, Mich.—(AP) — Dr. Eugene Lucas, known for his scientific testing of the adage that an apple a day keeps the doctor away, is dead of a heart attack. He was 62.

An apple-loving horticulturist at Michigan State University, Lucas was running a four-year experiment on the health effects of apple-eating. In the tests, which will be continued, 500 students eating apples daily were checked for health against non-apple-eating students.

The University Hospital is keeping score on which groups have more of such common illnesses as colds, throat infections, skin disorders and stomach upsets.

He had said: "Although science has ridiculed folk tales for years, we have found much scientific foundation for lore that pertains to plants and diseases."

Lucas was better known in the scientific world for his research on cancer and tumors.

A native of Vienna, he received degrees from the University of Vienna and the University of Leipzig in Germany. He helped develop a wheat strain that still is widely used in Europe.

Duke Ellington, the old maestro whose artistry is known from hither to thither to yon and return, now is doing a 30-minute part in "Jump For Joy" at Copa City. When I saw the show opening night some space-brain director had Duke sweeping the stage and carrying scenery. Duke's now putting his orchestra into the show. He's playing "Mood Indigo," "Sophistocated Lady" and other of his world famous hits. They had Duke billed as the star. Now he really is.

Opening night the directors had three good Negro actors doing a supposedly satirical takeoff of a Noel Coward theme. It was the worst thing I've seen in a theater since two comedians tried "Waiting for Godot." If you can imagine a colored man wearing an English cap, duster and handle-bar mustaches! And the dialogue—but I'll spare you that. Then there was a bedroom scene that insulted the dignity of the human race; and lots more. Now, all that ghastliness is gone and Duke heads a good show, with Barbara McNair the neatest thing in town.

Lou Walters has a really smart show, as usual. Trust the old maestro to give us something well dressed, in good taste and tinged with the sensational. I've not seen Betty Grable but she's selling out Latin Quarter every night. They come away lovin' her. She's something new in night club circles and folks like new faces. See how Red Skelton packs 'em in, with nary a chorus gal in sight.

I've not seen "Newcomers of 1958" at Deauville, but it's fast, smooth and they can't miss with kids like Buster Keaton, Rudy Vallee, Harry Richman, Fifi Dorsay. As for Whiteman; he's Old Man River.

He Went Wrong

The boy was riding a bicycle east on NE First St., which is one-way west. Police nabbed him—and women started calling to say officers "roughed up" the lad, held him by the collar, tossed him and his bike into the paddy wagon and off to jail. Two women went into First Federal and said in effect, "if you don't do something we'll stop dealing with you."

Well, the lad was James Paul Bryan, 17, who lives at 270 NW 63rd Ave. Police said he had been warned about riding the wrong way on that street, and took no heed. So they booked him. Now it's up to Hizzoner.

Castro To Allot Land

He'll Initiate Cuban Reform

HAVANA, Cuba—(UPI)—Fidel Castro will launch the government's agrarian reform program Monday by personally delivering the first parcels of land to peasants in Oriente Province, cradle of the Cuban revolution, it was announced.

The announcement was made by Carlos Franqui, editor of "Revolucion," official organ of Castro's July 26 revolutionary movement.

Franqui said Castro will appear Monday afternoon at Guayabal de Nagua, near the town of Estrada Palma in Oriente, to address a mass meeting of farm workers and make personal delivery of the first land grants.

The scene will be near Castro's former headquarters in the Sierra Maestra mountains, from which he directed the two year triumphant revolution against former Dictator Fulgencio Batista.

Qualified military sources meanwhile confirmed that revolutionary trials of former Batista officials will be resumed today when Lt. Col. Ricardo Luis Grao will go on trial before a court martial at the hall of justice in the Superior War Tribunal building.

Grao is the last of the three most prominent Batista military officers to go on trial. The two others, Maj. Jesus Sosa Blanco and Maj. Pedro Morejon Valdes were tried and sentenced to death. Both have appealed the sentences.

CHICAGO — (AP) — From now on, when elevator repairmen shout directions to their mates at the controls of City Hall cages, the proper command for a lift will be, "Up!" or, "Raise it!" But not, "Higher!"

In a trice, five fire engines arrived, and 30 firemen dashed through the building looking for fire. There wasn't any blaze.

Shift to Miami Denied

Channel 10 Trial Stays in Capital

By DAVID KRASLOW
Of Our Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — Federal Judge Burnita S. Matthews ruled Thursday that the Channel 10 trial of Richard A. Mack and Thurman A. Whiteside can't be moved to Miami.

The trial has been set for Feb. 16, but Mack, former Federal Communications Commission member, and Whiteside, a Miami attorney, are expected to ask for a delay.

Mack and Whiteside had requested that the trial be shifted from here to Miami.

They were indicted by a federal grand jury in Washington last September on charges of conspiring to have Mack sell his vote in the award of the Channel 10 Miami television license.

Mack and Whiteside had claimed that because of the congressional hearings a year ago, and subsequent proceedings in Washington, a prejudicial atmosphere exists in Washington and they cannot obtain a fair trial.

Judge Matthews ruled that a showing of such prejudice "has not been made."

Mack also had asked for a transfer on the grounds that he is destitute and that the expense of a trial in Washington would work a hardship on him. It also was pointed out that virtually all of the potential witnesses reside in Miami.

But Judge Matthews ruled that the Federal Court in Washington had exclusive jurisdiction with respect to one of the three counts in the indictment and that the "interest of justice" would not be served by a partial transfer of the case.

Mack and Whiteside are both charged in the first count alleging conspiracy. Whiteside is charged along in the second count and Mack is accused alone in the third count.

Judge Matthews held that the first two counts are triable either in Washington or Miami.

She also denied motions to dismiss the indictment, to have the government file more detailed charges, and to strike certain portions of the indictment.

A claim that the grand jury's secrecy had been violated by a newspaper article published 11 days prior to the announcement of the indictment was over ruled by the judge.

Channel 6 Now Open For Bidding

After almost two years of legal hassles, Miami's television Channel 6 is open to all applicants who wish to bid to operate it.

The U.S. Court of Appeals Friday sustained the Federal Communications Commission, which assigned Channel 6 to the Miami area April 25, 1957.

Gerico Investment Co., which operates WITV on Channel 17 in Fort Lauderdale, an ultra high frequency station, contested the assignment on the grounds that a fifth VHF channel in Miami modified its license.

Gerico also contended it should have been allowed to operate on Channel 6, instead of being forced to compete for the honor with other applicants.

A similar and earlier appeal by Gerico in connection with Channel 7 in Miami also was denied.

The Channel 6 Very High Frenquency station is of the type picked up on average television sets. Only sets provided with special equipment can get the UHF channels.

Collier Election Shaky

'Last Ditch' Courthouse Drive Starts

By TOM MORGAN
Naples Bureau Chief

NAPLES—"It's a last ditch stand on the county seat petition," according to John Rogers, president of the Naples Jaycees who are handling the paper calling for an election on whether the Collier County courthouse should be shifted from Everglades to Naples.

Rogers said Thursday the Jaycees "just haven't had time to cover all the freeholders" with the county's Feb. 3 petition deadline coming up. About 1,350 names have been signed towards an estimated 1,500-2,000 requirement, which includes one third of freeholders and tax-paying voters.

Rogers pointed out that many names already obtained are illegible and may be impossible to check while others have been found to be unqualified. Some of those signing could be voters but just haven't registered, he added.

Registration for any precinct in Collier County may be carried out at the Branch Courthouse on Broad Ave., it was confirmed by Mrs. Eleanor Mullins, deputy clerk to Mrs. Margaret T. Scott.

Those voting taxpayers who haven't signed petitions may do so at B & W Hardware on Fifth Ave.

The county seat change has been a matter for political discussion almost since the founding of Collier County. The Everglades location is about 37 miles from Naples and Immokalee, the county's two main population centers. Immokalee and Naples, however, are only about 40 miles apart and residents of Immokalee have urged the move to Naples.

Objections to the movement have been slight although the question of cost has been frequently cited. Twenty acres of free land on the Immokalee-Naples highway in East Naples have been offered as a county seat site by B. W. Morris Jr.

Morris' offer counters one by Dudley R. Gallahue to erect a branch courthouse in Naples.

* * *

Gallahue Sets Terms for Site

NAPLES — The proposed branch courthouse site in Naples offered by Dudley R. Gallahue is the half block on the north side of Ninth Ave. between Seventh and Eighth Sts. The site is 400 by 150 feet.

A copy of the lease proposal to be submitted to the county at a special 2 p.m. Monday meeting shows the cost of the branch building to be $65,000 to be recovered through rent and adjusted to actual cost.

Payments would start at $5,000 a year and go up $500 annually to a maximum of $7,000.

The lease is for 10 years renewable for 10 years more at $1 a year, although the agreement provides Gallahue may give all or part of the property in either 10 year period.

The county would pay utility bills and taxes.

Bay Plan Approved For Naples

Herald Service

WASHINGTON — Improvement of Naples Harbor was recommended Thursday by the Army Board of Engineers for rivers and harbors in the wake of complaints earlier this week that shrimp boats are moving their operations to Everglades and Fort Myers rather than risk grounding on rocks in the Naples channel.

The improvement modifies an existing project to provide for a channel from the Gulf of Mexico to Gordon Pass and through Naples Bay to U.S. 41 bridge.

It would also include turning basins in Naples Bay and at the Municipal Yacht Basin.

Federal share of the cost would be $207,000, with local interests to provide $123,800.

The Board said that prospective benefits do not warrant federal expenditures at Venice and Lemon Bay, but did approve plans for a Fort Myers Beach channel from San Carlos Bay into Matanzas Pass and through to the upper shrimp terminals.

If the Chief of Army Engineers approves the projects, Congress will authorize the work and appropriate money to pay for it.

Bird Refuge Safeguards Are Planned

TALLAHASSEE — (AP) — Florida Audubon Society may soon be relieved of fears the state will sell off-shore islands and mangrove swamps, now set up as bird sanctuaries.

Gov. LeRoy Collins told the trustees the Audumon Society, which holds a number of bird sanctuaries under lease from the trustees, have been worried since one of its leased islands was sold.

The trustees made the sale without realizing the property was a bird sanctuary. Director Van Ferguson said the sanctuary was located on a Board of Education tract, and the only record of the lease agreement was a notation in the board's minutes.

Collins suggested that, to avoid future errors of this type, the properties leased by the Audubon Society be deeded to the park board.

"I don't know if the park board wants this additional responsibility, but it is in a better position to decide needs for bird sanctuaries than we are," the governor said.

Natural Gas Pipeline Draws Near Brevard

By BILL BUNGE
Melbourne Bureau Chief

MELBOURNE — Construction on the Brevard County link of the Texas-to-Florida natural gas pipeline is scheduled to start in two to three weeks by Harbert Construction Corp. of Birmingham, it was learned by The Herald Thursday.

The contractor has unloaded 50 miles of 20-inch pipe sections from railroad cars in a Melbourne Airport warehouse area. Truck crews are starting to distribute it in advance of crews who are pushing their way here from the Kissimmee area. Pipe is being laid at the rate of a mile and one-half a day.

Dozens of other railroad carloads of pipe are spotted at Micco, Sebastian, Gifford, Vero Beach and Fort Pierce in preparation for joining the Brevard line with the southern leg running along the Sunshine State Parkway.

Meanwhile, Brevard officials are making plans to ask the Federal Power Commission for an allocation of gas from this main line, coming into the county near Minton's Corner in West Melbourne. It will be here that the seven million dollar countywide system will connect for its supply.

The way was paved for the county to request its gas allocation from the FPC when the city of Cocoa agreed this week to sign a franchise. Other major Brevard municipalities previously signed the agreement.

Main line construction crews now are working their way toward Holopaw from Kissimmee. When they reach Holopaw, about 30 miles west of Melbourne, the local Harbert headquarters will take over the pipe laying.

The Brevard link will come from the center of the state on a route generally following SR 192 (Kissimmee Hwy.), turn south in West Melbourne, and run approximately six to seven miles west of U.S. 1 to a point on the turnpike near Fort Pierce.

This local section, some 60 miles long, is one of the last to be constructed.

By HARRY CAICEDO
Key West Bureau Chief

KEY WEST — The local council of the Navy League got off to an official start Thursday with a charter presented by the national vice president of the League and top-ranking civilian and military brass.

LOPEZ

Rear Admiral Francis D. McCorkle, base commander here and the principal speaker at the inauguration affair, relayed congratulatory messages from the Secretary of the Navy and the Chief of Naval Operations.

Admiral Arleigh Burke wired: "Your new council will add to the growing strength of the Navy League just as a newly commissioned ship adds to the growing strength of our wonderful Navy."

Others at the affair who added their congratulations personally were Adm. Joseph C. Daniels, commandant Sixth Naval District, George H. Roderick, assistant Secretary of the Army, and John L. Conner, national vice president of the League.

The local council, which now numbers 74 members, is headed by Aquilino Lopez Jr. Other officers are Howard E. Wilson and James A. Flenner, vice presidents; Paul Esquinaldo, secretary-treasurer, and J. Lancelot Lester, judge advocate.

In his address, Adm. McCorkle pointed up the Navy's role as an "international tranquilizer," acting as a mighty deterrent force around the world to preserve peace.

Racing to See Missile Shoot

Five Youths Die in Wreck

By DAN BROWN
Cocoa Bureau Chief

COCOA BEACH — One of the seven 18-year-old boys said, "Let's go to Cocoa Beach and see if there's a missile shoot."

So they raced to Cocoa Beach from Orlando early Thursday and five of them died when an elevated pipe which crosses the beach sheared off the top of their car.

The two survivors got such bad head injuries a brain surgeon gave them "only one chance in a 100 of living." They hadn't regained consciousness Thursday afternoon.

T. C. Worley, the contractor who strung the elevated pipeline across the south beach at Cocoa Beach was grief-stricken.

The line was used to "jet in" piles for the Bon Aire Motel bulkhead project, he said, and it had a red lantern on it.

Among the victims was Nickie H. Morgan of Orlando, a boy "who was crazy about missile shoots," according to his father.

Also dead were Kenneth L. D. Gardiner, James E. Weaver, Richard Knobler and John E. Roquemore—all of Orlando.

Patrick Costello and Kenneth Gepper survived.

The accident scene, which is about half mile north of Patrick Air Force Base, is on a section of the beach where driving is not allowed.

On its way to the death crash, the boys' car flashed by several signs which say "No Driving."

There was another touch of irony.

No missiles were fired from Cape Canaveral Wednesday night or Thursday morning.

The accident is the worst in Brevard County's history.

It brings the 1959 county death toll to eight.

The ill-starred seven made their decision to "watch for a missile" at an Orlando drive-in restaurant where they all met shortly after midnight.

It probably came at the urging of Morgan, Roquemore, Weaver or Knobler who came to Cocoa Beach often to see the missiles fly from Cape Canaveral.

Costello, Gepper and Gardiner also spent the evening together. The three, all college students, triple dated with Orlando girls.

They took the girls to see "Son of Sinbad," then stopped for a snack at the restaurant and agreed to meet at the restaurant again after taking the girls home.

All the girls got home at about 11:45 p.m. and the three boys—who were riding in two cars, returned to the drive-in restaurant and met their four death car companions.

Roquemore, son of a prominent Orlando auto parts merchant, and the owner of the 1959 Ford death car, was convicted of causing three 1958 accidents and two 1957 accidents, according to Orlando records.

His record also shows a speeding conviction and one for illegal possession of liquor.

There was no liquor in the death car and no evidence any of the boys had been drinking.

Costelo, a starting basketball forward for Orlando Junior College, was a "good, hard-working athlete and a good, hard-working student," according to Ronald Cox, his basketball coach.

Knobler was a mystery. Papers on his body identified him as a resident of the Orlando YMCA. But YMCA officials said the boy, who lived alone, hadn't been at the Y in more than a month.

Morgan, Weaver and Gepper all were Orlando Junior College students like Costello. All were described as "hard-working boys."

Police Agree To Try Navy Liaison Plan

'Observer' Authorized By Gomez

By HARRY CAICEDO
Key West Bureau Chief

KEY WEST—Chief of Police George Gomez has agreed to go along, "on a trial basis" with a Navy suggestion that a naval officer be posted in the police station here each night.

In a letter to Robert Dopp, chairman of the Key West-Navy Liaison Committee before which the suggestion came up, Gomez indicated he had given the matter "careful study and consideration."

"While I am not convinced of the necessity of this action," Gomez added, "in order to show the good faith of the Key West police department and to better relations with the Navy, I am agreeing with the proposal on a trial basis to take effect at the pleasure of Capt. Loomis."

Capt. Sam Loomis, chief of staff at the naval base here, proposed creation of the "liaison officer" post in the police department Tuesday at an organizational meeting of the new Key West-Navy committee.

Loomis is one of six naval representatives on the 11-man civilian-military group.

The proposed liaison officer will be assigned to the police station from 8 p.m. to 6 a.m. his function, strictly as an observer, will be to witness police handling of cases involving navy personnel.

At the Tuesday meeting Loomis and his fellow officers said the recommendation was prompted by need for an impartial, third viewpoint to dispel reported stories of police mistreatment of military personnel who get into trouble with police.

SRD Awards Monroe and Collier Jobs

TALLAHASSEE — (AP) — The State Road Department opened bids Thursday on 37 highway and bridge projects. The largest would extend the Palmetto bypass in Dade County another 1½ miles around Miami.

The projects also included a number of interstate and other four-lane highway construction jobs.

Monroe County will get fishing walks south of the wing span on Seven Mile Bridge and at both ends of Long Key Bridge, awarded to Florida Keys Builders, Key West, for $87,145; paving of SR A1A (Roosevelt Blvd.) from a point south of U.S. 1 south to the main entrance of the Naval Hospital, Powell Bros., Miami, $221,463; and Fifth St. on Stock Island from 5th Ave. to Cow Key, Topping & Sons, Key West, $83,662.

Contracts awarded in Collier County were for $69,200 to W. T. Price Dredging Co., Miami, for State Road S-837 between SR 29 and a point 2.6 miles east; and paving 10.4 miles of U.S. 41 and a bridge over the canal, to Ewall Engineering Co. of Lakeland, $375,219.

Naples C-C Sets All-Year Drive

NAPLES — A continuing year-round campaign to step up Chamber of Commerce membership instead of the two or three scattered drives was decided upon Thursday.

The decision came from the Chamber's membership committee headed by W. L. Clements. Its goal is 100 new members to bolster the present 450.

The group plans a monthly review of the membership and of suggested new members to help keep the total well up, said Secretary-Manager John Crichton.

Tests Not Disclosed

Ganey Drowning Still a 'Mystery'

Herald Bureau

KEY WEST—The death of Joe Allen Ganey, 25, officially remained a mystery Thursday 12 days after he reputedly "drowned" from an overturned skiff 700 yards offshore here.

But a companion in the capsizing incident, Price Gabriel, 27, was still in jail on an open charge of investigation.

Of what Gabriel is being investigated, the sheriff's office has declined to say. But he was taken to Miami Monday expressly for a lie detector test, presumbably in connection with Ganey's death.

No information on the outcome of the test has been released by the sheriff's office. Neither has it disclosed the results of an autopsy ordered on Ganey's body when it was recovered nearly a week ago.

A sheriff's spokesman said no reports have been received on either examination.

Harrison Shuns Lie Detector

JACKSONVILLE — (AP) — James E. Harrison refused to take a lie detector test Thursday about his three-month disappearance during which he was thought a murder victim.

"I've been pushed around enough," the 32-year-old Indian River city businessman said.

He talked privately with police for five hours after coming here from Miami in answer to a subpoena. Investigators said the conference produced nothing new in the case.

State Atty. William A. Hallowes said Harrison's story is inconclusive and the case is not closed.

Harrison disappeared Oct. 7 and turned up last week in Phoenix, Ariz. He said he remembered nothing from the time a stranger slugged him in a Jacksonville parking lot until he identified himself to Phoenix police.

In the meantime a California convict, Roy V. Olson, 23, confessed he killed Harrison. After Harrison was found alive, Olson repudiated his confession.

Officers, however, said Olson knew too many details and there was too much blood on Harrison's car — found abandoned on a Jacksonville street Oct. 14 — for them to believe there wasn't some basis to Olson's story.

The investigation now centers around two bags of fertilizer.

J. C. Patrick, Duval County's chief criminal investigator, said efforts will be made to firmly establish the purchase of the fertilizer by Harrison at a service station Oct. 7. A woman at the station told officers of such a purchase after Harrison's disappearance.

Harrison maintains he has no recollection of the purchase.

Nod Given, Plans For Schools

Herald Bureau

EVERGLADES — Approval of preliminary plans for $778,016 in new school construction at Everglades and Immokalee was voted this week by the Collier County School Board.

At the same time the board voted to hire the Naples firm of Nick and Morris, architects, to draw plans for the eight classroom addition at Lake Park School in Naples.

The plans approved included a set by William G. Tracy, Naples architect, for a new high school and gymnasium at Everglades, to cost $305,106.

The other set was by Bolton McBryde for a $473,000 elementary addition at Immokalee.

Woman Dies in Shooting

Herald Bureau

KEY WEST — Myrtle Ingraham, shot in an apparent lover's quarrel in Marathon last Saturday, died Thursday in Monroe General Hospital.

The 34-year-old woman allegedly was shot with a .22 caliber revolver by Warren L. Adams, 38, after an argument over her dancing with other men. The shooting took place in a Marathon motel.

Adams was picked up by deputy sheriffs and held in the county jail on an open charge of investigation.

No specific charges have been brought against him yet, but the sheriffs office and Monroe County State Attorney J. Lancelot Lester conferred Tuesday in connection with the case.

3 Escape From Plane In Crackup

By TOM VINCIGUERRA
And FRAN LASLIE
Herald Staff Writers

WEST HOLLYWOOD — Three seasoned pilots on a practice flight coaxed their ailing twin-engined plane clear of a housing development Thursday and dumped the craft in a pasture.

James Kay, 25, of 3729 NW 22nd Ct., Miami; Robert Knapp, instructor from Embry-Riddle Aeronautical School, Miami, owner of the T-50 Cessna, and Donald Cambell, 28, of 2954 NW 14th St., Miami, crawled out from the partially crushed cabin with only minor injuries.

The plane developed engine trouble while attempting a one-engine approach to North Perry Airfield, Kay said. It belly landed, skidded about 150 feet in the mucky pasture of McArthur Dairy Farm and flipped end over end, landing on its back.

Cambell was at the controls, qualifying for multi-engine rating. Kay, a licensed pilot, said he was along for the ride.

The craft, coming in with one engine off was too close behind another plane and couldn't gain altitude, Airport Manager Dick Bassinger said.

Cambell and Knapp were treated at Memorial Hospital for cuts.

Investigators said the pilots' safety belts and the soft pasture saved them from more serious injury.

Cambell and Knapp, still wearing their blood-spattered clothes, sat in the emergency room and Memorial Hospital and told this story:

"We were simulating one engine landings. Another light plane crossed in front of us and we cut to the right.

"We kicked the second engine on. Nothing happened.

"I knew we were going to have to get down quick," Cambell said.

"When the plane skidded and flipped over on its back, the first thing I thought about was fire.

"I snatched off my safety belt and jumped clear. The others climbed out after me. Blood was streaming down Knapp's face," Cambell said.

Knapp gashed his forehead on the dash.

Nightlife with George Bourke

Schulberg Laying Groundwork for Castro Film

SARASOTA'S first citizen of the arts, Budd Schulberg, who should be in Remagen, Germany, preparing for the co-production with brother Stuart of a movie about World War II, is at the Havana Riviera instead scouting a more resent "war" for material for a Fidel Castro Story movie which Elia Kazan may direct. "Across the Sierra Maestra?" Schulberg is also penning a Castro piece for True Magazine.

Sudden Thot: From the news pictures of Fidel it would appear he's a one-suit (maybe two pairs of pants) guy. When Fulgencio Batista fled his "finca" outside Havana he left 100 suits and 34 pairs of trousers in his roomsize wardrobe. And on his study table were busts of Winston Churchill, Joseph Stalin, Mahatma Ghandi, Joan of Arc, Gen. Erwin Rommel, Homer, Viscount Montgomery, Dante and Benjamin Franklin. Abe Lincoln was represented in the finca's Patio of Heroes.

This is the very end on the cat-lying-down-with-the-dog, or whatever the metaphor of it is! A world premiere of a movie will be among the prizes on "The Price Is Right" — a television show! Winner of the audience participation bidding will have the premiere of "The Gidget," with klieglights and visiting stars, in his or her own living room. Sandra Dee and Cliff Robertson are featured in the Columbia production.

DiLaurentiis Expected Today

ITALIAN film producer Dino D'Laurentis, husband of Silvana Mangano, checks into the Fontainebleau Hotel today for a short stay. His newest film — and Silvana's — is "The Tempest," in which Van Heflin, a last week visitor, is also starred.

Garson Kanin, who directed the Broadway production of "A Hole in the Head," which is about a Miami Beach hotel, is due Sunday at the Fontainebleau where scenes for the movie version were filmed . . . Latin Quarter comedian Jay Lawrence has arrived! He's had his name inscribed on a celebrity chair at Fu Manchu's. But it's brother Larry Storch who does the oriental bit!

Habla Asiatic Indian? Walter Klements, of the Wometco Theaters, wants the translation for "Pather Panchali," the title of the Cannes Film Festival prize winner which opens at the Mayfair and Sunset Theaters next Friday. Press book for the film, he says, is "vague" about the meaning.

Ava Gardner has been selected by the jai-alai players at Miami fronton to top their best actress list. Now Ava will have to volunteer her idea of the Ten Best Basques.

Janet to Make P.A. Here

JANET LEIGH will be at the Saxony Hotel on Wednesday for a series of personal appearances at the Carib, Miami and Miracle Theaters where "The Perfect Furlough," in which she co-stars with husband Tony Curtis will be playing . . . That was actor Keefe Brasselle congratulating actress Betty Grable on her sock show at the Latin Quarter . . . Ken Gregory, once a Martha Raye aide, is now managing the Babalu Bar at the Surfcomber.

Lola Fisher is doing most of the score from "My Fair Lady" in her limited engagement at the Empress Hotel Regency Room. And who could do it better — Miss Fisher had the lead in the Broadway production for a spell. She's using "production" props in her act . . . Bea Kalmus has moved her Stairway to the Stars radio interview show—but she hasn't moved it far—from the Bel Aire to the Sherry-Frontenac. They are in the same block.

Barney Nagler, columnist for the 50-cents-a-copy Morning Telegraph, essayist for the slicks and TV writer-producer, has been resting up from those collective chores at the Seville Hotel. Wonder if Barney remembers a New York colleague of the 30's — Sydney Boehm, now a writer-producer for 20th Century-Fox? The once rotund-as-John Morton scrivener is almost as slim as Gary Cooper from the grind of the movie mills! His next production is "Snow Birch," which has been retitled "Woman Obsessed" for the screen. Guess the snow drifted.

Widow Gave Him $102,000

SANTA MONICA, Calif. — (AP) — Actor John Carroll testified Wednesday that a wealthy widow gave him $102,000 to further his career, and with no strings attached.

Carroll

The 54-year-old actor testified in Superior Court in defending himself against a suit for recovery of $228,800 brought by the 63-year-old widow, Mrs. Maude M. Marron.

Carroll said Mrs. Marron gave him $55,000 on May 1, 1953. He quoted her as saying: "This money is for you to do with as you see fit if it will further your career."

The actor said he received $7,000 from the widow after he had been instrumental in recovering a portion of $25,000 which he said she had given to another man.

He said once Mrs. Marron saw a picture of an expensive automobile and told him: "I'm going to get you one." He said she gave him $10,700 to buy the car.

The actor said no one else was present at the time when he received gifts from Mrs. Marron.

Gym for Jayne?

HOLLYWOOD, Calif. — (UPI) — Jayne Mansfield's husband, strongman Mickey Hargitay may go into the gymnasium business.

Star's Hat, Wig Ablaze

HOLLYWOOD, Calif. — (UPI) — Sophia Loren's plumed hat caught fire on a movie set here but the beautiful Italian star escaped injury when the blaze was quickly extinguished.

Miss Loren returned to work after the incident, in which both her hat and her blonde wig caught fire. She accidentally backed into a gas jet on the set.

State-Long Pike Dead --Collins

Herald Bureau

TALLAHASSEE — Gov. LeRoy Collins said Thursday that proposed federal interstate system of limited access highways has killed plans for extension of Florida's turnpike north of Orlando.

Collins said the proposal to extend the existing toll road from Fort Pierce to Orlando would "not conflict but will complement the interstate system. I think any extension beyond that point should now be regarded as hopeless."

He said he felt the two-year-old turnpike had proven a great asset to the state but any extension north of Orlando to the Georgia line probably would not be feasible if it had to compete with a free limited access interstate system.

Only the portion between Miami and Fort Pierce has been built and some investment sources have cast doubt even on feasibility of running it to Orlando.

But Collins said there will be no interstate route to compete with a tollway from Fort Pierce to Orlando and he sees no reason why it should not be built someday.

Cuba Orders Peso Curbs

HAVANA, Cuba — (AP) — Cuba's new government Thursday put a $50 limit on the amount of Cuban pesos that individuals can bring into or take out of the country.

Any pesos held by travelers over that limit will be taken away from them by customs officials under the order.

The move was announced by Treasury Minister Rufo Lopez Fresquet. Aides said it was aimed at stopping black market sales of pesos abroad by members of the fallen Batista regime who fled with large sums of money.

Report Heard in Caracas

Slaying by Trujillo Of His V-P Is Denied

CIUDAD TRUJILLO, Dominican Republic — (AP) — Reports that Vice President Joaquin Balaguer had been slain were denied Thursday in government circles. Balaguer was reported working in his offices as usual Thursday afternoon.

Earlier, Dominican exiles in Caracas, Venezuela, said they had been advised Gen. Rafael Leonidas Trujillo, strongman of the Dominican Republic, had shot and killed Vice President Balaguer. Their story was splashed under banner headlines in the Caracas evening newspapers El Mundo and Pregon.

Nicolas Silfa and Angel Miolan, directors of the Dominican Revolutionary Party in exile, said in Caracas a clandestine radio reported the incident occurred last Tuesday in Ciudad Trujillo.

The exiles said the broadcast reported that Trujillo fired five shots at the vice president during an argument. The report added that Trujillo had accused Balaguer of not dealing harshly enough with an "insurrection."

Silfa and Miolan charged that the Dominican army has been disarmed and ordered to barracks. They charged that a "wave of repression" in the Dominican Republic was so great that hospitals had been converted into jails. It said the San Juan Hospital in Ciudad Trujillo was one.

Boy Pinned Hours Under 2-Ton Pipe

LOS ANGELES — (AP) — A 12-year-old boy who chose a sandy construction site for a playground was rescued Thursday after seven hours of being pinned by a two-ton concrete storm drain pipe.

Authorities say Perry A. Luth III apparently was digging a tunnel under the pipe Wednesday when it slipped down on his back, crushing him flat.

At dinner time his parents missed him and a search began. About four and a half hours after the pipe slipped, Perry's father spotted his son's bicycle by the work project near their Westchester home, then found the boy.

"I'm cold. I can't move my feet," were the boy's first words.

Then, in concerned tones, he asked:

"Did I make you miss the movie?"

"That's all right, son," the elder Luth replied. "We'll have you out right away."

Police extricated him by slipping a huge beam into the pipe, and jacking up its extended end.

Perry was taken to a hospital suffering from shock and possible internal injuries.

Leaders Hope for Upswing

Visitor Fall-Off Worries Broward

More Broward News, 1B, 10C

By HENRY KINNEY
Herald Staff Writer

FORT LAUDERDALE — This area's tourist business is substantially below normal for this time of year.

Hotel men now are frank to admit it, while crossing their fingers in hopes of a fast upturn.

Estimates of the drop from last year range up to 20 per cent. Bars and restaurants, motels and apartments are feeling it as well as the hotels.

It has not yet caused general alarm, but people are getting jittery. Industry leaders are hopeful an upswing will begin within a matter of days.

The chairman of the tourism committee of the Fort Lauderdale Chamber of Commerce, Stuart Sharpe, acknowledged that the situation is "sad," but added:

"Railroad and airline bookings are so fantastic that this may still be one of our best seasons."

The package tours to Fort Lauderdale, he said, "now are going well" after a slow start caused by airline strikes.

The most candid appraisal of the state of local business was given at this week's City Commission meeting by Commissioner Charles L. Knight, a hotel owner.

He said Business at his hotel and one nearby was off 10 per cent from last year. He is considering giving employes a week off without pay, he said, and reducing rates.

In the industry it's felt that Knight's view was overly pessimistic.

But even veterans of the "January jitters," a traditional ailment which strikes most South Florida hotel men during the first month of the year, feel that the current problem is more severe than usual.

Two chief reasons are given for the difficulty:

1—Many visitors who were here during last year's chill January were reluctant to come so early this year.

2—The "bad press" which the Florida weather has been getting in northern newspapers.

Sharpe said that at a meeting of travel agents recently in Chicago, which he attended in an effort to determine the cause of the slump, the agents listed last year's weather as the No. 1 factor.

Runaway Truck Slices House

RIDGEWOOD, N.J. —(UPI) — An out-of-control tractor-trailer sheared off the back end of a frame house "like a scissors" Thursday, seriously injuring three persons.

The huge truck mowed down two utility poles on the right shoulder of the road, and veered across the lane, down an embankment and through the house.

"It sheared off the walls, the floor, the roof — everything — like a pair of scissors," police said.

Mrs. Mary Hanna, 44, was sleeping in the room hit by the truck. She was not dumped out of bed, although the back 10 feet of the house had been sliced off.

Hoffa Set To Move On PAA

Claims Majority Of Stock Clerks

By DOM BONAFEDE
Herald Staff Writer

Jimmy Hoffa's Teamsters Union was poised Thursday to make its first assault on the airline industry by trying to bring Pan American World Airways stock clerks under its wing.

The Herald learned that the 800 clerks throughout the PAA system will vote next week on whether they want to be represented by the Teamsters or the International Association of Machinists.

Warren Lane, National Mediation Board official, confirmed the report and added that Hoffa already has signed up more than 51 per cent of the clerks.

Some 300 clerks based in Miami will cast their ballots next Tuesday and Wednesday, Lane said.

Other elections will be held in Cape Canaveral, New York City and on the Pacific Coast.

If Hoffa gets a foothold in the airline industry it will give him virtual control over the nation's transportation industry.

It was also learned that Hoffa was making eyes at the stewards and stewardesses of Mohawk Airlines, a small carrier operating in New York State.

Hoffa earlier disclosed he was making a stab at moving in on the airline industry when he gave a $200,000 loan to the Flight Engineers International Association during its 38-day strike.

He also ordered a study by subordinates to determine which airline and airport workers he could organize to be in a position to close down operations in case of a strike.

The stubby boss of the scandal-scarred union further threatened to stop gasoline deliveries to any airline which provoked his displeasure in labor-management battles.

Hoffa's wooing of PAA's clerks apparently is the opening shot of a concerted drive by the Teamsters to infiltrate the airline industry.

The clerks formerly were members of the machinists union but later switched to the Transport Workers Union. The changeover was nullified, however, by the AFL-CIO, leaving the way open for the Teamsters to step in.

Meanwhile, PAA faces a strike threat from its ground service employes following the collapse of negotiation talks.

Nikita's Arteries Hardening? New York Doctors Think So

NEW YORK — (UPI) — The New York World Telegram and Sun said Thursday that in the opinion of several prominent New York doctors "there is a distinct possibility" that Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev may be suffering from hardening of the arteries of the brain.

These doctors compared photographs of the Russian leader, taken early last year with those taken recently.

"The arteries in his temple look more prominent in the latest photo," the newspaper quoted one doctor as saying. "They look prominent and tortuous. It looks like a distinct possibility of cerebral hardening of the arteries."

The newspaper said that another doctor said that "in cases like this there is always the hazard of cerebral vascular accidents, or, in other words, the danger of a stroke."

The World Telegram and Sun quoted another physician as saying that "it's perhaps speculative to base judgment on photos, but the latest photo seems to show his face typically haggard and lined."

"Such an arterial ailment is quite common in overweight people more than 50 years of age," one of the doctors pointed out, the newspaper said.

Khrushchev will be 65 on April 17, the newspaper pointed out, and he was quoted by Sen. Hubert Humphrey, who met him recently, as saying that he had kidney trouble.

The New York doctors, according to The World Telegram and Sun, said that the photos also showed that the Soviet premier had lost weight since last July. They speculated that his doctors had advised this since, though not a cure, it is a help in fighting the inroads of cardiovascular disease.

Struck by Two Bullets

Hialeah Security Chief Is Shot Down by Tipster

By JAMES BUCHANAN
Herald Staff Writer

As hundreds of Hialeah Race Track fans looked on in horror, an arthritic 75-year-old tout Thursday fired two bullets into John Madala, track security chief and ex-FBI agent who helped gun down John Dillinger.

Shortly before the bugle called the first race, the elderly tipster, identified as Maxim Gay, shuffled toward Madala, who was talking with his brother behind the grandstand, and muttered in a stuttering voice:

"You've taken away my living."

He then took out a revolver and fired two shots, sending Madala sprawling to the ground.

Stepping closer, he fired three more shots and dropped the weapon just as track guards grabbed him.

Bill Horan, a track employe who witnessed the shooting, said:

"I turned around when I heard the first shot but I didn't get excited. I thought it was a movie act involving Madala.

"Then I saw someone shoot at him when he was down. Lucky somebody else didn't get shot, too."

Madala was rushed to Doctors' Hospital where surgeons took one slug out of his right side and one out of his abdomen. His condition was serious. Three of the shots missed.

Police identified the gunman as Gay, an oldtime professional tout who is well known around the country's race tracks as a tip-sheet salesman.

They said that Gay, of 126 SW Seventh Ave., told them he tried to kill Madala because the security chief ordered him ejected from the track Wednesday.

State Attorney Richard Gerstein said Gay will be charged with assault with intent to commit first degree murder.

Gay, a gray-haired man who walks haltingly with a stoop, was taken to the Hialeah police station for questioning and later booked at the county jail.

Officers described him as "calm, cooperative and unremorseful."

Under questioning, he told investigators he bought the revolver — a .38 caliber Smith and Wesson — Wednesday from a Hialeah gun dealer with the avowed purpose of avenging his dismissal from the track.

Health Spot Calls Mamie

WASHINGTON — (UPI) — Mrs. Mamie Eisenhower plans to return to Beauty Queen Elizabeth Arden's Maine Chance health resort in Phoenix, Ariz., next month.

A White House spokesman said Thursday the First Lady plans to go to the plush resort by train with her sister, Mrs. G. Gordon Moore.

It was not announced how long Mrs. Eisenhower plans to stay or just when she will go to the exclusive beauty-health resort that charges $600 a week and up.

Mrs. Eisenhower's last trip to "Maine Chance" created a stir in some quarters because President Eisenhower took her there in the Presidential plane Columbine III from Thomasville, Ga. last February.

McElroy: Reds Will Take Lead

Senate Probers Hear Defense Officials

WASHINGTON — (UPI) — The Air Force's ballistic missile chief told Senate investigators Thursday the U.S. should be building more intercontinental missiles to meet the "very great danger" posed by Russian strength.

Maj. Gen. Bernard A. Schriever made the statement after Defense Secretary Neil H. McElroy acknowledged that Russia would have more intercontinental ballistic missiles than the U.S. in a year or two. But McElroy said this country was not trying to match Russia missile for missile.

Testifying before the combined Senate space-preparedness subcommittee, McElroy said this country was relying on a variety of weapons to deter war. They include not only ICBM's — a squadron will be ready to fire in July — but also manned bombers and missile firing submarines.

Following McElroy to the stand, Schriever said the U.S. had the capacity to increase its ICBM power considerably. He said Soviet missile strength endangered not only the nation's security but its actual survival.

"In view of the very great danger," he said, "we should be building larger ICBM forces. We have the capacity to build more."

Schriever, commander of the Air Force Ballistic Missile Division, urged that the question of a speed-up "be given serious consideration over the next several months."

McElroy denied there was any current gap in ICBM's. He said neither Russia nor the U.S had an "operational" missilee now and this country would have one on the firing line first. But he said Russia would catch up later and forge ahead because the U.S. had other plans.

McElroy said this country's first ICBM squadron would be on the firing line at Vandenberg Air Force Base, near Los Angeles, by July. It will have 10 launchers for hurling Atlas missiles with hydrogen warheads to targets 5,500 miles away. That would include Moscow.

The Senate committee, headed by Senate Democratic leader Lyndon B. Johnson, called McElroy, Gen. Nathan F. Twining, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, and the chiefs of the individual services for an "honest count" on this nation's missile-space strength.

Thor Being Stockpiled

U.S. Mass-Producing 1,500-Mile Missile

SANTA MONICA, Calif.—(AP) — America is mass-producing one of its most reliable missiles in a form so simple that crews can fire them in volleys on 15-minutes notice—even from mobile bases.

The missile is the 1,500-mile Thor, a combat-ready weapon that also is a workhorse in space research.

It can carry a nuclear warhead known as the "county-buster" and it is stockpiled at bases in this country and abroad.

But because of its limited range, the future of the Thor is uncertain.

This picture emerged Thursday after the first press tour of Thor production and testing facilities here and in Sacramento, Calif. Donald W. Douglas, president of Douglas Aircraft Co., led the tour.

Newsmen saw parts of more than a dozen Thors on an assembly line at the Douglas Aircraft plant here and 17 finished missiles in a storage area.

At Sacramento they saw a demonstration that a hangared Thor can be made ready to launch 15 minutes after the order to fire.

A Thor squadron has 15 missiles, all ready to be fired at once, at the same target or at 15 different targets.

In the field, each missile requires only four men to fuel and fire it.

Fifteen successes and 12 partial successes out of 31 firings attest the Thor's reliability.

'Massive Assistance' Bill Opens Civil Rights Battle

15 Liberals Combine In Senate

WASHINGTON — (UPI) — Fifteen liberal senators opened the 1959 congressional civil rights battle Thursday by introducing a bill that would throw the full weight of the government behind the Supreme Court's school integration order.

The bipartisan group, headed by Sen. Paul H. Douglas (D., Ill.), said the legislation would give local communities wishing to integrate the government's "massive assistance" to counter the "massive resistance" thrown up by Southern states.

Douglas and others said the bill was not aimed at punishing the South and did not demand immediate compliance. However, it is far more sweeping than either the "moderate" proposal by Senate Democratic Leader Lyndon B. Johnson or the administration's forthcoming bill.

Douglas, acknowledging the rocky path ahead of the bill, said he expected Southerners to raise a filibuster threat against it. In a caustic reference to Johnson's middle-of-the-road measure, he added:

"Then some ostrich-like proposal, burying its head in the sand so that it cannot see the school problem, offending — and helping—almost no one, will probably be served up as a 'reasonable compromise' . . . I hope the Senate will not be misled by these maneuvers."

The liberal version was sponsored by 11 Democrats and four Republicans.

One of them, Sen. Jacob K. Javits (R., N.Y.), said "this opens the civil rights battle in Congress for this session."

The bill would authorize the Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare to offer legal, financial and technical aid in school integration cases. The technical help could amount to as much as $2,500,000 a year for five years.

The secretary also could make grants for school buildings, teachers and community aid where states threaten to close schools to prevent integration. This aid would total 40 million dollars annually for five years.

Javits virtually conceded that the liberal bill had no chance of winning approval from the Senate Judiciary Committee, headed by Sen. James O. Eastland (D., Miss).

Besides Douglas and Javits, other sponsors were Sens. Hubert H. Humphrey (D., Minn.), Thomas C. Hennings Jr. (D., Mo.), Clifford P. Case (R., N.J.), Wayne Morse (D., Ore.), Joseph S. Clark (D., Pa.), Richard L. Neuberger (D., Ore.), Pat McNamara (D., Mich.), William Proxmire (D., Wis.), J. Glenn Beall (R., Md.), Philip A. Hart (D., Mich.), Eugene J. McCarthy (D., Minn.), Thomas J. Dodd (D., Conn.), and Gordon Allott, (R., Colo.).

Norfolk Will 'Mix' 6 Schools

NORFOLK, Va. —(AP)— The Norfolk School Board announced Thursday that the city's six closed schools will open Monday on an integrated basis.

Three high and three junior high schools have been closed since September to avoid integration. However, the state laws under which their doors were locked have been nullified by state and federal court decisions.

The reopening will bring the first Negro children in Virginia history—17 in all—into white public school classrooms.

The school board's announcement came immediately after the City Council assured it of operating funds. An earlier council resolution to cut off school monies, fell before Federal Court orders.

The schools affected are Maury, Granby, and Norview High School and Norview, Blair and Northside Junior Highs. A total of 10,000 white children are affected. However, only about 75 per cent of that number are expected to return to school Monday since many are attending school elsewhere or have dropped it altogether.

Meanwhile a Federal Circuit Court judge in Baltimore postponed mandatory integration at two Charlottesville, Va., public schools. A spokesman for the school board said the schools probably would open next week on a segregated basis.

Affected are 1,700 students at Venable Elementary and Lane High Schools. Their schools were closed by the state after a Federal Court judge ordered the admission of 12 Negro students last September.

The decision by Chief Judge Simon E. Sobeloff of the Fourth U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals was disclosed by John S. Battle Jr. counsel for the Charlottesville School Board.

'Apple-a-Day' Proponent, Dr. Engene Lucas, 62, Dies

EAST LANSING, Mich.—(AP) — Dr. Eugene Lucas, known for his scientific testing of the adage that an apple a day keeps the doctor away, is dead of a heart attack. He was 62.

An apple-loving horticulturist at Michigan State University, Lucas was running a four-year experiment on the health effects of apple-eating. In the tests, which will be continued, 500 students eating apples daily were checked for health against non-apple-eating students.

The University Hospital is keeping score on which groups have more of such common illnesses as colds, throat infections, skin disorders and stomach upsets.

He had said: "Although science has ridiculed folk tales for years, we have found much scientific foundation for lore that pertains to plants and diseases."

Lucas was better known in the scientific world for his research on cancer and tumors.

A native of Vienna, he received degrees from the University of Vienna and the University of Leipzig in Germany. He helped develop a wheat strain that still is widely used in Europe.

Duke Ellington, the old maestro whose artistry is known from hither to thither to yon and return, now is doing a 30-minute part in "Jump For Joy" at Copa City. When I saw the show opening night some space-brain director had Duke sweeping the stage and carrying scenery. Duke's now putting his orchestra into the show. He's playing "Mood Indigo," "Sophistocated Lady" and other of his world famous hits. They had Duke billed as the star. Now he really is.

Opening night the directors had three good Negro actors doing a supposedly satirical takeoff of a Noel Coward theme. It was the worst thing I've seen in a theater since two comedians tried "Waiting for Godot." If you can imagine a colored man wearing an English cap, duster and handle-bar mustaches! And the dialogue—but I'll spare you that. Then there was a bedroom scene that insulted the dignity of the human race; and lots more. Now, all that ghastliness is gone and Duke heads a good show, with Barbara McNair the neatest thing in town.

Lou Walters has a really smart show, as usual. Trust the old maestro to give us something well dressed, in good taste and tinged with the sensational. I've not seen Betty Grable but she's selling out Latin Quarter every night. They come away lovin' her. She's something new in night club circles and folks like new faces. See how Red Skelton packs 'em in, with nary a chorus gal in sight.

Ive not seen "Newcomers of 1958" at Deauville, but it's fast, smooth and they can't miss with kids like Buster Keaton, Rudy Vallee, Harry Richman, Fifi Dorsay. As for Whiteman; he's Old Man River.

Castro To Allot Land

He'll Initiate Cuban Reform

HAVANA, Cuba—(UPI)—Fidel Castro will launch the government's agrarian reform program Monday by personally delivering the first parcels of land to peasants in Oriente Province, cradle of the Cuban revolution, it was announced.

The announcement was made by Carlos Franqui, editor of "Revolucion," official organ of Castro's July 26 revolutionary movement.

Franqui said Castro will appear Monday afternoon at Guayabal de Nagua, near the town of Estrada Palma in Oriente, to address a mass meeting of farm workers and make personal delivery of the first land grants.

The scene will be near Castro's former headquarters in the Sierra Maestra mountains, from which he directed the two year triumphant revolution against former Dictator Fulgencio Batista.

Qualified military sources meanwhile confirmed that revolutionary trials of former Batista officials will be resumed today when Lt. Col. Ricardo Luis Grao will go on trial before a court martial at the hall of justice in the Superior War Tribunal building.

Grao is the last of the three most prominent Batista military officers to go on trial. The two others, Maj. Jesus Sosa Blanco and Maj. Pedro Morejon Valdes were tried and sentenced to death. Both have appealed the sentences.

Shift to Miami Denied

Channel 10 Trial Stays in Capital

By DAVID KRASLOW
Of Our Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — Federal Judge Burnita S. Matthews ruled Thursday that the Channel 10 trial of Richard A. Mack and Thurman A. Whiteside can't be moved to Miami.

The trial has been set for Feb. 16, but Mack, former Federal Communications Commission member, and Whiteside, a Miami attorney, are expected to ask for a delay.

Mack and Whiteside had requested that the trial be shifted from here to Miami.

They were indicted by a federal grand jury in Washington last September on charges of conspiring to have Mack sell his vote in the award of the Channel 10 Miami television license.

Mack and Whiteside had claimed that because of the congressional hearings a year ago, and subsequent proceedings in Washington, a prejudicial atmosphere exists in Washington and they cannot obtain a fair trial.

Judge Matthews ruled that a showing of such prejudice "has not been made."

Mack also had asked for a transfer on the grounds that he is destitute and that the expense of a trial in Washington would work a hardship on him. It also was pointed out that virtually all of the potential witnesses reside in Miami.

But Judge Matthews ruled that the Federal Court in Washington had exclusive jurisdiction with respect to one of the three counts in the indictment and that the "interest of justice" would not be served by a partial transfer of the case.

Mack and Whiteside are both charged in the first count alleging conspiracy. Whiteside is charged along in the second count and Mack is accused alone in the third count.

Judge Matthews held that the first two counts are triable either in Washington or Miami.

She also denied motions to dismiss the indictment, to have the government file more detailed charges, and to strike certain portions of the indictment.

A claim that the grand jury's secrecy had been violated by a newspaper article published 11 days prior to the announcement of the indictment was over ruled by the judge.

Channel 6 Now Open For Bidding

After almost two years of legal hassles, Miami's television Channel 6 is open to all applicants who wish to bid to operate it.

The U.S. Court of Appeals Friday, sustained the Federal Communications Commission, which assigned Channel 6 to the Miami area April 25, 1957.

Gerico Investment Co., which operates WITV on Channel 17 in Fort Lauderdale, an ultra high frequency station, contested the assignment on the grounds that a fifth VHF channel in Miami modified its license.

Gerico also contended it should have been allowed to operate on Channel 6, instead of being forced to compete for the honor with other applicants.

A similar and earlier appeal by Gerico in connection with Channel 7 in Miami also was denied.

The Channel 6 Very High Frenquency station is of the type picked up on average television sets. Only sets provided with special equipment can get the UHF channels.

Colder air will advance through the midwest and Gulf states to western foothills of the Appalachians Friday preceded by occasional rain and warmer temperatures. Snow should taper off to flurries or end in the mid and upper Mississippi Valley but a change from rain to snow or flurries is indicated as cold air lowers mercury levels through Indiana, Ohio and into Kentucky.

Strong winds should cause drifting of heavy snowfall in upper Michigan and thunderstorms may mark the eastern edge of the outbreak from the central Appalachians into Alabama.

Very cold weather will produce sub zero temperatures as far south as Nebraska and readings in the 20s are forecast for Kansas and parts of Oklahoma Friday afternoon as Arctic winds push southward over Texas.

Rains expected to reach central California will diminish to showers in the Pacific northwest Friday while occasional snow spreads across the northern and central plateau reaching the Rockies.

A Golden Opportunity

This is the kind of thing we should be spreading around the country in very large print:

One of the most reliable of the commercial weather forecasting organizations, one depended on by many business concerns, has issued a highly favorable forecast for the Fort Lauderdale area for February and March. What it amounts to is above-normal temperatures, less than normal rainfall and only a few scattered cool spots . . .

* * *

They Know Us by the Temperatures

IN REGARD TO THE SUGGESTION here the other day that everyone tell his northern friends about the good weather: At Anaconda Realty, President Frank Smith has a rule that no northbound letter goes out without a notation at the bottom, "The temperature in Fort Lauderdale today is . . ."

No. 2 on Castro's List

THE NO. 2 MAN on Fidel Castro's "most wanted" list, Rolando Masferrer, and his party spent Tuesday night here at the Gulfstream Hotel and left Wednesday morning.

They appeared out of the night, sort of from nowhere, with no baggage. They were well dressed, well behaved, soft spoken, had a drink at the Zanzibar and went quietly to bed. Owner Earl Stein thought he recognized the names the next day, but wasn't sure until Thursday's Herald reported that they're in hiding in Miami.

Observation Platform Makes Sense

A FELLOW WHO LIKES to spend Sunday afternoons at Broward International Airport watching the planes, as many other people do, suggests that the roof of the new terminal building should be made a public observation terrace, such as Newark and other airports have.

The place could even be equipped, he says, with tables, umbrellas and a snack bar concession from which the airport could get some revenue. About all the roof needs is a smooth surface (it's now gravel) and a railing. It's a capital idea . . .

Local Boy to Appear in Opera

THE OPERA GUILD production of "Rigoletto," coming to the War Memorial Auditorium Tuesday night, will have an interesting local flavor.

Arthur Schilling, 17-year-old Pompano Beach High School baritone, will have the role of the captain of the palace guards. It's not a singing part, but it has some dramatic moments. He leads a band of men over a wall to abduct Gilda, the daughter of Rigoletto (he's the duke's court jester) and takes her to the duke, who is a cad, sir, with questionable intentions.

Arthur's been studying with Carlos and Elliette Flores here for about four years, and began training with the Miami Opera Guild last summer. He'll graduate in June and it's felt that he'll probably get a musical scholarship someplace.

Utility Firm Studies Sewer Line Setback

By CLARENCE ZAITZ
North Broward Bureau

POMPANO BEACH — Joseph Fleischer, president of Broward Utilities, Inc., said his firm will call a special board meeting to discuss the next move in their 1½ year fight to find a route for an effluent outfall line from the firm's landlocked Collier Manor sewer plant.

When the City Commission turned down his application to run the line into the Intracoastal Waterway in Pompano, Fleischer said, "At least we got a definite decision from the city. Now we have some place to start from."

Sidney Berkowitz, assistant director of the Bureau of Sanitary Engineering of the State Board of Health, said his department would consider preventing additional house connections to the sewer plant until the outfall line is put in.

(The effluent presently discharges and stagnates in a roadside ditch along Federal Hwy. Berkowitz says this is a "potentially dangerous situation.")

Fleischer said about 1,450 homes are presently hooked to the system, but eventually 2,200 would be.

Berkowitz declined to say whether the SBH could take any legal action. But at one point in a lengthy public hearing Wednesday, Norman Tuckett, county sanitary engineer said "it's now a matter for the courts."

Tuckett said he would not change his opinion that "an outfall must be provided."

Berkowitz termed the present situation a hazard and said "if the people are afraid to put the effluent into the waterway, they should be even more afraid to leave it where it is."

Police Net Spread for Burglars

Herald Bureau

FORT LAUDERDALE — City police spread a net in the northeast section of the city late Thursday night in an attempt to catch two armed men believed to have committed a series of residence break-ins.

Reports of two breaking and entering incidents in Coral Ridge touched off the search. There has been a rash of such offenses in the city in recent weeks.

Reports from Coral Ridge residents that they had seen the suspects led police to believe they had the men trapped in their net.

Even as police were seeking suspects in previous cases, another break in—this at 2133 Middle River Dr. — was reported.

Hospital To Open

BOYNTON BEACH — The Bethesda Memorial Hospital will be open for admission of patients at noon Feb. 9.

The long awaited announcement came Wednesday from Hospital Administrator Dr. Merrill F. Steele.

The million dollar, 80-bed hospital was dedicated last Saturday. Dr. Steele said he needed the time between the dedication and the actual opening to get organized and completely disinfect the entire plant following the mass public inspection.

College Kids Return, Find Us 'Wayyy Out'

By DUANE JONES
Herald Staff Writer

FORT LAUDERDALE — Those college kids are back in town, and they're finding the place "way out."

They're here during midterms and many will be back in two months for Easter vacations if they can scrape up the necessary $40 or $50.

That's what they figure the average cost is for students from midwest and eastern schools.

Many have been here before.

Lois Jacob, a University of Illinois student, hadn't.

But she's coming back.

"This is fabulous—way out," she beamed. "There are five in our group and we're all crazy about the place. We started down at noon Saturday and arrived Sunday night. Everyone's doing it. It's the thing to do."

Jenrosa Morgan, a University of Kentucky student, made the trip in 22 hours.

It's her first visit and she thinks the city is "wonderful — especially the Elbo Room," a beach bar which has gained wide popularity from college students who have visited here in former years.

Another newcomer is David Spaan, a University of Michigan student who drove an elderly couple here. He will hitchhike back to Ann Arbor, and return with classmates during the Easter vacation.

"Your beach is nicer than I expected, but I was more impressed with the cleanliness of your city and the beautiful waterfront homes and attractive business places," Spaan said.

Lyn Wright, a University of Delaware student, came by train and is staying with a Broward County schoolteacher. This is her second visit.

Asked what he thought of Fort Lauderdale, James Klopfleisch, a University of Illinois student, replied:

"Wonderful. It sure beats shoveling snow, and that's what I'd be doing if I were up home now."

Sam Pierson, a junior at Ohio State, commented:

"This is my first visit but it won't be the last. You can't describe a place like this. It's great — beyond description."

Except for being short on money, Pete Spagnola, of the University of Illinois, is having a "great time."

"Most of us are short on money, but we'll get along all right as long as the sun keeps shining and the beaches remain free," he said.

Suspect Gets Magistrate's Hearing

Revenooers Knock Off Big Still

By ERWIN POTTS
Herald Staff Writer

FORT LAUDERDALE — The sheriff's "moonshine squad" went hunting Thursday and bagged 1,000 gallons of non-tax paid whisky.

Led by Sheriff J. A. Lloyd, deputies and revenue agents closed in on a still about 10 miles west of Davie, on 15-Mile Dike Rd., between State Rd. 84 and Orange Dr.

Martin Averson, 32, who said he lives there, was booked for possessing a moonshine still. He was immediately given a preliminary hearing by Judge Thomas F. Tompkins, and released under $3,000 bond.

Averson's magistrate hearing set a precedent in that it was the first given a suspect since controversy arose earlier this month over the county's failure to provide such hearings.

Deputy Joe Pierce said Averson had a hose running from the still to a house on the premises. He said Averson appeared at the still some minutes after the police arrived.

Equipment from a second, smaller still apparently still in the process of being built, was also confiscated.

Lloyd said the 1,000 gallons of whisky were in 10 hogsheads of 100 gallons each.

The property on which the still was found belongs to Florida millionaire Arthur Vining Davis, who leases it, Lloyd said.

Drinking 'Shine Is Expensive

FORT LAUDERDALE — Gone are the days when for a couple of dollars you could drink your fill of moonshine whisky.

The price is going up, up, up.

At present it's $8 a quart.

"It costs even more than tax-paid booze," said Sheriff Department's Chief Criminal Investigator Ben W. Grigsby.

"Some folks just like it better, I guess."

Plane Crashes In Soft Pasture; 3 Walk Away

Student Pilot at Controls

By TOM VINCIGUERRA
And FRAN LASLIE
Herald Staff Writers

WEST HOLLYWOOD — Three seasoned pilots on a practice flight coaxed their ailing twin-engined plane clear of a housing development Thursday and dumped the craft in a pasture.

James Kay, 25, of 3729 NW 22nd Ct., Miami; Robert Knapp, instructor from Embry-Riddle Aeronautical School, Miami, owner of the T-50 Cessna, and Donald Cambell, 28, of 2954 NW 14th St., Miami, crawled out from the partially crushed cabin with only minor injuries.

The plane developed engine trouble while attempting a one-engine approach to North Perry Airfield, Kay said. It belly landed, skidded about 150 feet in the mucky pasture of McArthur Dairy Farm and flipped end over end, landing on its back.

Cambell was at the controls, qualifying for multi-engine rating. Kay, a licensed pilot, said he was along for the ride.

The craft, coming in with one engine off was too close behind another plane and couldn't gain altitude, Airport Manager Dick Bassinger said.

Cambell and Knapp were treated at Memorial Hospital for cuts.

Investigators said the pilots' safety belts and the soft pasture saved them from more serious injury.

"We were simulating one engine landings. Another light plane crossed in front of us and we cut to the right.

"We kicked the second engine on. Nothing happened.

"I knew we were going to have to get down quick," Cambell said.

"When the plane skidded and flipped over on its back, the first thing I thought about was fire.

"I snatched off my safety belt and jumped clear. The others climbed out after me. Blood was streaming down Knapp's face," Cambell said.

Knapp gashed his forehead on the dash.

Three Subs Due Today For Liberty

FORT LAUDERDALE — Three submarines will dock at Port Everglades today to give their personnel a four-day liberty in Fort Lauderdale.

The U.S.S. Grampus, commanded by Lt. Cmdr. A. B. Taylor, the USS Sirago, commanded by Lt. Cmdr. B. Peters, and the U.S.S. Cutlass, commanded by Lt. Cmdr. R. A. Bowling, will be open to the public from 1 to 4 p.m. Saturday and Sunday.

The Grampus will bring two Fort Lauderdale sailors, John H. Trainor and David P. Smith, to their home town. Stuart P. Tulk of Miami is on board the Cutlass. The Grampus commander is a Sebring resident.

The submarines' visit here marks the half-way point in a two - weeks' anti-submarine warefare training cruise.

Rule Must Face Grand Jury Today

By ART ROBINSON
Herald Staff Writer

FORT LAUDERDALE—Contractor Frank M. Rule will appear this morning before the Grand Jury with records showing what profit, if any, he made from change orders on a warehouse contract at Port Everglades.

Rule failed Thursday in an attempt to withhold his records dealing with the construction of two warehouses and change orders under which sprinkler systems were put in both and paving was laid around one of them.

Circuit Judge Richard M. Sauls refused to quash a subpena for Rule and his books.

He said that a suit brought by Rule against the Port Authority and three of its members would not prevent the Grand Jury from investigating and determining whether there was any irregularity on the part of the previous Port Authority in issuing the change of work orders.

Rule is suing to recover $45,738 which he says is due him under his contract to build the second warehouse. The Port Authority is holding up payment on the advice of its attorney and Quentin V. Long, assistant state attorney.

In arguing for the subpena, Long said the Grand Jury wants to know, among other things, whether Rule lost money on his original contract and was granted the change orders to make up his loss.

Nelson DeBan, chairman of the previous Port Authority, said Thursday it did not grant Rule the change orders to help him make up any losses. It acted, he said, on the recommendation of the port's engineering department and the former manager, E. W. Bassett.

Rule's attorney, Carl A. Hiaasen, filed the motion to quash the subpena Thursday morning. He argued that since Rule had filed his suit against the Port Authority, Circuit Court had jurisdiction over the books.

The port paid Rule $53,272 for the sprinkler installation. The Automatic Sprinkler Co. of America reported it did the work for Rule for $30,600, including all extras.

Money Big Need Of Center

Herald Bureau

FORT LAUDERDALE — Sustained financing of a residential treatment center for emotionally disturbed children is going to be "the problem," according to a report by a committee which recommended that the center be established.

Construction of a 16-bed center at a cost of from $75,000 to $100,000 was advocated by the committee for the study of a residential treatment center in a report to the children's rehabilitative services of Fort Lauderdale.

The center would be staffed by a part-time psychiatrist, a social worker, three qualified couples, cooking and dietetic and maintenance personnel.

Their salaries will total about $38,000 a year, the report said.

In order to build and support the center, the committee recommended obtaining financial help from the civic clubs in the community, the County Commission, possible state and federal sources, the Mental Health Association, and miscellaneous additional sources.

It also recommended accepting a tract of land in Davie donated by Hamilton H. Forman.

A survey made by the committee showed that there are approximately 60 children who need the type of care offered by a center of the kind under consideration.

Fear of Salt May Hurt Bond Sales

Herald Bureau

OAKLAND PARK — The possibility of salt contaminating the city's water supply could hurt the sale of a proposed $800,000 water bond issue, city officials have been warned.

Art Saarinen, water engineer, told the City Council, however, that the supply "is in good shape now."

He said the intrusion of salt could be prevented if the South Florida Flood Control district erects locks to maintain fresh water at a level that would stop the destroying flow.

Schulberg Laying Groundwork for Castro Film

SARASOTA'S first citizen of the arts, Budd Schulberg, who should be in Remagen, Germany, preparing for the co-production with brother Stuart of a movie about World War II, is at the Havana Riviera instead scouting a more recent "war" for material for a Fidel Castro Story movie which Elia Kazan may direct. "Across the Sierra Maestra?" Schulberg is also penning a Castro piece for True Magazine.

Sudden Thot: From the news pictures of Fidel it would appear he's a one-suit (maybe two pairs of pants) guy. When Fulgencio Batista fled his "finca" outside Havana he left 100 suits and 34 pairs of trousers in his roomsize wardrobe. And on his study table were busts of Winston Churchill, Joseph Stalin, Mahatma Ghandi, Joan of Arc, Gen. Erwin Rommel, Homer, Viscount Montgomery, Dante and Benjamin Franklin. Abe Lincoln was represented in the finca's Patio of Heroes.

This is the very end on the cat-lying-down-with-the-dog, or whatever the metaphor of it is! A world premiere of a movie will be among the prizes on "The Price Is Right" — a television show! Winner of the audience participation bidding will have the premiere of "The Gidget," with klieglights and visiting stars, in his or her own living room. Sandra Dee and Cliff Robertson are featured in the Columbia production.

Widow Gave Him $102,000

SANTA MONICA, Calif. — (UP)— Actor John Carroll testified Wednesday that a wealthy widow gave him $102,000 to further his career, and with no strings attached.

Carroll

The 54-year-old actor testified in Superior Court in defending himself against a suit for recovery of $228,800 brought by the 63-year-old widow, Mrs. Maude M. Marron.

Carroll said Mrs. Marron gave him $55,000 on May 1, 1953. He quoted her as saying: "This money is for you to do with as you see fit if it will further your career."

The actor said he received $7,000 from the widow after he had been instrumental in recovering a portion of $25,000 which he said she had given to another man.

He said once Mrs. Marron saw a picture of an expensive automobile and told him: "I'm going to get you one." He said she gave him $10,700 to buy the car.

The actor said no one else was present at the time when he received gifts from Mrs. Marron.

Legislators Say Blight On Plants 'Fantastic'

But No Remedy's In Sight

By CLARENCE ZAITZ
North Broward Bureau

POMPANO BEACH — The county's legislative delegation toured a vast area of disease-stricken farmland Thursday, and described as "fantastic" what they had seen and learned. But they refused to commit themselves on what remedial action they'd take.

Senator George Tedder and Representatives Emerson Allsworth and A. J. Ryan were told that 90 per cent of this season's 2,000-acre pepper crop had already been plowed under.

"And," said Robert Pryor, Broward agricultural agent, "Of the 20 per cent remaining, we doubt that 10 per cent will ever get to market.

The crops — peppers and beans primarily — are being stricken by soil-born diseases for which research has not found a successful cure. Some 85 farmers here grow peppers as a primary crop, and they're seeking state and federal aid to reinstate a research program which was abandoned last year.

Growers estimate the yield from this county's 6,000 or 7,000 acres of beans has been cut by about 50 per cent by a combination of weather and disease damage.

Dr. Frederick Boyd, director of the University of Florida field laboratory at Plantation, estimated an annual appropriation of $15,000 would be needed to continue research on the disease, two of which have been identified as rhizoctonia and pythium.

He said the program had been under way for over four years when the U. S. Department of Agriculture abandoned it last July.

Tedder admitted that "something definitely has to be done." He said any action would have to be on a cooperative basis with adjoining affected counties.

The diseases have made serious inroads in Palm Beach County during the past several years, but the problem is not as serious as in Broward.

Boyd said local farmers each spend probably as much money each year on their own research and experimentation as the annual budget of the Plantation field laboratory.

The legislators were amazed at the pattern-defying habits of the disease. They strike young or old plants, in wet or dry soil, on virgin or long-used farm land.

A survey team from the University of Florida, headed by Dr. Ferris Decker, head pathologist, inspected the local fields last week and were "astonished" at the problem. But they could offer no research help because of budget limitations.

If legislators decide to seek the appropriation for research, it would have to be in the form of a special bill tacked onto the general appropriations bill when the Legislature acts on it.

Other Cases Linked to Mohan

Herald Bureau

FORT LAUDERDALE — The name of James W. Mohan, booked Wednesday for the Jan. 6 armed robbery of shoe store Manager Peter Kappesser, was linked to other thefts Thursday.

Deputy Sheriff Al Topel said he found a typewriter, phonograph, television set, two leather overnight bags, a bowling ball and case, and assorted bank checks at Mohan's home at 2550 SW 43rd Ave., West Hollywood. Topel said the property was taken from Hollywood businesses and residences.

Topel picked up Mohan Wednesday and charged him with robbing Kappesser of $155 and some checks as Kappesser was making a night deposit at the Citizens Bank.

Bomb Call Empties Junior High School

Herald Bureau

FORT LAUDERDALE—An expensive prank emptied Sunrise Junior High School Thursday and cost the time of 14 policemen and eight firemen who searched the school for a nonexistent bomb.

Police and firemen were called to the school at 1750 NE 14th St. after an information operator at the Telephone Company received a call from a young male voice which told her "I'm just letting you know a bomb is going off at Sunrise Junior High at 10:30 and I'm not kidding."

Questioning of students began after they filed back into classes at 11 a.m., but late Thursday police had not discovered who made the hoax call.

City commissioners recently made it against the law to give false reports of a bomb to police.

Tall Blond Arrested

Bet Taker Faces Forgery Charge

By TOM VINCIGUERRA
Herald Staff Writer

DANIA—A tall blonde betting commissioner at Dania Jai-Alai was jailed by police Thursday on charges of forging American Express money orders.

Mrs. Audry Hrivnak
. . . on arm of law

Police said Mrs. Audry Hrivnak, 32, of 310 DeSoto St., Hollywood, cashed 10 one dollar money orders for four dollars each by making the numeral "4" out of "1" and writing an "F" before the written numeral "One."

She was arrested shortly after 2 p.m. by officer Henry Dusenberry, who stopped her station wagon on S. Federal Hwy. Eight other one dollar drafts changed in the same manner were on the front seat, Dusenberry said.

The car description and Ohio license tag number were given to police by Al Chero, Dania merchant. He said "a tall blonde woman" had cashed forged money orders at his business.

Police Chief George Williams said Mrs. Hrivnak screamed "I don't want to go to jail" when confronted by Chero.

Police said she then admitted the forgeries and said she needed the money to "pay the rent." Her husband, Floyd said they "were getting along and had some money," Chief Williams said. The couple lived alone, the police chief added.

Mrs. Winney McGill, head of the betting commissioners at Dania Jai-Alai, said Mrs. Hrivnak started work there a couple of weeks ago.

"She said she had five children and a sick husband," said Mrs. McGill. Chief Williams said Mrs. Hrivnaks and her husband came here about five weeks ago from Cleveland.

Mrs. Hrivnaks, Williams said, purchased the money orders for $18 at a store on N. Federal Hwy.

She was turned over to the sheriff's office. Bond was set at $2,000.

Center Drive Due Sunday

Herald Bureau

WEST HOLLYWOOD — Parents in Driftwood Acres will pound the pavements this weekend in a house-to-house campaign to raise funds for a community and teen center.

During the two-day drive, sponsored by the Homeowners Association, families will be asked to fill in questionaires to determine the number and ages of residents.

The association said the community needs a center where minors can meet for supervised activity.

Land for the building has been donated by Heritage Homes, one of the developers of the area.

"The importance of a community teen center is evident as we watch pre-school and school children playing in the streets, dodging traffic; playing in and around houses under construction; and committing acts of vandalism for lack of better things to do," said Harvey Dunaier, building committee chairman.

He said there are around 300 children in the area.

Firms Urged For Survey

HOLLYWOOD — The Long Range Planning and Advisory Board Thursday night recommended two consulting engineering firms to collaborate on the proposed city-wide traffic and parking survey.

They were Ruhl and Barry of Coral Gables, and Frederick Bell of Tallahassee. Their total bid was $12,000.

"Both firms have agreed to collaborate and we feel we're getting a good deal with two firms instead of one," said Mike Terranova, board chairman.

The recommendation probably will be considered by the City Commission at the next meeting Tuesday.

5 Youths Killed At Cocoa

By DAN BROWN
Cocoa Bureau Chief

COCOA BEACH — One of the seven 18-year-old boys said, "Let's go to Cocoa Beach and see if there's a missile shoot."

So they raced to Cocoa Beach from Orlando early Thursday and five of them died when an elevated pipe which crosses the beach sheared off the top of their car.

The two survivors got such bad head injuries a brain surgeon gave them "only one chance in a 100 of living." They hadn't regained consciousness Thursday afternoon.

T. C. Worley, the contractor who strung the elevated pipeline across the south beach at Cocoa Beach was grief-stricken.

The line was used to "jet in" piles for the Bon Aire Motel bulkhead project, he said, and it had a red lantern on it.

Among the victims was Nickie H. Morgan of Orlando, a boy "who was crazy about missile shoots," according to his father.

Also dead were Kenneth L. D. Gardiner, James E. Weaver, Richard Knobler and John E. Roquemore—all of Orlando.

Patrick Costello and Kenneth Gepper survived.

The accident scene, which is about half mile north of Patrick Air Force Base, is on a section of the beach where driving is not allowed.

On its way to the death crash, the boys' car flashed by several signs which say "No Driving."

There was another touch of irony.

No missiles were fired from Cape Canaveral Wednesday night or Thursday morning.

The accident is the worst in Brevard County's history.

It brings the 1959 county death toll to eight.

The ill-starred seven made their decision to "watch for a missile" at an Orlando drive-in restaurant where they all met shortly after midnight.

It probably came at the urging of Morgan, Roquemore, Weaver or Knobler who came to Cocoa Beach often to see the missiles fly from Cape Canaveral.

Costello, Gepper and Gardiner also spent the evening together. The three, all college students, triple dated with Orlando girls.

They took the girls to see "Son of Sinbad," then stopped for a snack at the restaurant and agreed to meet at the restaurant again after taking the girls home.

All the girls got home at about 11:45 p.m. and the three boys—who were riding in two cars, returned to the drive-in restaurant and met their four death car companions.

Roquemore, son of a prominent Orlando auto parts merchant, and the owner of the 1959 Ford death car, was convicted of causing three 1958 accidents and two 1957 accidents, according to Orlando records.

His record also shows a speeding conviction and one for illegal possession of liquor.

There was no liquor in the death car and no evidence any of the boys had been drinking.

Costelo, a starting basketball forward for Orlando Junior College, was a "good, hard-working athlete and a good hard-working student," according to Ronald Cox, his basketball coach.

College 'Mixing' Urged

At Grad Level, Says Collins

By JOHN BOYLES
Capitol Bureau Chief

TALLAHASSEE — Gov. LeRoy Collins moved Thursday toward full integration of the graduate schools at Florida State and the University of Florida.

He told the State Budget Commission that the graduate program at Florida A&M University for Negroes here is proving too costly.

Collins also told a press conference that he will oppose any constitutional change which would alter the guarantee of a uniform system of free public schools.

Collins asked State Budget Director Harry G. Smith to prepare some figures on the cost of the A&M graduate program.

Attorney General Richard Ervin has said he will recommend the Legislature adopt a parent option-tuition plan for private schools to bolster Florida's fight against racial mixing in the schools.

Nearly every other southern state has integrated its graduate schools without trouble, Collins told the Budget Commission.

He said the graduate program at Florida A&M ought to be reappraised in the light of economy as well as racial considerations.

In 1958 a federal district court order opened the graduate schools at the University of Florida to Negroes. Only one Negro has been admitted. He is in the school of law.

Collins said that during the past seven years the state has spent about $60,000 on every student graduate from the Negro law school at A&M. It has been operating seven years and has graduated six lawyers at a total cost of $370,000 and now has an enrollment of 18.

Under the state's "separate but equal" facilities doctrine, graduate schools in law, agriculture, pharmacy and education have been established at A&M.

"I think we are going to have to reappraise the A&M graduate program in the light of the state's financial position as well as in the light of this racial situation," the governor declared.

He said, "The people in Virginia tell me that the matter of educating Negroes in graduate schools poses no problem, and they are having the same experience in North Carolina, Tennessee, Oklahoma, Arkansas and Louisiana."

Collins said he had not had an opportunity to study Attorney General Ervin's proposal for a parent-option-tuition plan.

It would require a constitutional change to continue providing for free public schools but would knock out the requirement for a uniform system.

"I will reiterate, however," the governor said, "that I am opposed to any program that is going to destroy our public schools as we have enjoyed and benefited from them in the past."

He asserted that a free public school system has been "the bedrock for the building of Florida and it must continue as the bedrock for future progress."

SPEAKER at the Navy League luncheon today at Pier 66 is Capt. George R. Reinhart, III, commanding officer of the U.S. Fleet Sonar School, Key West, who will talk on "Anti-Submarine Warfare."

Naples C-C Sets All-Year Drive

NAPLES — A continuing year-round campaign to step up Chamber of Commerce membership instead of the two or three scattered drives was decided upon Thursday.

The decision came from the Chamber's membership committee headed by W. L. Clements. Its goal is 100 new members to bolster the present 450.

The group plans a monthly review of the membership and of suggested new members to help keep the total well up, said Secretary-Manager John Crichton.

Is Shooting Now A Hookey Penalty?

A 15-year-old FORT LAUDERDALE boy knew he should have gone to school Thursday instead of playing hookey.

But he didn't expect anybody to start shooting at him for it.

He was waiting at the city dump on Wingate Rd. for a trucker for whom he works occasionally when suddenly a bullet, which sounded to him like a .22, whined over his head. He ducked behind some rocks. Bullets continued hitting around him.

Patrolman Ozie Hankerson said the rocks showed signs which could have been made by bullets ricocheting from them. The boy said he had no idea who was doing the shooting or where it came from.

State-Long Pike Dead --Collins

Herald Bureau

TALLAHASSEE — Gov. LeRoy Collins said Thursday that proposed federal interstate system of limited access highways has killed plans for extension of Florida's turnpike north of Orlando.

Collins said the proposal to extend the existing toll road from Fort Pierce to Orlando would "not conflict but will complement the interstate system. I think any extension beyond that point should now be regarded as hopeless."

He said he felt the two-year-old turnpike had proven a great asset to the state but any extension north of Orlando to the Georgia line probably would not be feasible if it had to compete with a free limited access interstate system.

Only the portion between Miami and Fort Pierce has been built and some investment sources have cast doubt even on feasibility of running it to Orlando.

But Collins said there will be no interstate route to compete with a tollway from Fort Pierce to Orlando and he sees no reason why it should not be built someday.

Boy Pinned Hours Under 2-Ton Pipe

LOS ANGELES — (P) — A 12-year-old boy who chose a sandy construction site for a playground was rescued Thursday after seven hours of being pinned by a two-ton concrete storm drain pipe.

Authorities say Perry A. Luth III apparently was digging a tunnel under the pipe Wednesday when it slipped down on his back, crushing him flat.

At dinner time his parents missed him and a search began. About four and a half hours after the pipe slipped, Perry's father spotted his son's bicycle by the work project near their Westchester home, then found the boy.

"I'm cold. I can't move my feet," were the boy's first words.

Then, in concerned tones, he asked:

"Did I make you miss the movie?"

"That's all right, son," the elder Luth replied. "We'll have you out right away."

Police extricated him by slipping a huge beam into the pipe, and jacking up its extended end.

Perry was taken to a hospital suffering from shock and possible internal injuries.

Canadian Wants Estate

Robertson Gets Killarney Offer

DUBLIN, Ireland — (P) — An Irish-Canadian has offered to buy Killarney from the American who bought it two years ago, it was announced Thursday.

The Irish-Canadian, L. Kelly of Charlettetown, Prince Edward Island, Canada, wrote to the Killarney council asking it to pass on his offer.

Kelly told the council he was prepared to buy the 8,500-acre estate for $200,000. The council decided to pass Kelly's offer on to Florida real estate broker J. Stuart Robertson of Boca Raton who bought the estate in 1956 for a reported $221,000.

In Killarney it was thought unlikely that Robertson would sell. He bought the estate from Mrs. Beatrice Grosvenor, niece of the last Earl of Kenmare.

On a visit to Killarney in September 1956, just after he bought the estate, Robertson said he was prepared to sell it to the people of Killarney if they really wanted it.

But he said that he had already turned down offers from all over the world that would have given him a profit of more than $150,000.

Diver Freed From Sewer By Buddies

CHICAGO — (UPI) — A diver, his foot caught in a sewer gate 50 feet underwater, was trapped for more than five hours 160 feet under Chicago's streets Thursday.

His ordeal ended when his foot was freed and he was brought by slow stages to the surface. Two fellow divers rescued him by jacking open the gate.

The diver, Frank Hefling, 55, had to pause in a decompression chamber before he could come completely to the surface. He was then rushed to South Chicago Hospital.

Hefling had descended into the vertical sewer shaft on a mission to close the 12-square-inch gate leading to a water tunnel under construction on Chicago's far South Side.

His foot became caught in the gate and he was pinned against it by tons of water pressure sweeping past him.

Cuba Orders Peso Curbs

HAVANA, Cuba — (P) — Cuba's new government Thursday put a $50 limit on the amount of Cuban pesos that individuals can bring into or take out of the country.

Any pesos held by travelers over that limit will be taken away from them by customs officials under the order.

The move was announced by Treasury Minister Rufo Lopez Fresquet. Aides said it was aimed at stopping black market sales of pesos abroad by members of the fallen Batista regime who fled with large sums of money.

Report Heard in Caracas

Slaying by Trujillo Of His V-P Is Denied

CIUDAD TRUJILLO, Dominican Republic — (P) — Reports that Vice President Joaquin Balaguer had been slain were denied Thursday in government circles. Balaguer was reported working in his offices as usual Thursday afternoon.

Earlier, Dominican exiles in Caracas, Venezuela, said they had been advised Gen. Rafael Leonidas Trujillo, strongman of the Dominican Republic, had shot and killed Vice President Balaguer. Their story was splashed under banner headlines in the Caracas evening newspapers El Mundo and Pregon.

Nicolas Silfa and Angel Miolan, directors of the Dominican Revolutionary Party in exile, said in Caracas a clandestine radio reported the incident occurred last Tuesday in Ciudad Trujillo.

The exiles said the broadcast reported that Trujillo fired five shots at the vice president during an argument. The report added that Trujillo had accused Balaguer of not dealing harshly enough with an "insurrection."

Silfa and Miolan charged that the Dominican army has been disarmed and ordered to barracks. They charged that a "wave of repression" in the Dominican Republic was so great that hospitals had been converted into jails. It said the San Juan Hospital in Ciudad Trujillo was one.

Hoffa Set To Move On PAA

Claims Majority Of Stock Clerks

By DOM BONAFEDE
Herald Staff Writer

Jimmy Hoffa's Teamsters Union was poised Thursday to make its first assault on the airline industry by trying to bring Pan American World Airways stock clerks under its wing.

The Herald learned that the 800 clerks throughout the PAA system will vote next week on whether they want to be represented by the Teamsters or the International Association of Machinists.

Warren Lane, National Mediation Board official, confirmed the report and added that Hoffa already has signed up more than 51 per cent of the clerks.

Some 300 clerks based in Miami will cast their ballots next Tuesday and Wednesday, Lane said.

Other elections will be held in Cape Canaveral, New York City and on the Pacific Coast.

If Hoffa gets a foothold in the airline industry it will give him virtual control over the nation's transportation industry.

It was also learned that Hoffa was making eyes at the stewards and stewardesses of Mohawk Airlines, a small carrier operating in New York State.

Hoffa earlier disclosed he was making a stab at moving in on the airline industry when he gave a $200,000 loan to the Flight Engineers International Association during its 38-day strike.

He also ordered a study by subordinates to determine which airline and airport workers he could organize to be in a position to close down operations in case of a strike.

The stubby boss of the scandal-scarred union further threatened to stop gasoline deliveries to any airline which provoked his displeasure in labor-management battles.

Hoffa's wooing of PAA's clerks apparently is the opening shot of a concerted drive by the Teamsters to infiltrate the airline industry.

The clerks formerly were members of the machinists union but later switched to the Transport Workers Union. The changeover was nullified, however, by the AFL-CIO, leaving the way open for the Teamsters to step in.

Meanwhile, PAA faces a strike threat from its ground service employes following the collapse of negotiation talks.

Nikita's Arteries Hardening? New York Doctors Think So

NEW YORK — (UPI) — The New York World Telegram and Sun said Thursday that in the opinion of several prominent New York doctors "there is a distinct possibility" that Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev may be suffering from hardening of the arteries of the brain.

These doctors compared photographs of the Russian leader, taken early last year with those taken recently.

"The arteries in his temple look more prominent in the latest photo," the newspaper quoted one doctor as saying. "They look prominent and tortuous. It looks like a distinct possibility of cerebral hardening of the arteries."

The newspaper said that another doctor said that "in cases like this there is always the hazard of cerebral vascular accidents, or, in other words, the danger of a stroke."

The World Telegram and Sun quoted another physician as saying that "it's perhaps speculative to base judgment on photos, but the latest photo seems to show his face typically haggard and lined."

"Such an arterial ailment is quite common in overweight people more than 50 years of age," one of the doctors pointed out, the newspaper said.

Khrushchev will be 65 on April 17, the newspaper pointed out, and he was quoted by Sen. Hubert Humphrey, who met him recently, as saying that he had kidney trouble.

The New York doctors, according to The World Telegram and Sun, said that the photos also showed that the Soviet premier had lost weight since last July. They speculated that his doctors had advised this since, though not a cure, it is a help in fighting the inroads of cardiovascular disease.

Struck by Two Bullets

Hialeah Security Chief Is Shot Down by Tipster

By JAMES BUCHANAN
Herald Staff Writer

As hundreds of Hialeah Race Track fans looked on in horror, an arthritic 75-year-old tout Thursday fired two bullets into John Madala, track security chief and ex-FBI agent who helped gun down John Dillinger.

Shortly before the bugle called the first race, the elderly tipster, identified as Maxim Gay, shuffled toward Madala, who was talking with his brother behind the grandstand, and muttered in a stuttering voice:

"You've taken away my living."

He then took out a revolver and fired two shots, sending Madala sprawling to the ground.

Stepping closer, he fired three more shots and dropped the weapon just as track guards grabbed him.

Bill Horan, a track employe who witnessed the shooting, said:

"I turned around when I heard the first shot but I didn't get excited. I thought it was a movie act involving Madala.

"Then I saw someone shoot at him when he was down. Lucky somebody else didn't get shot, too."

Madala was rushed to Doctors' Hospital where surgeons took one slug out of his right side and one out of his abdomen. His condition was serious. Three of the shots missed.

Police identified the gunman as Gay, an oldtime professional tout who is well known around the country's race tracks as a tip-sheet salesman.

They said that Gay, of 128 SW Seventh Ave., told them he tried to kill Madala because the security chief ordered him ejected from the track Wednesday.

State Attorney Richard Gerstein said Gay will be charged with assault with intent to commit first degree murder.

Gay, a gray-haired man who walks haltingly with a stoop, was taken to the Hialeah police station for questioning and later booked at the county jail.

Officers described him as "calm, cooperative and unremorseful."

Under questioning, he told investigators he bought the revolver — a .38 caliber Smith and Wesson — Wednesday from a Hialeah gun dealer with the avowed purpose of avenging his dismissal from the track.

Health Spot Calls Mamie

WASHINGTON — (UPI) — Mrs. Mamie Eisenhower plans to return to Beauty Queen Elizabeth Arden's Maine Chance health resort in Phoenix, Ariz., next month.

A White House spokesman said Thursday the First Lady plans to go to the plush resort by train with her sister, Mrs. G. Gordon Moore.

It was not announced how long Mrs. Eisenhower plans to stay or just when she will go to the exclusive beauty-health resort that charges $600 a week and up.

Mrs. Eisenhower's last trip to "Mamie Chance" created a stir in some quarters because President Eisenhower took her there in the Presidential plane Columbine III from Thomasville, Ga. last February.

McElroy: Reds Will Take Lead

Senate Probers Hear Defense Officials

WASHINGTON — (UPI) — The Air Force's ballistic missile chief told Senate investigators Thursday the U.S. should be building more intercontinental missiles to meet the "very great danger" posed by Russian strength.

Maj. Gen. Bernard A. Schriever made the statement after Defense Secretary Neil H. McElroy acknowledged that Russia would have more intercontinental ballistic missiles than the U.S. in a year or two. But McElroy said this country was not trying to match Russia missile for missile.

Testifying before the combined Senate space-preparedness subcommittee, McElroy said this country was relying on a variety of weapons to deter war. They include not only ICBM's — a squadron will be ready to fire in July — but also manned bombers and missile firing submarines.

Following McElroy to the stand, Schriever said the U.S. had the capacity to increase its ICBM power considerably. He said Soviet missile strength endangered not only the nation's security but its actual survival.

"In view of the very great danger," he said, "we should be building larger ICBM forces. We have the capacity to build more."

Schriever, commander of the Air Force Ballistic Missile Division, urged that the question of a speed-up "be given serious consideration over the next several months."

McElroy denied there was any current gap in ICBM's. He said neither Russia nor the U.S had an "operational" missile now and this country would have one on the firing line first. But he said Russia would catch up later and forge ahead because the U.S. had other plans.

McElroy said this country's first ICBM squadron would be on the firing line at Vandenberg Air Force Base, near Los Angeles, by July. It will have 10 launchers for hurling Atlas missiles with hydrogen warheads to targets 5,500 miles away. That would include Moscow.

The Senate committee, headed by Senate Democratic leader Lyndon B. Johnson, called McElroy, Gen. Nathan F. Twining, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, and the chiefs of the individual services for an "honest count" on this nation's missile-space strength.

Thor Being Stockpiled

U.S. Mass-Producing 1,500-Mile Missile

SANTA MONICA, Calif.—(P) — America is mass-producing one of its most reliable missiles in a form so simple that crews can fire them in volleys on 15-minutes notice—even from mobile bases.

The missile is the 1,500-mile Thor, a combat-ready weapon that also is a workhorse in space research.

It can carry a nuclear warhead known as the "county-buster" and it is stockpiled at bases in this country and abroad.

But because of its limited range, the future of the Thor is uncertain.

This picture emerged Thursday after the first press tour of Thor production and testing facilities here and in Sacramento, Calif. Donald W. Douglas, president of Douglas Aircraft Co., led the tour.

Newsmen saw parts of more than a dozen Thors on an assembly line at the Douglas Aircraft plant here and 17 finished missiles in a storage area.

At Sacramento they saw a demonstration that a hangared Thor can be made ready to launch 15 minutes after the order to fire.

A Thor squadron has 15 missiles, all ready to be fired at once, at the same target or at 15 different targets.

In the field, each missile requires only four men to fuel and fire it.

Fifteen successes and 12 partial successes out of 31 firings attest the Thor's reliability.

'Massive Assistance' Bill Opens Civil Rights Battle

15 Liberals Combine In Senate

WASHINGTON — (UPI) — Fifteen liberal senators opened the 1959 congressional civil rights battle Thursday by introducing a bill that would throw the full weight of the government behind the Supreme Court's school integration order.

The bipartisan group headed by Sen. Paul H. Douglas (D., Ill.), said the legislation would give local communities wishing to integrate the government's "massive assistance" to counter the "massive resistance" thrown up by Southern states.

Douglas and others said the bill was not aimed at punishing the South and did not demand immediate compliance. However, it is far more sweeping than either the "moderate" proposal by Senate Democratic Leader Lyndon B. Johnson or the administration's forthcoming bill.

Douglas, acknowledging the rocky path ahead of the bill, said he expected Southerners to raise a filibuster threat against it. In a caustic reference to Johnson's middle-of-the-road measure, he added:

"Then some ostrich-like proposal, burying its head in the sand so that it cannot see the school problem, offending — and helping—almost no one, will probably be served up as a 'reasonable compromise' . . . I hope the Senate will not be misled by these maneuvers."

The liberal version was sponsored by 11 Democrats and four Republicans.

One of them, Sen. Jacob K. Javits (R., N.Y.), said "this opens the civil rights battle in Congress for this session."

The bill would authorize the Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare to offer legal, financial and technical aid in school integration cases. The technical help could amount to as much as $2,500,000 a year for five years.

The secretary also could make grants for school buildings, teachers and community aid where states threaten to close schools to prevent integration. This aid would total 40 million dollars annually for five years.

Javits virtually conceded that the liberal bill had no chance of winning approval from the Senate Judiciary Committee, headed by Sen. James O. Eastland (D., Miss).

Besides Douglas and Javits, other sponsors were Sens. Hubert H. Humphrey (D., Minn.), Thomas C. Hennings Jr. (D., Mo.), Clifford P. Case (R., N.J.), Wayne Morse (D., Ore.), Joseph S. Clark (D., Pa.), Richard L. Neuberger (D., Ore.), Pat McNamara (D., Mich.), William Proxmire (D., Wis.), J. Glenn Beall (R., Md.), Philip A. Hart (D., Mich.), Eugene J. McCarthy (D., Minn.), Thomas J. Dodd (D., Conn.), and Gordon Allott (R., Colo.).

Norfolk Will 'Mix' 6 Schools

NORFOLK, Va. —(AP)— The Norfolk School Board announced Thursday that the city's six closed schools will open Monday on an integrated basis.

Three high and three junior high schools have been closed since September to avoid integration. However, the state laws under which their doors were locked have been nullified by state and federal court decisions.

The reopening will bring the first Negro children in Virginia history—17 in all—into white public school classrooms.

The school board's announcement came immediately after the City Council assured it of operating funds. An earlier council resolution to cut off school monies, fell before Federal Court orders.

The schools affected are Maury, Granby, and Norview High School and Norview, Blair and Northside Junior Highs. A total of 10,000 white children are affected. However, only about 75 per cent of that number are expected to return to school Monday since many are attending school elsewhere or have dropped it altogether.

Meanwhile a Federal Circuit Court judge in Baltimore postponed mandatory integration at two Charlottesville, Va., public schools. A spokesman for the school board said the schools probably would open next week on a segregated basis.

Affected are 1,700 students at Venable Elementary and Lane High Schools. Their schools were closed by the state after a Federal Court judge ordered the admission of 12 Negro students last September.

The decision by Chief Judge Simon E. Sobeloff of the Fourth U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals was disclosed by John S. Battle Jr. counsel for the Charlottesville School Board.

Duke Ellington, the old maestro whose artistry is known from hither to thither to yon and return, now is doing a 30-minute part in "Jump For Joy" at Copa City. When I saw the show opening night some space-brain director had Duke sweeping the stage and carrying scenery. Duke's now putting his orchestra into the show. He's playing "Mood Indigo," "Sophistocated Lady" and other of his world famous hits. They had Duke billed as the star. Now he really is.

Opening night the directors had three good Negro actors doing a supposedly satirical takeoff of a Noel Coward theme. It was the worst thing I've seen in a theater since two comedians tried "Waiting for Godot." If you can imagine a colored man wearing an English cap, duster and handle-bar mustaches! And the dialogue—but I'll spare you that. Then there was a bedroom scene that insulted the dignity of the human race; and lots more. Now, all that ghastliness is gone and Duke heads a good show, with Barbara McNair the neatest thing in town.

Lou Walters has a really smart show, as usual. Trust the old maestro to give us something well dressed, in good taste and tinged with the sensational. I've not seen Betty Grable but she's selling out Latin Quarter every night. They come away lovin' her. She's something new in night club circles and folks like new faces. See how Red Skelton packs 'em in, with nary a chorus gal in sight.

I've not seen "Newcomers of 1958" at Deauville, but it's fast, smooth and they can't miss with kids like Buster Keaton, Rudy Vallee, Harry Richman, Fifi Dorsay. As for Whiteman; he's Old Man River.

Castro To Allot Land

He'll Initiate Cuban Reform

HAVANA, Cuba—(UPI)—Fidel Castro will launch the government's agrarian reform program Monday by personally delivering the first parcels of land to peasants in Oriente Province, cradle of the Cuban revolution, it was announced.

The announcement was made by Carlos Franqui, editor of "Revolucion," official organ of Castro's July 26 revolutionary movement.

Franqui said Castro will appear Monday afternoon at Guayabal de Nagua, near the town of Estrada Palma in Oriente, to address a mass meeting of farm workers and make personal delivery of the first land grants.

The scene will be near Castro's former headquarters in the Sierra Maestra mountains, from which he directed the two year triumphant revolution against former Dictator Fulgencio Batista.

Qualified military sources meanwhile confirmed that revolutionary trials of former Batista officials will be resumed today when Lt. Col. Ricardo Luis Grao will go on trial before a court martial at the hall of justice in the Superior War Tribunal building.

Grao is the last of the three most prominent Batista military officers to go on trial. The two others, Maj. Jesus Sosa Blanco and Maj. Pedro Morejon Valdes were tried and sentenced to death. Both have appealed the sentences.

Shift to Miami Denied

Channel 10 Trial Stays in Capital

By DAVID KRASLOW
Of Our Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — Federal Judge Burnita S. Matthews ruled Thursday that the Channel 10 trial of Richard A. Mack and Thurman A. Whiteside can't be moved to Miami.

The trial has been set for Feb. 16, but Mack, former Federal Communications Commission member, and Whiteside, a Miami attorney, are expected to ask for a delay.

Mack and Whiteside had requested that the trial be shifted from here to Miami.

They were indicted by a federal grand jury in Washington last September on charges of conspiring to have Mack sell his vote in the award of the Channel 10 Miami television license.

Mack and Whiteside had claimed that because of the congressional hearings a year ago, and subsequent proceedings in Washington, a prejudicial atmosphere exists in Washington and they cannot obtain a fair trial.

Judge Matthews ruled that a showing of such prejudice "has not been made."

Mack also had asked for a transfer on the grounds that he is destitute and that the expense of a trial in Washington would work a hardship on him. It also was pointed out that virtually all of the potential witnesses reside in Miami.

But Judge Matthews ruled that the Federal Court in Washington had exclusive jurisdiction with respect to one of the three counts in the indictment and that the "interest of justice" would not be served by a partial transfer of the case.

Mack and Whiteside are both charged in the first count alleging conspiracy. Whiteside is charged along in the second count and Mack is accused alone in the third count.

Judge Matthews held that the first two counts are triable either in Washington or Miami.

She also denied motions to dismiss the indictment, to have the government file more detailed charges, and to strike certain portions of the indictment.

A claim that the grand jury's secrecy had been violated by a newspaper article published 11 days prior to the announcement of the indictment was over ruled by the judge.

Channel 6 Now Open For Bidding

After almost two years of legal hassles, Miami's television Channel 6 is open to all applicants who wish to bid to operate it.

The U.S. Court of Appeals Friday sustained the Federal Communications Commission, which assigned Channel 6 to the Miami area April 25, 1957.

Gerico Investment Co., which operates WITV on Channel 17 in Fort Lauderdale, an ultra high frequency station, contested the assignment on the grounds that a fifth VHF channel in Miami modified its license.

Gerico also contended it should have been allowed to operate on Channel 6, instead of being forced to compete for the honor with other applicants.

A similar and earlier appeal by Gerico in connection with Channel 7 in Miami also was denied.

The Channel 6 Very High Frenquency station is of the type picked up on average television sets. Only sets provided with special equipment can get the UHF channels.

National Summary

A weather front stretching from Minnesota into the Texas Panhandle marked the advance edge of colder air overspreading the plains with snow from Montana into parts of Minnesota southward into Kansas.

Colder air will advance through the midwest and Gulf states to western foothills of the Appalachians Friday preceded by occasional rain and warmer temperatures. Snow should taper off to flurries or end in the mid and upper Mississippi Valley but a change from rain to snow or flurries is indicated as cold air lowers mercury levels through Indiana, Ohio and into Kentucky.

Strong winds should cause drifting of heavy snowfall in upper Michigan and thunderstorms may mark the eastern edge of the outbreak from the central Appalachians into Alabama.

Very cold weather will produce subzero temperatures as far south as Nebraska and readings in the 20s are forecast for Kansas and parts of Oklahoma Friday afternoon as Arctic air pushes southward over Texas.

[illegible] expected to reach central California will diminish to showers in the Pacific northwest Friday while occasional snow spreads across the northern and central plateau reaching the Rockies.

Negro Beach

Court Asked To Permit Annexation

Herald Bureau

WEST PALM BEACH — The town of Ocean Ridge Thursday asked Circuit Court to toss out the window legal efforts by Delray Beach to forestall its annexation of Negro beach property operated by the latter city.

It was another development in a series of legal maneuvers between the two cities and the county which have stretched over a period of more than a year.

The beach in question is actually within the town limits of Ocean Ridge but was excluded by court action years ago when property owners contended they were obtaining no municipal benefits.

Delray Beach acquired the property and turned it into a Negro bathing beach over the heated protest of residents in Ocean Ridge and nearby Briny Breezes.

The dispute was thrown into the lap of the County Commission by a delegation from the two aroused towns.

The county challenged the right of Delray to operate the beach in what appeared to be a violation of its new building and zoning regulations.

Flaunting its soverignity as a municipality, Delray Beach challenged the right of the county to interfere.

The county went into court to obtain an injunction in an effort to make Delray Beach comply.

With that suit pending, Ocean Ridge obtained legislative authority and proceeded with steps to annex the property. Delray Beach immediately opposed the action.

In its latest petition Ocean Ridge claimed Delray Beach is without a basis to interfere with its annexation action.

Plane Crashes, 3 Live

By TOM VINCIGUERRA
And FRAN LASLIE
Herald Staff Writers

WEST HOLLYWOOD — Three seasoned pilots on a practice flight coaxed their ailing twin-engined plane clear of a housing development Thursday and dumped the craft in a pasture.

James Kay, 25, of 3729 NW 22nd Ct., Miami; Robert Knapp, instructor from Embry-Riddle Aeronautical School, Miami, owner of the T-50 Cessna, and Donald Cambell, 28, of 2954 NW 14th St., Miami, crawled out from the partially crushed cabin with only minor injuries.

The plane developed engine trouble while attempting a one-engine approach to North Perry Airfield, Kay said. It belly landed, skidded about 150 feet in the mucky pasture of McArthur Dairy Farm and flipped end over end, landing on its back.

Cambell was at the controls, qualifying for multi-engine rating. Kay, a licensed pilot, said he was along for the ride.

The craft, coming in with one engine off was too close behind another plane and couldn't gain altitude, Airport Manager Dick Bassinger said.

Cambell and Knapp were treated at Memorial Hospital for cuts.

Investigators said the pilots' safety belts and the soft pasture saved them from more serious injury.

"We were simulating one engine landings. Another light plane crossed in front of us and we cut to the right.

"We kicked the second engine on. Nothing happened.

"I knew we were going to have to get down quick," Cambell said.

"When the plane skidded and flipped over on its back, the first thing I thought about was fire.

"I snatched off my safety belt and jumped clear. The others climbed out after me. Blood was streaming down Knapp's face," Cambell said.

Knapp gashed his forehead on the dash.

Property Hunters Get Whirlybird's-Eye View

By BILL BECK
Delray Bureau Chief

WEST PALM BEACH — Helicopters are the coming thing for house hunters in Florida.

Three of these whirling real estate offices Wednesday gave a group of northern mortgage bankers a bird's eye view of Palm Beach County.

They weren't looking for a cosy three bedrooms and two baths. These bankers were thinking in terms of thousands of homes and millions of dollars in mortgage and construction loans.

The money men were guests of Robert S. Lindsey, president of Miami's Lindsey Mundy Construction Co., and one of Florida's biggest builders.

Lindsey, who built over 2,000 homes last year and plans to construct twice that many during 1959, has bought or optioned over 10,000 lots in South Florida for the construction of low cost homes.

"The first phase of our program calls for 70 million dollars in mortgages and 35 million dollars in construction loans," Lindsey said, "and the men we have with us today can take us a long way towards achieving this financial goal."

After taking off from the front lawn of the Chamber of Commerce Building, the bankers were whisked away to view model homes and developments all over Palm Beach and Broward Counties.

They liked what they saw. Jack Eleford, head of the New York City banking firm of Eleford and Rutgers, said "We liked Palm Beach County particularly.

"The wide range of industrial, business and residential growth are important factors in determining the extent of our financial participations."

Other bankers taking part in the whirlwind tour were:

Albert E. Berkley, Albert E. Berkley & Co., White Plains, N. Y.; George McIntosh, McIntosh & McIntosh, Washington; James Barton, Indianapolis; and Dudley W. Miller, Chauncey B. Griffin, Edmund F. Ward and Danby C. Osborne, all of White Plains.

Pipe Shears Car Top

5 Teenagers Die In Beach Crash

by DAN BROWN
Cocoa Bureau Chief

COCOA BEACH — One of the seven 18-year-old boys said, "Let's go to Cocoa Beach and see if there's a missile shoot."

So they raced to Cocoa Beach from Orlando early Thursday and five of them died when an elevated pipe which crosses the beach shared off the top of their car.

The two survivors got such bad head injuries a brain surgeon gave them "only one chance in a 100 of living." They hadn't regained consciousness Thursday afternoon.

T. C. Worley, the contractor who strung the elevated pipeline across the south beach at Cocoa Beach was grief-stricken.

The line was used to "jet in" piles for the Bon Aire Motel bulkhead project, he said, and it had a red lantern on it.

Among the victims was Nickie H. Morgan of Orlando, a boy "who was crazy about missile shoots," according to his father.

Also dead were Kenneth L. D. Gardiner, James E. Weaver, Richard Knobler and John E. Roquemore—all of Orlando.

Patrick Costello and Kenneth Gepper survived.

The accident scene, which is about half mile north of Patrick Air Force Base, is on a section of the beach where driving is not allowed.

On its way to the death crash, the boys' car flashed by several signs which say "No Driving."

There was another touch of irony.

No missiles were fired from Cape Canaveral Wednesday night or Thursday morning.

The accident is the worst in Brevard County's history.

It brings the 1959 county death toll to eight.

The ill-starred seven made their decision to "watch for a missile" at an Orlando drive-in restaurant where they all met shortly after midnight.

It probably came at the urging of Morgan, Roquemore, Weaver or Knobler who came to Cocoa Beach often to see the missiles fly from Cape Canaveral.

Costello, Gepper and Gardiner also spent the evening together. The three, all college students, triple dated with Orlando girls.

They took the girls to see "Son of Sinbad," then stopped for a snack at the restaurant and agreed to meet again after taking the girls home.

All the girls got home at about 11:45 p.m. and the three boys—who had been in two cars, returned to the drive-in restaurant and met their four death car companions.

Roquemore, son of a prominent Orlando auto parts merchant, and the owner of the 1959 Ford death car, was convicted of causing three 1958 accidents and two 1957 accidents, according to Orlando records.

His record also shows a speeding conviction and one for illegal possession of liquor.

There was no liquor in the death car and no evidence any of the boys had been drinking.

Costelo, a starting basketball forward for Orlando Junior College, was a "good, hard-working athlete and a good hard-working student," according to Ronald Cox, his basketball coach.

Knobler was a mystery. Papers on his body identified him as a resident of the Orlando YMCA. But YMCA officials said the boy, who lived alone, hadn't been at the Y in more than a month.

Holdup Suspect Is Arrested

Herald Bureau

DELRAY BEACH — A Puerto Rican who escaped after allegedly holding up a Collier County service station last month was arrested by FBI agents Thursday at a flower farm west of here.

Lee Teague, special agent-in charge of the FBI at Miami, said Nestor G. Ramirez, 24, would be arraigned in West Palm Beach today before U.S. Commissioner George Pink on charges of unlawfully fleeing to avoid prosecution.

Ramirez and four companions allegedly took $40 at gunpoint from the station operator. Three of his associates were caught and arrested in Homestead. The fourth, identified as Marcial P. Sanabria, is still at large.

Sand Transfer Plant's Utility Is Questioned

Kay, Lytal Reserve Judgment

By ED PFISTER
WPB Bureau Chief

WEST PALM BEACH — How much is it going to cost the county to operate a $500,000 sand transfer plant at the Port of Palm Beach Inlet and will it be a potent factor in combatting starved beaches?

Palm Beach County Commission Chairman Lake Lytal said Thursday it will take a year to determine the actual operation and maintenance cost.

As to the efficiency of the plant, County Engineer Stephen Middleton said it has moved 75,000 cubic yards of sand across the inlet from the north side to build up the eroded beaches on the south side at the resort town of Palm Beach.

The plant has been in operation only six months. Its estimated capacity is 125,000 cubic yards of sand per year.

Lytal's views on the sand transfer plant came in the wake of mild criticism at a Palm Beach Civic Association meeting earlier this week that current costs of the plant might make this a "gold coast" in fact as well as in name.

Alfred Kay, president of the civic association, cautioned, however, that judgment on the operation should be reserved.

Lytal took the same view.

He said the County Commission budgeted $15,000 for the current year to pay for the operation of the plant and can't tell yet if that will be enough.

He admitted the plant had developed "bugs" such as the anchors of the submarine pipeline slipping. The big pipe is laid across the floor of the Palm Beach Inlet.

Lytal emphasized that the plant, financed by the resort town of Palm Beach and operated under county direction, is the first of its kind. He said for that reason the federal government is keeping a close watch on the operation.

What is to be determined, Lytal said, is whether the sand transfer plant will develop into an important factor in the fight against beach erosion.

He said that it was felt the transfer plant could move enough sand possibly to maintain the status quo of the beaches.

He said, however, that the best test would be to restore the beaches through fill or some other methods and then determine if the sand transfer plant could move enough sand so that the beaches would be maintained.

By contrast to the $15,000 budgeted by the county for the big transfer plant, it has $21,600 in the budget for the South Lake Worth Inlet — a smaller and less effective operation. Much of that cost, he said, was due to the replacement of machinery.

Courthouse Bureaus Are Off to Annex

Herald Bureau

WEST PALM BEACH—Today and Saturday will be moving days at the Palm Beach County Courthouse for the second time in two years.

The County Registration Office, zoning director, purchasing agent, civil defense and veterans service officer are scheduled to join the Auto License Bureau in the Datura St. courthouse annex.

The annex, then a two floor structure, served temporarily as a home for county offices and courts during an elaborate remodeling program at the courthouse.

When the rebuilding was completed, the offices moved back to the courthouse and an additional floor was put on the Datura St. annex.

County commissioners said they hope soon to have most "public service" offices in the building.

State and county auditing departments will take over the courthouse space vacated by the Registration Office, and the vacancy created by the removal of the Purchasing Office will be added to the facilities of the Circuit Court Clerk.

Airline Service Set For Nov. 1

Herald Bureau

WEST PALM BEACH — Capitol and Delta Airlines will begin operations from International Airport here about next Nov. 1, Lake Lytal, County Commission chairman, announced Thursday.

He said the County Board now is negotiating leases with the two airlines for the use of facilities at the county's International Airport.

Capitol and Delta several months ago were granted permission by the Civil Aeronautics Authority to extend their services into South Florida.

The lease agreements will result in a change of present airline facilities at International, Lytal said.

National Airlines will be moved to the west end of the building adjacent to the U.S. Customs Office. Eastern is already in close proximity to that facility.

Widow Gave Him $102,000

SANTA MONICA, Calif. — (AP)— Actor John Carroll testified Wednesday that a wealthy widow gave him $102,000 to further his career, and with no strings attached.

Carroll

The 54-year-old actor testified in Superior Court in defending himself against a suit for recovery of $228,800 brought by the 63-year-old widow, Mrs. Maude M Marron.

Carroll said Mrs. Marron gave him $55,000 on May 1, 1953. He quoted her as saying: "This money is for you to do with as you see fit if it will further your career."

The actor said he received $7,000 from the widow after he had been instrumental in recovering a portion of $25,000 which he said she had given to another man.

He said once Mrs. Marron saw a picture of an expensive automobile and told him: "I'm going to get you one." He said she gave him $10,700 to buy the car.

The actor said no one else was present at the time when he received gifts from Mrs. Marron.

Gym for Jayne?

HOLLYWOOD, Calif. — (UPI) — Jayne Mansfield's husband, strongman Mickey Hargitay may go into the gymnasium business.

Star's Hat, Wig Ablaze

HOLLYWOOD, Calif. — (UPI) — Sophia Loren's plumed hat caught fire on a movie set here but the beautiful Italian star escaped injury when the blaze was quickly extinguished.

Miss Loren returned to work after the incident, in which both her hat and her blonde wig caught fire. She accidentally backed into a gas jet on the set.
